Order Restored Following Riots In Tennessee

House-to-House Search Started for Firearms; Ten Persons Wounded

COLUMBIA, Tenn., Feb. 26 (AP) — An estimated 300 weapons were confiscated by 500 state patrolmen and national guardsmen in house-to-house searches today after ten persons had been wounded and 70 arrested in an outbreak brought on by racial friction.

To prevent a recurrence of the disorders Mayor Eldridge Denham imposed a 9 p. m. to 6 a. m. curfew. He directed that "all persons except those engaged in maintaining order or necessary business remain off the streets during those hours."

Sheriff J. J. Underwood said the trouble developed after the arrest yesterday of a negro woman and her son on a charge of pushing a white radio repairman through a plate glass window on the public square.

As tension mounted, state patrolmen and highway patrolmen poured into this prosperous town of 12,000 on orders of Gov. Jim McCord. Riot guns were set up around the square during the night.

State Safety Commissioner Lynn Bomar ordered the house-to-house search in "both negro and white sections from where we think some of this trouble is emanating."

Both he and Mayor Denham said order had been restored after Columbia spent a tense night punctuated by sporadic gunfire.

Four Policemen Wounded

Governor Jim McCord, who ordered the armed forces to Columbia, arrived this afternoon from Nashville. "We're gravely concerned over the maintenance of order and our forces will remain here as long as it is necessary to keep order," the governor said.

In New York, Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said he had sent a telegram to Gov. McCord urging him to "exercise every possible means of seeing that mob violence is stopped and the guilty punished."

He said he also telegraphed Attorney General Tom Clark in Washington asking the department of Justice to "act promptly and vigorously to safeguard constitutional rights of negroes against state violation of those rights."

Of the seventy persons arrested sixty-eight were negros who were held on charges ranging from disorderly conduct to assault with attempt to commit murder. District Attorney General Paul F. Bumpus said the cases would be presented the Maury county grand jury immediately. Columbia is the county seat.

Sheriff J. J. Underwood attributed the disturbance to high feeling engendered by an altercation yesterday involving a negro woman, her son and a white radio repairman and the subsequent wounding of four policemen who went into the negro populated section known as "Mink Slide."

The sheriff called upon the governor for the militia and patrol last night after four of the city's eight policemen were wounded, one critically, by a shotgun blast on a street in Mink Slide.

Red Troops Land In Manchuria, Chinese Assert

Report Additional Thousands Arrive at Darien and Port Arthur

By RICHARD CUSHING

CHINHSIEN, Manchuria, Feb. 21 (Delayed) — (AP) — Reports that additional thousands of Soviet troops have landed at Dairen and Port Arthur in Manchuria were publicized today by high Chinese military circles but were unconfirmed by other sources here.

The troops reportedly were shipped from Vladivostok. The Chinese sources said this was further indication the Russians intend to stay in Manchuria.

As correspondents' reports of complete Soviet domination of Mukden filtered here, Chinese and foreign observers said they find nothing to indicate any semblance of Soviet withdrawal from Manchuria. They declare that, in fact, the Russians are buying Japanese houses and property and are sending for their families.

Some observers here comment that the Russians are biding their time, awaiting a chance to obtain economic concessions from the Chinese. One informed Chinese expressed the opinion that the Russians want not only part interest in key rail lines (as provided in the Yalta and Moscow agreements) but also in factories along these lines.

Reports reaching Chinhsien from Mukden say that Chinese Communists on three sides of the city are carrying Russian-made sub-machine guns.

Russian troops, according to these reports, number 6,000 to 7,000 as compared with 10,000 Central Government troops in the city.

Ford Motor-CIO Sign Contract

DETROIT, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Ford Motor Company and the CIO United Auto Workers tonight signed a contract calling for an eighteen cent an hour raise for 103,000 Ford workers throughout the nation.

The agreement, subject to ratification by Ford UAW locals and due to run until May 30, 1947, provides both company and union security clauses, according to statements by the two parties.

Ford said it "provides that any employe guilty of instigating, fomenting or actively supporting or giving leadership to illegal work stoppages is subject to discharge. Such cases will not be submitted to regular grievance procedure x x x unless the local union x x x substantiates the contention of the affected employe that he was accused unjustly."

The company said it also contains a provision that "continued failure of an employe to produce on the basis of established standards will be cause for discipline, including discharge."

The union declared the new contract continues the union shop and dues checkoff provisions, while the grievance procedure was streamlined to facilitate speedier handling of such complaints.

The eighteen-cent increase, agreed to Jan. 26 after lengthy negotiations, brings the average Ford production worker to $1.39 an hour, and to $1.37 in the company's other factories. The company security clauses were requested by the company to protect it against unauthorized work stoppages. The increase is retroactive to Jan. 5.

Pauley Considers Suggestion He Withdraw Name

President Truman Says He Still Is Backing Oil Man for Navy Post

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) — Indications tonight were that Edwin W. Pauley will stand pat and not ask President Truman to withdraw his nomination for undersecretary of the navy.

Senator Saltonstall (R-Mass) suggested at a Senate Naval committee hearing today that Pauley withdraw provided the committee clears his name.

At the time Pauley said he would "take that under advisement" but later told a reporter "I am giving consideration to Senator Saltonstall's inquiry, just as I would give consideration to a question or a proposal by any other senator, no more or no less."

A person close to Pauley said later he definitely would not withdraw his name. Pauley could not be reached for confirmation.

But President Truman at a news conference, said he still was backing Pauley.

The examination of the California oil man, formerly Democratic national treasurer, now is in its third week with the end not in sight. Controversy over the appointment has been bitter. The resignation of Interior Secretary Ickes did nothing to ease the situation and President Truman's advisers on Capitol Hill have declared that Pauley cannot be confirmed by the Senate.

Saltonstall asked Pauley to consider the situation faced by him and by the Navy department as a result of the dispute. Then the senator inquired whether, "as a patriotic citizen," Pauley would consider withdrawing his name if the committee gave him a clean bill of health.

"You need not answer that unless you wish," Saltonstall assured him.

Pauley stared at him gravely.

"I would want to take that under-advisement," he said. "I might say that the suggestion is not unique. I have read it in almost every newspaper that I have seen, but I am still here."

Only a few minutes earlier, Pauley had demanded that Senator Tobey (R-NH), his principal cross-examiner, make him a public apology for what Pauley called "vile charges" and "an unjustified smear" concerning his connection with sales of oil to Japan.

French-Spanish Border Will Be Closed by France

Franco Regime Is Charged with Endangering International Security

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS, Feb. 26 (AP)—The French government, declaring that the present situation in Spain constitutes a "danger for international security," today ordered the French-Spanish border closed, effective Friday, March 1.

The government was reliably reported planning to follow up this "moral gesture" by calling upon the United States and Great Britain to join France in an international crackdown on the regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

French officials admitted that their step alone would be of little practical effect unless accompanied by action in Washington and London.

Informed circles said the French government within the next few days would repeat a suggestion that it made last December that the United States and Britain join in a diplomatic rupture with Spain.

Officials said they counted on Latin American nations following or participating in such a joint action, but added that they did not expect many Latin American states to act independently of the United States.

Should Washington and London refuse, a government spokesman said, France will "probably" ask the United Nations Security Council to take action against the Franco regime as a "threat to international security."

There was no official comment either in Washington or London on the French move. In London, however, qualified diplomatic sources said the British government, under increasing pressure from its own labor party, might be forced to reverse its previous refusal to act against Spain.

One infomant said that the United States last December was reported ready for some kind of diplomatic action against Franco, but that British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin had objected.

Today's French action will halt all rail, postal, telegraph and highway communication with Spain when the French-Spanish Commercial Treaty, signed last September, expires Friday.

Under the accord Spain was to have sent fruit, tin containers for preserving fish, sulphur and iron ore into France, and France was to have shipped Spain phosphate, machine (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

Recording Device Fails To Clear Up Legion-VA Picture

Joint Statement Follows Conference of Bradley and Steele

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)—Gen. Omar N. Bradley, who has been having some differences with National Commander John Stelle of the American Legion, tried to set the record straight today with a recording machine — but all that came out was a noise.

The machine was used to record a two-hour conference today between Bradley and Stelle, with their aides. After the closed session a carefully-phrased joint statement was issued.

But Stelle later gave his own version, and said he believes the Veterans Administration which Bradley heads now "really thinks the American Legion means business."

At this, Bradley's aides wheeled out the recording machine and invited the reporters who had been barred from the meeting to hear just what had been said. But something had gone wrong. The recording turned out to be a lot of noise.

A Veterans Administration spokesman then produced this information:

The administration is not modifying its plan to set up contract hospitals for service-connected cases.

It still plans to "take over every army and navy hospital that it can staff and is so located that it can be used."

"We have not as a result of this conference agreed to make more beds available than we had planned."

The states are getting "personnel aid" from the agency, to supervise on the job training of veterans, and will be given as much aid as is needed and is permitted by law."

And on decentralization—the administration's plan has been for accomplishing it "as rapidly as it was humanly possible."

Stelle gave his account of the meeting to a legion rehabilitation conference.

"There are not going to be any contract hospitals except for emergency," he said.

"They are going to utilize every available army and navy hospital. "I feel certain after we talked today that he (Bradley) had some bad advice in the past."

Stelle told reporters two other points emerged—faster decentralization of administration, and aid to states to prevent on-job training abuses.

The official release after the two-hour meeting of Bradley and Stelle spoke of two possible steps in treatment of veterans:

1. The Veterans Administration will consider temporary disability ratings for veterans pending final handling of their claims. This would be done by doctors working on a fee basis for men "holding discharges on which a disability was noted."

2. Long-term patients in veterans hospitals who require "more custodial than medical care" might be transferred temporarily to outlying hospitals leaving central veterans institutions for emergency cases.

Former War Production Board Chairman Chosen To Take Ickes's Post

INTERIOR CHIEF

JULIUS A. KRUG

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26—(AP)—Julius Albert Krug, who ran the War Production Board through the ending of the war and beginning to reconversion was picked by President Truman today to be secretary of the interior.

It was a surprise selection, announced to a news conference shortly after word of the choice already had leaked out at the Senate. Mr. Truman said Krug, 38-year-old native of Wisconsin, now a Baltimore consultant to private firms, would enter the cabinet March 15.

First there is the matter of confirmation by the Senate, which has stirred up trouble for some Truman nominations. It was one of those appointments, that of Edwin W. Pauley to be undersecretary of the navy, that led to Harold L. Ickes's resignation in a dudgeon as secretary of the interior.

Is Personal Choice

Some western senators, who had wanted a westerner named to the vacancy, expressed surprise and a measure of disappointment at the choice. But none stepped forward immediately with any hints that they might oppose confirmation.

The president said he thought Krug would make an excellent interior secretary because of a great deal of experience in administrative jobs.

"Was it your personal selection?" a reporter inquired.

It happens to be, yes, the chief executive replied with a chuckle.

And, in answer to a question, he said he hadn't told the White House inner circle about the choice until this morning.

He said he had considered a large number of names, including that of Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo). But he said he had decided O'Mahoney was too useful in the Senate, where he has served thirteen years, to be shifted to the cabinet.

Mr. Truman pulled Krug out of private business to run the Interior department much in the manner the late President Roosevelt pulled him out of the navy to become chairman of the War Production Board.

Krug had served as head of the WPB Power Branch and later as deputy director general before he was commissioned a lieutenant commander in the navy early in 1944.

Has Power Background

Mr. Roosevelt let him stay in uniform only a few months, then called him up when a blow-up in WPB produced resignations of Chairman Donald L. Nelson and Vice Chairman Charles E. Wilson.

Krug has a power background. After he was graduated from the university of Wisconsin, he worked (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

Atom Bomb Experts Win Recognition

117 Firms, Colleges Are Cited; Baltimore Man Wins Award

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 26 (AP) — An award for their atomic bomb work was presented here tonight to 117 industrial companies, universities and research organizations representing twenty-five different states.

The recipients were largely from the more than 10,000 firms that helped in making the bomb. Tonight's award was the first large-scale recognition of the part that industry took.

The award was a scroll, presented by the McGraw-Hill Publishing Company's Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering Magazine. The scroll was accepted for the men and the industries by Major Gen. Leslie R. Groves, head of the Manhattan Engineer District, who had overall direction of the bomb project.

The general paid special tribute to the chemical industry in the atomic bomb project.

"Let us remember," said the general, "that the real goal is not to outlaw the atomic bomb, but to outlaw war. There is an overwhelming desire for peace in America, but are we sure that in the hearts of other nations and peoples the same desire exists. There can be no half way position. With every desire for good will to the rest of the world, let us approach our own problems with common American horse sense."

Among recipients of the award were:

Maryland—Dr. Robert D. Fowler, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore.

Tennessee—J. V. Giesler, president, Fulton Sylphon Co., Knoxville; James C. White, president, Tennessee-Eastman Corp., Kingsport.

Threat of Transit Strike Averted In New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—(AP)—The threat of a paralyzing strike among New York city's 34,000 transit workers ended today, less than twelve hours before a deadline set by Michael J. Quill, president of the CIO Transport Workers Union.

Announcing a walkout had been averted, Mayor William O'Dwyer said the union had withdrawn its major demand—that it be recognized by the city as executive bargaining agent for the transportation workers.

The mayor's announcement climaxed a fast-paced series of eleventh-hour peace efforts that brought CIO President Philip Murray from Washington for conferences with city and union representatives.

Up to the last minute the city had gone full-steam ahead with extraordinary emergency measures designed to meet a crisis and keep transit facilities in operation for an estimated 3,500,000 daily riders.

Quill, whose union claims 20,000 of the transit workers as members had threatened to call a strike any hour after midnight tonight unless his requests for bargaining rights and a $2-a-day wage increase were granted.

O'Dwyer said he had reached an "understanding" with Murray that:

1. The bargaining demand would be withdrawn by the union.

2. He (O'Dwyer) would appoint a special committee, headed by Arthur S. Meyer, chairman of the state mediation board, to study "the working conditions, wages and labor relations between the workers and board of transportation of the city of New York."

3. Officers of the union would recommend to their membership the "recession of the strike call." (Union members had empowered their officers to call the strike).

Game Ends in Tragedy For Baltimore Brothers

BALTIMORE, Feb. 26 (AP) — A game of "cowboy and Indians" ended in tragedy today when brush and grass on a neighborhood lot caught fire causing the death of a four-year-old boy and critical burns to his two-year-old brother.

Larry E. Meisner died when his cowboy suit was set afire by burning underbrush on the lot in the rear of his home. The origin of the fire has not been determined.

His younger brother, Wayne, received first, second and third degree burns. Wayne, also in a cowboy suit, toddled into the burning grass while a neighbor, who first discovered the fire, attempted to smother the flames enveloping Larry by rolling him on the ground.

11 Nations Discuss Policy for Japan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) — With an admonition from Secretary of State Byrnes that "peace in the Pacific is essential," statesmen of eleven nations began all over again today an attempt to determine Allied policy for ruling Japan.

The new Far Eastern Commission made only a bare start today at an hour-long session in the ornate reception room of the Japanese embassy.

It heard Byrnes declare in a welcoming address that the Allies must maintain "the same unity of action and of purpose that won the war" in order to "root out the seeds of possible future wars, wherever they may be found."

It picked the American delegate, Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, as permanent chairman. It named Nelson T. Johnson, former United States ambassador to China, as secretary general.

OPA Announces Price Ceilings on New Chrysler Models

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)—OPA today announced price ceilings for eight additional models of new Chrysler automobiles — all in the eight-cylinder line.

The new ceilings range from $113 to $150 above those for comparable 1942 models. The increases, OPA said, are due largely to allowances of from $98 to $109 for engineering improvement.

Chrysler Saratoga — Three-passenger coupe, $1428 in 1946 and $1315 in 1942; two-door sedan, $1495 and $1355; club coupe, $1516 and $1370; four-door sedan, $1529 and $1395.

Chrysler New Yorker—thre passenger coupe, $1520 and $1375; two-door sedan, $1587 and $1420; club coupe, $1590 and $1440; four-door sedan, $1603 and $1465.

These prices do not include federal excise taxes, transportation, preparation and handling charges or optional equipment.

Sheriff Orders Police To Disperse Pickets

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 26 (AP)—Acting Sheriff William J. Morrow today ordered police to disperse pickets from in front of a General Electric Company plant unless the CIO obeys his request to abandon mass picketing.

The order came after pickets, for the second successive day, defied a court injunction banning mass picketing as more than 500 men and women blocked all entrances to the plant.

Tamborini Leading

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 26 (AP) — Unofficial returns tonight from two provinces in Argentina's presidential election gave Jose Tamborini, Democratic Union candidate, 3,148 votes to 1,589 for Juan D. Peron, Labor party leader.

The votes were from twenty-four precincts in San Luis province, generally regarded in pre-election as strongly favoring Tamborini, and ten precincts in San Juan province.

War Veteran Is Killed in Blast

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26. (AP)—The crushed body of Edward Gerrity, 21-year-old war veteran, was carried from the wreckage of his home shortly before 5 p. m. today, nearly four hours after the house was shattered by an explosion of undetermined origin.

Police and firemen found the body, clad only in pajama tops, shorts and socks, in a recess below the basement stairs of the Chevy Chase home at 6109 Nevada avenue, N. W. Police said the youth apparently had gone to the basement, possibly to investigate leaking gas.

The boy's grief stricken parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Gerrity, looked on as the body was carried from the debris.

The mother, who had left the house shortly before the blast, arrived at the scene at 3:15 p. m., accompanied by a friend. Gerrity, a Washington attorney, was at his downtown office when notified of the explosion. A daughter, Mary Ellen Gerrity, 15, was at school.

The youth had been released from the army air forces only last Oct. 15, and was planning to leave in a few days for New Haven, Conn., to re-enter Yale university. He had been a radio gunner with the Fifteenth air force in Europe with the rank of sergeant and had flown six missions. He had been in the army twenty-nine months.

The explosion, which shattered windows in nearby houses, was heard for a radius of several blocks. The force of the blast collapsed the two-story frame house and tossed the heavy wooden front porch ten feet onto the lawn. A fire started immediately but soon was brought under control.

Pay Increase to Packing House Workers To Boost Price of Meat

By HAROLD W. WARD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) — A sixteen-cent hourly pay increase for 131,000 packing house employes was approved today under the government's new wage-price policy, and OPA said it would boost the family meat bill about one and one-half per cent.

The Wage Stabilization Board, clothed with new powers to approve wage increases under the presidential policy, set its first industry-wide wage pattern. It was based on a federal fact-finding board's recommended sixteen-cent increase for employes of eleven government-seized plants of the "Big Five" Packers—Swift, Armour, Wilson, Cudahy and John Morrell.

The Agriculture department has been operating thep lants since a strike of CIO-Packinghouse Workers and AFL Meat Cutters threatened to shut off the nation's meat supply.

To make possible the pay increase, OPA authorized a boost in price ceilings which—when worked out to retail levels—will add an estimated one and one-half per cent to the family budget for meat.

Whether the decision would settle the original wage dispute remained to be seen. An industry official here said the price increase was about twenty-five per cent short of what the packers believed they should have.

The American Meat Institute in a statement in Chicago said the price adjustments "are distinctly inadequate for many companies and do nothing to curb the growing black market which is taking over, at the expense of consumers, more and more of the beef business from legitimate operators; forcing them to curtail their operations and in some cases to close."

An Agriculture department spokesman said the OPA was passing along all of the wage increase to the consumer. The fact-finding board had said the industry could (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

HEAVY MACHINERY IS REMOVED TO RUSSIA FROM MANCHURIA

Action Taken in Accordance with Big Three Agreement at Yalta

By SPENCER DAVIS

MUKDEN, Feb. 23 (Delayed) (AP)—Some of the heavy machinery that made Manchuria a Japanese arsenal has been removed to Russia under terms of a Big Three agreement, the Soviet commandant of Mukden stated today. The agreement was reached at Yalta or Berlin—"it might have been either," he said.

(This was the first authoritative confirmation of persistent rumors that the Russians were seizing Japanese industries as war booty, and the first hint that such a policy—if such it is—might have had its inception with the big three.)

(Secretary of State Byrnes told a news conference in Washington, however, that as far as he knew there never was a big three agreement permitting Russia to withdraw Japanese industrial equipment.)

Mukden, the greatest city in the Manchurian arsenal, is a ghost town today. Hundreds of former Japanese war factories lie idle, vacant of both men and machines.

The Soviet commandant, Maj. Gen. Andrei Kovtoun-Stankevitch, said only "perhaps" when asked if the Russians had shipped off any of Mukden's machinery. But he was more specific as to Manchuria as a whole.

Nine American and British correspondents asked the general at a press conference about the reported stripping of Japanese factories and what, in the Russian view, constituted war booty.

"As far as that is concerned," Kovtoun-Stankevitch replied, "according to the decision of the Big Three we could not leave it here so it happens that some has been taken out."

Events of the past six months in Mukden, nonetheless, appeared to have shattered any hope China's Central Government may have had of taking over a ready-made industrial empire in Manchuria.

Mukden has been subjected to uncontrolled looting by Chinese mobs reacting from Japanese exploitation for fourteen years, and apparently to selective stripping.

Vital Phases of Housing Program Are Being Fought, Wyatt Asserts

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26. (AP) — Housing Administrator Wilson Wyatt declared today that an "integrated" lobby is battling vital phases of the administration program for 2,700,000 new homes by 1948.

He told a news conference a telegram barrage had been launched at Congress by organizations seeking to have "price ceilings raised all over the lot."

Both branches of Congress were busy on the housing program.

The Senate voted a $410,000,000 authorization to finance removal of wartime structures to sites where homes are needed and conversion of barracks and other buildings. The measure, designed to provide 200,000 temporary homes for veterans, now goes to the House.

The House opened debate on a bill dealing with residential price controls and subsidies to promote construction with three Republicans assailing it.

Rep. Sumner (R-Ill) declared that "the communistic Patman-Wyatt housing program" attempts "to extend OPA's communistic controls." Rep. Smith (R-Ohio) likewise declared it "communistic" and said it would allow "bureaucrats to seize the home building industry." Rep. Brown (R-Ohio) contended it would give Wyatt "dictatorial powers."

Rep. Patman (D-Tex), sponsoring the bill, replied that it aims to provide homes for veterans instead of permitting the use of scarce materials for "amusement places and honky-tonks."

Meanwhile the National Association of Home Builders, in convention at Chicago, received a proposed resolution from its president, Joseph E. Merrion, urging that the Patman bill be deferred for further study and saying it "would enmesh the industry in red tape."

Order Restored Following Riots In Tennessee

House-to-House Search Started for Firearms; Ten Persons Wounded

COLUMBIA, Tenn., Feb. 26 (AP) — An estimated 300 weapons were confiscated by 500 state patrolmen and national guardsmen in house-to-house searches today after ten persons had been wounded and 70 arrested in an outbreak brought on by racial friction.

To prevent a recurrence of the disorders Mayor Eldridge Denham imposed a 9 p. m. to 6 a. m. curfew. He directed that "all persons except those engaged in maintaining order or necessary business remain off the streets during those hours."

Sheriff J. J. Underwood said the trouble developed after the arrest yesterday of a negro woman and her son on a charge of pushing a white radio repairman through a plate glass window on the public square.

As tension mounted, state patrolmen and highway patrolmen poured into this prosperous town of 12,000 on orders of Gov. Jim McCord. Riot guns were set up around the square during the night.

State Safety Commissioner Lynn Bomar ordered the house-to-house search in "both negro and white sections from where we think some of this trouble is emanating."

Both he and Mayor Denham said order had been restored after Columbia spent a tense night punctuated by sporadic gunfire.

Four Policemen Wounded

Governor Jim McCord, who ordered the armed forces to Columbia, arrived this afternoon from Nashville. "We're gravely concerned over the maintenance of order and our forces will remain here as long as it is necessary to keep order," the governor said.

In New York, Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said he had sent a telegram to Gov. McCord urging him to "exercise every possible means of seeing that mob violence is stopped and the guilty punished."

He said he also telegraphed Attorney General Tom Clark in Washington asking the department of Justice to "act promptly and vigorously to safeguard constitutional rights of negroes against state violation of those rights."

Of the seventy persons arrested sixty-eight were negros who were held on charges ranging from disorderly conduct to assault with attempt to commit murder. District Attorney General Paul F. Bumpus said the cases would be presented the Maury county grand jury immediately. Columbia is the county seat.

Sheriff J. J. Underwood attributed the disturbance to high feeling engendered by an altercation yesterday involving a negro woman, her son and a white radio repairman and the subsequent wounding of four policemen who went into the negro populated section known as "Mink Slide."

The sheriff called upon the governor for the militia and patrol last night after four of the city's eight policemen were wounded, one critically, by a shotgun blast on a street in Mink Slide.

Red Troops Land In Manchuria, Chinese Assert

By RICHARD CUSHING

CHINHSIEN, Manchuria, Feb. 21 (Delayed) — (AP) — Reports that additional thousands of Soviet troops have landed at Dairen and Port Arthur in Manchuria were publicized today by high Chinese military circles but were unconfirmed by other sources here.

The troops reportedly were shipped from Vladivostok. The Chinese sources said this was further indication the Russians intend to stay in Manchuria.

As correspondents' reports of complete Soviet domination of Mukden filtered here, Chinese and foreign observers said they find nothing to indicate any semblance of Soviet withdrawal from Manchuria. They declare that, in fact, the Russians are buying Japanese houses and property and are sending for their families.

Some observers here comment that the Russians are biding their time, awaiting a chance to obtain economic concessions from the Chinese. One informed Chinese expressed the opinion that the Russians want not only part interest in key rail lines (as provided in the Yalta and Moscow agreements) but also in factories along these lines.

Reports reaching Chinhsien from Mukden say that Chinese Communists on three sides of the city are carrying Russian-made sub-machine guns.

Russian troops, according to these reports, number 6,000 to 7,000 as compared with 10,000 Central Government troops in the city.

Ford Motor-CIO Sign Contract

DETROIT, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Ford Motor Company and the CIO United Auto Workers tonight signed a contract calling for an eighteen cent an hour raise for 103,000 Ford workers throughout the nation.

The agreement, subject to ratification by Ford UAW locals and due to run until May 30, 1947, provides both company and union security clauses, according to statements by the two parties.

Ford said it "provides that any employe guilty of instigating, fomenting or actively supporting or giving leadership to illegal work stoppages is subject to discharge. Such cases will not be submitted to regular grievance procedure x x x unless the local union x x x substantiates the contention of the affected employe that he was accused unjustly."

The company said it also contains a provision that "continued failure of an employe to produce on the basis of established standards will be cause for discipline, including discharge."

The union declared the new contract continues the union shop and dues checkoff provisions, while the grievance procedure was streamlined to facilitate speedier handling of such complaints.

The eighteen-cent increase, agreed to Jan. 26 after lengthy negotiations, brings the average Ford production worker to $1.39 an hour, and to $1.37 in the company's other factories. The company security clauses were requested by the company to protect it against unauthorized work stoppages. The increase is retroactive to Jan. 5.

Pauley Considers Suggestion He Withdraw Name

President Truman Says He Still Is Backing Oil Man for Navy Post

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) — Indications tonight were that Edwin W. Pauley will stand pat and not ask President Truman to withdraw his nomination for undersecretary of the navy.

Senator Saltonstall (R-Mass) suggested at a Senate Naval committee hearing today that Pauley withdraw provided the committee clears his name.

At the time Pauley said he would "take that under advisement" but later told a reporter "I am giving consideration to Senator Saltonstall's inquiry, just as I would give consideration to a question or a proposal by any other senator, no more or no less."

A person close to Pauley said later he definitely would not withdraw his name. Pauley could not be reached for confirmation.

But President Truman at a news conference, said he still was backing Pauley.

The examination of the California oil man, formerly Democratic national treasurer, now is in its third week with the end not in sight. Controversy over the appointment has been bitter. The resignation of Interior Secretary Ickes did nothing to ease the situation and President Truman's advisers on Capitol Hill have declared that Pauley cannot be confirmed by the Senate.

Saltonstall asked Pauley to consider the situation faced by him and by the Navy department as a result of the dispute. Then the senator inquired whether, "as a patriotic citizen," Pauley would consider withdrawing his name if the committee gave him a clean bill of health.

"You need not answer that unless you wish," Saltonstall assured him.

Pauley stared at him gravely.

"I would want to take that under-advisement," he said. "I might say that the suggestion is not unique. I have read it in almost every newspaper that I have seen, but I am still here."

Only a few minutes earlier, Pauley had demanded that Senator Tobey (R-NH), his principal cross-examiner, make him a public apology for what Pauley called "vile charges" and "an unjustified smear" concerning his connection with sales of oil to Japan.

11 Nations Discuss Policy for Japan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) — With an admonition from Secretary of State Byrnes that "peace in the Pacific is essential," statesmen of eleven nations began all over again today an attempt to determine Allied policy for ruling Japan.

The new Far Eastern Commission made only a bare start today at an hour-long session in the ornate reception room of the Japanese embassy.

It heard Byrnes declare in a welcoming address that the Allies must maintain "the same unity of action and of purpose that won the war" in order to "root out the seeds of possible future wars, wherever they may be found."

It picked the American delegate, Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, as permanent chairman. It named Nelson T. Johnson, former United States ambassador to China, as secretary general.

French-Spanish Border Will Be Closed by France

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS, Feb. 26 (AP)—The French government, declaring that the present situation in Spain constitutes a "danger for international security," today ordered the French-Spanish border closed, effective Friday, March 1.

The government was reliably reported planning to follow up this "moral gesture" by calling upon the United States and Great Britain to join France in an international crackdown on the regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

French officials admitted that their step alone would be of little practical effect unless accompanied by action in Washington and London.

Informed circles said the French government within the next few days would repeat a suggestion that it made last December that the United States and Britain join in a diplomatic rupture with Spain.

Officials said they counted on Latin American nations following or participating in such a joint action, but added that they did not expect many Latin American states to act independently of the United States.

Should Washington and London refuse, a government spokesman said, France will "probably" ask the United Nations Security Council to take action against the Franco regime as a "threat to international security."

There was no official comment either in Washington or London on the French move. In London, however, qualified diplomatic sources said the British government, under increasing pressure from its own labor party, might be forced to reverse its previous refusal to act against Spain.

One infomant said that the United States last December was reported ready for some kind of diplomatic action against Franco, but that British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin had objected.

Today's French action will halt all rail, postal, telegraph and highway communication with Spain when the French-Spanish Commercial Treaty, signed last September, expires Friday.

Under the accord Spain was to have sent fruit, tin containers for preserving fish, sulphur and iron ore into France, and France was to have shipped Spain phosphate, machine

OPA Announces Price Ceilings on New Chrysler Models

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)—OPA today announced price ceilings for eight additional models of new Chrysler automobiles — all in the eight-cylinder line.

The new ceilings range from $113 to $150 above those for comparable 1942 models. The increases, OPA said, are due largely to allowances of from $98 to $109 for engineering improvement.

Chrysler Saratoga — Three-passenger coupe, $1428 in 1946 and $1315 in 1942; two-door sedan, $1495 and $1355; club coupe, $1516 and $1370; four-door sedan, $1529 and $1395.

Chrysler New Yorker—three passenger coupe, $1520 and $1375; two-door sedan, $1587 and $1420; club coupe, $1590 and $1440; four-door sedan, $1603 and $1465.

These prices do not include federal excise taxes, transportation, preparation and handling charges or optional equipment.

Recording Device Fails To Clear Up Legion-VA Picture

Joint Statement Follows Conference of Bradley and Steele

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)—Gen. Omar N. Bradley, who has been having some differences with National Commander John Stelle of the American Legion, tried to set the record straight today with a recording machine — but all that came out was a noise.

The machine was used to record a two-hour conference today between Bradley and Stelle, with their aides. After the closed session a carefully-phrased joint statement was issued.

But Stelle later gave his own version, and said he believes the Veterans Administration which Bradley heads now "really thinks the American Legion means business."

At this, Bradley's aides wheeled out the recording machine and invited the reporters who had been barred from the meeting to hear just what had been said. But something had gone wrong. The recording turned out to be a lot of noise.

The administration is not modifying its plan to set up contract hospitals for service-connected cases.

It still plans to "take over every army and navy hospital that it can staff and is so located that it can be used."

"We have not as a result of this conference agreed to make more beds available than we had planned."

The states are getting "personnel aid" from the agency, to supervise on the job training of veterans, and will be given as much aid as is needed and is permitted by law."

And on decentralization—the administration's plan has been for accomplishing it "as rapidly as it was humanly possible."

Stelle gave his account of the meeting to a legion rehabilitation conference.

"There are not going to be any contract hospitals except for emergency," he said.

"They are going to utilize every available army and navy hospital.

"I feel certain after we talked today that he (Bradley) had some bad advice in the past."

Stelle told reporters two other points emerged—faster decentralization of administration, and aid to states to prevent on-job training abuses.

The official release after the two-hour meeting of Bradley and Stelle spoke of two possible steps in treatment of veterans:

1. The Veterans Administration will consider temporary disability ratings for veterans pending final handling of their claims. This would be done by doctors working on a fee basis for men "holding discharges on which a disability was noted."

2. Long-term patients in veterans hospitals who require "more custodial than medical care" might be transferred temporarily to outlying hospitals leaving central veterans institutions for emergency cases.

Sheriff Orders Police To Disperse Pickets

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 26 (AP)—Acting Sheriff William J. Morrow today ordered police to disperse pickets from in front of a General Electric Company plant unless the CIO obeys his request to abandon mass picketing.

The order came after pickets, for the second successive day, defied a court injunction banning mass picketing as more than 500 men and women blocked all entrances to the plant.

Tamborini Leading

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 26 (AP) — Unofficial returns tonight from two provinces in Argentina's presidential election gave Jose Tamborini, Democratic Union candidate, 3,148 votes to 1,589 for Juan D. Peron, Labor party leader.

The votes were from twenty-four precincts in San Luis province, generally regarded in pre-election as strongly favoring Tamborini, and ten precincts in San Juan province.

Former War Production Board Chairman Chosen To Take Ickes's Post

INTERIOR CHIEF

JULIUS A. KRUG

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26—(AP)—Julius Albert Krug, who ran the War Production Board through the ending of the war and beginning to reconversion was picked by President Truman today to be secretary of the interior.

It was a surprise selection, announced to a news conference shortly after word of the choice already had leaked out at the Senate. Mr. Truman said Krug, 38-year-old native of Wisconsin, now a Baltimore consultant to private firms, would enter the cabinet March 15.

First there is the matter of confirmation by the Senate, which has stirred up trouble for some Truman nominations. It was one of those appointments, that of Edwin W. Pauley to be undersecretary of the navy, that led to Harold L. Ickes's resignation in a dudgeon as secretary of the interior.

Is Personal Choice

Some western senators, who had wanted a westerner named to the vacancy, expressed surprise and a measure of disappointment at the choice. But none stepped forward immediately with any hints that they might oppose confirmation.

The president said he thought Krug would make an excellent interior secretary because of a great deal of experience in administrative jobs.

"Was it your personal selection?" a reporter inquired.

It happens to be, yes, the chief executive replied with a chuckle.

And, in answer to a question, he said he hadn't told the White House inner circle about the choice until this morning.

He said he had considered a large number of names, including that of Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo). But he said he had decided O'Mahoney was too useful in the Senate, where he has served thirteen years, to be shifted to the cabinet.

Mr. Truman pulled Krug out of private business to run the Interior department much in the manner the late President Roosevelt pulled him out of the navy to become chairman of the War Production Board.

Krug had served as head of the WPB Power Branch and later as deputy director general before he was commissioned a lieutenant commander in the navy early in 1944.

Has Power Background

Mr. Roosevelt let him stay in uniform only a few months, then called him up when a blow-up in WPB produced resignations of Chairman Donald L. Nelson and Vice Chairman Charles E. Wilson.

Krug has a power background. After he was graduated from the university of Wisconsin, he worked

117 Firms, Colleges Are Cited; Baltimore Man Wins Award

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 26 (AP) — An award for their atomic bomb work was presented here tonight to 117 industrial companies, universities and research organizations representing twenty-five different states.

The recipients were largely from the more than 10,000 firms that helped in making the bomb. Tonight's award was the first large-scale recognition of the part that industry took.

The award was a scroll, presented by the McGraw-Hill Publishing Company's Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering Magazine. The scroll was accepted for the men and the industries by Major Gen. Leslie R. Groves, head of the Manhattan Engineer District, who had overall direction of the bomb project.

The general paid special tribute to the chemical industry in the atomic bomb project.

"Let us remember," said the general, "that the real goal is not to outlaw the atomic bomb, but to outlaw war. There is an overwhelming desire for peace in America, but are we sure that in the hearts of other nations and peoples the same desire exists. There can be no half way position. With every desire for good will to the rest of the world, let us approach our own problems with common American horse sense."

Among recipients of the award were:

Maryland—Dr. Robert D. Fowler, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore.

War Veteran Is Killed in Blast

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26. (AP)—The crushed body of Edward Gerrity, 21-year-old war veteran, was carried from the wreckage of his home shortly before 5 p. m. today, nearly four hours after the house was shattered by an explosion of undetermined origin.

Police and firemen found the body, clad only in pajama tops, shorts and socks, in a recess below the basement stairs of the Chevy Chase home at 6109 Nevada avenue, N. W. Police said the youth apparently had gone to the basement, possibly to investigate leaking gas.

The boy's grief stricken parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Gerrity, looked on as the body was carried from the debris.

The mother, who had left the house shortly before the blast, arrived at the scene at 3:15 p. m., accompanied by a friend. Gerrity, a Washington attorney, was at his downtown office when notified of the explosion. A daughter, Mary Ellen Gerrity, 15, was at school.

The youth had been released from the army air forces only last Oct. 15, and was planning to leave in a few days for New Haven, Conn., to re-enter Yale university. He had been a radio gunner with the Fifteenth air force in Europe with the rank of sergeant and had flown six missions. He had been in the army twenty-nine months.

The explosion, which shattered windows in nearby houses, was heard for a radius of several blocks. The force of the blast collapsed the two-story frame house and tossed the heavy wooden front porch ten feet onto the lawn. A fire started immediately but soon was brought under control.

Threat of Transit Strike Averted In New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—(AP)—The threat of a paralyzing strike among New York city's 34,000 transit workers ended today, less than twelve hours before a deadline set by Michael J. Quill, president of the CIO Transport Workers Union.

Announcing a walkout had been averted, Mayor William O'Dwyer said the union had withdrawn its major demand—that it be recognized by the city as executive bargaining agent for the transportation workers.

The mayor's announcement climaxed a fast-paced series of eleventh-hour peace efforts that brought CIO President Philip Murray from Washington for conferences with city and union representatives.

Up to the last minute the city had gone full-steam ahead with extraordinary emergency measures designed to meet a crisis and keep transit facilities in operation for an estimated 3,500,000 daily riders.

Quill, whose union claims 20,000 of the transit workers as members had threatened to call a strike any hour after midnight tonight unless his requests for bargaining rights and a $2-a-day wage increase were granted.

O'Dwyer said he had reached an "understanding" with Murray that:

1. The bargaining demand would be withdrawn by the union.

2. He (O'Dwyer) would appoint a special committee, headed by Arthur S. Meyer, chairman of the state mediation board, to study "the working conditions, wages and labor relations between the workers and board of transportation of the city of New York."

3. Officers of the union would recommend to their membership the "recession of the strike call." (Union members had empowered their officers to call the strike).

Game Ends in Tragedy For Baltimore Brothers

BALTIMORE, Feb. 26 (AP) — A game of "cowboy and Indians" ended in tragedy today when brush and grass on a neighborhood lot caught fire causing the death of a four-year-old boy and critical burns to his two-year-old brother.

Larry E. Meisner died when his cowboy suit was set afire by burning underbrush on the lot in the rear of his home. The origin of the fire has not been determined.

His younger brother, Wayne, received first, second and third degree burns. Wayne, also in a cowboy suit, toddled into the burning grass while a neighbor, who first discovered the fire, attempted to smother the flames enveloping Larry by rolling him on the ground.

Pay Increase to Packing House Workers To Boost Price of Meat

By HAROLD W. WARD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) — A sixteen-cent hourly pay increase for 131,000 packing house employes was approved today under the government's new wage-price policy, and OPA said it would boost the family meat bill about one and one-half per cent.

The Wage Stabilization Board, clothed with new powers to approve wage increases under the presidential policy, set its first industry-wide wage pattern. It was based on a federal fact-finding board's recommended sixteen-cent increase for employes of eleven government-seized plants of the "Big Five" Packers—Swift, Armour, Wilson, Cudahy and John Morrell.

The Agriculture department has been operating thep lants since a strike of CIO-Packinghouse Workers and AFL Meat Cutters threatened to shut off the nation's meat supply.

To make possible the pay increase, OPA authorized a boost in price ceilings which—when worked out to retail levels—will add an estimated one and one-half per cent to the family budget for meat.

Whether the decision would settle the original wage dispute remained to be seen. An industry official here said the price increase was about twenty-five per cent short of what the packers believed they should have.

The American Meat Institute in a statement in Chicago said the price adjustments "are distinctly inadequate for many companies and do nothing to curb the growing black market which is taking over, at the expense of consumers, more and more of the beef business from legitimate operators; forcing them to curtail their operations and in some cases to close."

An Agriculture department spokesman said the OPA was passing along all of the wage increase to the consumer. The fact-finding board had said the industry could

HEAVY MACHINERY IS REMOVED TO RUSSIA FROM MANCHURIA

By SPENCER DAVIS

MUKDEN, Feb. 23 (Delayed) (AP)—Some of the heavy machinery that made Manchuria a Japanese arsenal has been removed to Russia under terms of a Big Three agreement, the Soviet commandant of Mukden stated today. The agreement was reached at Yalta or Berlin—"it might have been either," he said.

(This was the first authoritative confirmation of persistent rumors that the Russians were seizing Japanese industries as war booty, and the first hint that such a policy—if such it is—might have had its inception with the big three.)

(Secretary of State Byrnes told a news conference in Washington, however, that as far as he knew there never was a big three agreement permitting Russia to withdraw Japanese industrial equipment.)

Mukden, the greatest city in the Manchurian arsenal, is a ghost town today. Hundreds of former Japanese war factories lie idle, vacant of both men and machines.

The Soviet commandant, Maj. Gen. Andrei Kovtoun-Stankevitch, said only "perhaps" when asked if the Russians had shipped off any of Mukden's machinery. But he was more specific as to Manchuria as a whole.

Nine American and British correspondents asked the general at a press conference about the reported stripping of Japanese factories and what, in the Russian view, constituted war booty.

"As far as that is concerned," Kovtoun-Stankevitch replied, "according to the decision of the Big Three we could not leave it here so it happens that some has been taken out."

Events of the past six months in Mukden, nonetheless, appeared to have shattered any hope China's Central Government may have had of taking over a ready-made industrial empire in Manchuria.

Mukden has been subjected to uncontrolled looting by Chinese mobs reacting from Japanese exploitation for fourteen years, and apparently to selective stripping.

Vital Phases of Housing Program Are Being Fought, Wyatt Asserts

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26. (AP) — Housing Administrator Wilson Wyatt declared today that an "integrated" lobby is battling vital phases of the administration program for 2,700,000 new homes by 1948.

He told a news conference a telegram barrage had been launched at Congress by organizations seeking to have "price ceilings raised all over the lot."

Both branches of Congress were busy on the housing program.

The Senate voted a $410,000,000 authorization to finance removal of wartime structures to sites where homes are needed and conversion of barracks and other buildings. The measure, designed to provide 200,000 temporary homes for veterans, now goes to the House.

The House opened debate on a bill dealing with residential price controls and subsidies to promote construction with three Republicans assailing it.

Rep. Sumner (R-Ill) declared that "the communistic Patman-Wyatt housing program" attempts "to extend OPA's communistic controls." Rep. Smith (R-Ohio) likewise declared it "communistic" and said it would allow "bureaucrats to seize the home building industry." Rep. Brown (R-Ohio) contended it would give Wyatt "dictatorial powers."

Rep. Patman (D-Tex), sponsoring the bill, replied that it aims to provide homes for veterans instead of permitting the use of scarce materials for "amusement places and honky-tonks."

Meanwhile the National Association of Home Builders, in convention at Chicago, received a proposed resolution from its president, Joseph E. Merrion, urging that the Patman bill be deferred for further study and saying it "would enmesh the industry in red tape."

More than 5,000 Vets Get Free Y Memberships

Complimentary Memberships Are for Three Months, Sisson Says

Central YMCA has presented more than 5,000 complimentary three-month memberships to veterans of World War II to date, Robert L. Sisson, general secretary, said last night in his report to the board of directors.

Sisson told the directors that war veterans know the value of the YMCA because of their contacts with the USO at home and abroad during the war. He said he anticipates a large number of veterans who received the complimentary memberships will take out memberships for the remaining nine months at the expiration of the three-month period.

Serving Veterans

Central YMCA is co-operating with other agencies in serving veterans returning from service to their country, Sisson stated, and pointed out that the secretarial staff is counseling daily with men who have problems and is directing them to the proper authorities.

Sisson said he conferred with Edmund S. Burke, president, with regard to a tentative program for 1946, and pointed out that those plans, to be submitted to the board of directors, include elimination of the mortgage debt, summer camping, formation of an industrial membership committee, increase of sustaining memberships, dormitory improvements, and reconditioning of the second floor dining room.

Reports on Activities

Other matters covered in Sisson's report included playing host to Potomac Edison Company employes, the Model Airplane club, Church Bowling league, Young Businessmen's club, Christian Youth federation, Young Businesswomen's club, youth craft program, Sunday School Basketball league, "Y" Senior league, Lifesaving, Gold Medal basketball tournament, the YMCA Ladies Auxiliary and the Eastern Regional Membership Conference of the YMCA which Sisson attended.

Sisson said a resolution to Lloyd Rawlings, immediate past president, will be prepared by C. William Gilchrist and will be formally presented to Rawlings at a dinner meeting on March 19. Rawlings served the Y as president for two years.

Nehru Urges Indians To Seek Freedom By Peaceful Means

BOMBAY, Feb. 26 (AP)—Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru tonight urged Indians to seek independence by peaceful means, and asserted that the proper leaders would give the signal if revolution should become necessary.

India's troubles cannot be solved unless the British quit the country, Nehru declared at a huge mass meeting.

He called pon "every Indian in the army, air force, navy or police force to refuse to shoot or harm his brother Indian on orders of the Englishman."

Nehru, Mahandas K. Gandhi's heir to leadership in Congress party affairs, condemned last week's anti-British rioting, and declared "counter-revolutionaries" who were destroying their own goal of independence had led the Bombay disorders in which 200 to 300 persons were killed.

Pay Increases Are Recommended for All Army and Navy Men

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) — The army and navy recommended to Congress today a flat twenty per cent increase in pay and allowances of officers and men of all the services.

Secretary of War Patterson and Secretary of the Navy Forrestal said in a joint announcement the purpose is to bring pay schedules "more in line with the increased living costs" and also to provide additional incentive to recruiting.

stances and that owners refuse to rent rooms and small apartments because they must do so at a loss. Caleb J. White, rent inspector for the Cumberland office, stated he would welcome assistance from McCormick's office.

A number of local veterans have told Wilt of difficulty in finding places to live, and Wilt said yesterday that the help of Morrow and Condron will be welcomed.

Morrow is also veterans relations advisor for the state and is a discharged veteran of World War II. He served as a captain in the infantry. Prior to his army service he was secretary to United States District Judge William Coleman.

It was explained at the OPA office yesterday that the two Baltimore officials are interested in hearing complaints from veterans or other civilians on price or rent violations. But their visit here is primarily to check into the complaint about rent ceilings and its bearing on the reported housing shortage.

County Will Pay

Helfrich property beyond the eastern end of the playground.

Whitworth pointed out that a proposal was presented to the board last year for the sale of thirty-nine lots along Holland street, east of the playground, owned by the county. The board members are in favor of the plan but it will be necessary to have an act passed by the Maryland assembly before the lots can be sold and used as home sites. It was pointed out that the lots may be sold for at least $1,000 apiece, bringing in $40,000 to the county, and in addition the taxes from properties that may be built in the area will result in more revenue to the county.

The North End Playground is operated by an association of residents of that area, it was cited, but all the land is still owned by the county. In event the thirty-nine lots are sold, the playground would not be affected.

"Bookmobile" Approval Urged

The commissioners yesterday received another communication urging the approval of a proposed "bookmobile," or county library, when the next levy is approved. The communication came from the Mt. Royal Parent-Teacher Association which voted unanimously to indorse the proposal.

The letter, signed by Mrs. Garland Paxton, secretary of the organization, stated in part, "we feel the benefits derived from this will far overshadow any cost to the county or to the people who pay taxes, and we hope that you men are in the position to give the county this wonderful thing and will not hesitate one minute when the time comes to take action."

The commissioners yesterday were requested by E. R. Cotton, engineer secretary of the Interstate Commission of the Potomac River Basin, to attend an important meeting Friday, March 1, at city hall at 3 o'clock, to discuss ways and means of persuading the federal agencies to resume work suspended in 1942.

The letter declared, "The need of the dam is great enough to demand an early completion."

Road Improvement Asked

The commissioners also received an invitation to attend the thirteenth banquet of the LaVale Volunteer Fire Department which will be held tomorrow at 6:30 o'clock at the firemen's hall, LaVale.

Mrs. Allen McDaniels and Mrs. Ernest Barnes asked the county board to improve the Knob road, near Nave's crossroad, off the Bedford road. The request was referred to County Engineer John H. Carscaden for investigation.

The board granted the request of Carl Amtower for a tax exemption on a Virginia avenue property owned by Grace Methodist church. Under state law, property owned by churches is not subject to taxes.

county, 775 are so aided. Dependent children under 18 now cared for in the state number 9,000, a reduction from 18,000. Of 28,000 in Allegany, 511 are now aided.

General public assistance is supported fifty per cent by the federal government and the rest by the states, it was noted. These are the residual groups not covered by Social Security. In some fields, as in support of the blind, federal aid runs fifty per cent, state aid a third and the rest local.

The state department has lately received added burdens, Patterson noted, some of them real headaches, especially supervision of the four state training schools, one of which at Cheltenham, is to be supplanted with a direly needed new plant.

Case Load Pyramids

Patterson explained how the obligations of public assistance gradually increase as the result of a pyramiding of the case load, for which reason it was necessary to ask the governor for added funds and for him to dig them up from other state sources.

The work of the Maryland Youth Commission is exceedingly important, Patterson said. It is to ascertain facts concerning the children of the state, collecting and interpreting them to learn the needs to be met, the services available, particularly local, and the utilization of these services by those for whom they are designed.

It will review legislation pertaining to children and youth, appropriations made for them, appraise the availability and adequacy and accessibility of all services within the state, to consult with public and private agencies about them, formulate proposals for action, report findings to the public, maintain contact with federal agencies, encourage and foster local community planning and action and, in general, provide a center of information on chidren and youth, and promote action in their behalf.

Work of the commission is to be supplemented by citizens' organizations.

Believe in Insurance

Bills pending in Congress for medical care and extension of Social Security were briefly described. In urging further coverage of the latter, Patterson said state welfare officials believe in the philosophy of insurance instead of direct aid.

Patterson has been at the head of state public welfare the last ten years. Thrice he has been president of the American Welfare Federation. He was a founder and first president of the local Rotary club and served as governor of the One Hundred and Eightieth Rotary International district.

Telephone Company Employe Gets Award

Catherine R. Shertzer, an employe in the Cumberland office of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City, received this month a two-star emblem in recognition of ten years of service with the company.

During February, fifty-nine employes of the company in Maryland received emblems. They had an aggregate of 755 years of service.

Dies in Florida

Cumberland police were attempting last evening to contact Mrs. Bessie Parsons Robinson, this city, to inform her that her father died in Florida. Funeral services will be held Saturday in Williamsburg, Pa.

Authorities here said Mrs. Robinson was asked to call her mother in Hollidaysburg, Pa.

Isaac Coblentz, Peru, Ind., Dies Of Heart Attack

Former Head of Brethren Home Had Lived Here Six Months

Isaac Coblentz, 67, Peru, Ind., died suddenly yesterday afternoon at 5:15 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Arthur Scrogum, 114 North Centre street.

Mr. Coblentz, who had made his home with the Rev. and Mrs. Scrogum here for the past six months, had been in failing health for about three years. Death resulted from a heart attack while Mr. Coblentz was at work in the basement of the local home.

For the past fourteen years, Mr. Coblentz had been superintendent of the Church of the Brethren Old Folks Home, Fostoria, Ohio.

He was a native of Miami county, Indiana, a son of the late Joshua and Susan Smith Coblentz.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Anna Rairigh Coblentz, he is survived by another daughter, Mrs. David Landis, Continental, Ohio; six grandchildren, one great grandchild and a half-sister, Mrs. Dora York, Kokomo, Ind.

The body will be at the Hafer funeral home here until late this evening when it will be shipped to the Eichenberry funeral home, Peru, Ind.

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at Pipe Creek Church of the Brethren, near Peru, by the pastor, the Rev. Thomas Shiveley.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES

Henry Vogel, 73, a former resident of this city, died suddenly yesterday of a heart attack in Detroit, Mich.

He was a nephew of the late Henry Vogel of this city, and came to the United States with Mr. Vogel sixty-one years ago.

Mr. Vogel was a former city employe and lived here until twenty years ago when he moved to Detroit to make his home.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Mayme Vogel, he is survived by four daughters, Miss Katherine Vogel and Mrs. Roy Lovett, both of Detroit; Mrs. Edna Riley, Baltimore, and Mrs. Victor R. Harshman, South Bend, Ind., and one son, Fred Yeager, Detroit.

Funeral services and burial will be in Detroit.

JOHN AYERS RITES

Funeral services for John Francis Ayers, 61, retired Baltimore and Ohio Railroad conductor, who died Saturday at his home, 417 Broadway after an illness of three years, were conducted yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Kight funeral home.

The Rev. Hixon T. Bowersox, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, officiated and interment was in Hillcrest cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers were William Britt, F. L. Reed and W. D. Brown, of Cumberland Division No. 260, Order of Railway Conductors, and Fred Sine, Joseph Klavan and William Short, of Chosen Friends No. 34, I.O.O.F.

Active pallbearers, members of Rockwood Lodge No. 1140, I.O.O.F., Rockwood, Pa., were C. C. Weimer, O. A. Laraway, L. F. Zembower, W. F. Zembower, R. D. Mickey and L. J. Shrock.

DILFER RITES

Funeral services for John Walter Dilfer, Jr., 24, who died at his home, 920 Piedmont avenue, Saturday afternoon, were conducted yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Stein funeral home.

The Rev. H. Hall Sharp pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran church, officiated at the rites for the World War II veteran who was discharged from the army air forces about a week ago. Interment was in the church cemetery.

Military rites were accorded by Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion. Pallbearers were Wesley J. Abrams, Samuel Brown, Claude Deal, Charles Mulligan, John Becker and Joseph M. Fradiska.

The color guard was formed by George Cline, Lemuel Bowen, Truman Fuller, Roland Showers and F. Earl Brode. Fradiska sounded taps.

Members of the firing squad were Harold Underdonk, Robert Curry, William Bantz, Donald Humbertson, Thomas Dawson, Eugene Mulligan and John McCarty.

JAMES S. McCUE

Mrs. Lawrence I. Matt, 804 Maplewood lane, has received word of the death of her uncle, James S. McCue, about 71, at his home, 172 Chestnut street, Leetonia, Ohio, Sunday evening.

Funeral services will be held this morning at 9 o'clock in St. Patrick's Catholic church, Leetonia, and interment will be in the church cemetery.

Also surviving are his widow, Mrs. Mary Kreitzburg McCue, a former resident of Frostburg; two children, Ignatius M. and Teresa McCue, both at home; one brother, John McCue, and a sister, Miss Mayme McCue, both of Leetonia.

Mrs. Jennie M. Kreitzberg and Mrs. Paul Mouse, both of this city, and George Kreitzberg, Frostburg, will attend the services.

MRS. DICKEN RITES

Funeral services for Mrs. Rachel Dicken, 73, wife of Lon Dicken, Valley road, who died early yesterday morning in Allegany hospital, will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Kight funeral home.

The Rev. Edwin W. Saylor, pastor of First Baptist church, will officiate and interment will be in Zion Memorial cemetery.

A native of Flintstone, Mrs. Dicken was a daughter of the late James and Eliza Writter Browning. She had resided here most of her life, and was a member of Prosperity Christian church, Flintstone.

Besides her husband, she is survived by four sons, Presley and Robert F. Dicken, both of Valley Road; Herman Dicken, Baltimore, and Werner R. Dicken, this city; two daughters, Mrs. Lewis Walker, Ridgeley, and Mrs. Robert Bobo, Valley Road, and fourteen grandchildren.

MRS. METGER RITES

Funeral services for Mrs. Lillie Catherine Vogtman Metger, widow of Harvey E. Metger, who died Sunday at her home, 55 Knobley street, Ridgeley, were conducted yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home.

The Rev. Frederick Oberkircher, pastor of Zion Evangelical and Reformed church, officiated and interment was in Hillcrest cemetery.

Pallbearers were Jesse H. Simmons, Walter Bittner, Owen Hughes, Roy Ridgeley, Henry Schriver, III, and Leroy Dailey.

WINS DISCHARGE-REJOINS SERVICE

LONACONING, Feb. 26—Thomas J. Richardson, (left) son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Richardson, 130 Jackson street, who served in the army for three years, has been honorably discharged. His brother, Jackie Richardson, 18, (right) a veteran of twenty months with the merchant marine, has enlisted for eighteen months, unassigned. Thomas fought in Europe for twenty-eight months with a combat engineer unit attached to the First army and saw service in Normandy, France and Germany. He holds the European theater ribbon with five battle stars and the Good Conduct medal. Jackie, who wears the South Pacific ribbon, served in Australia, New Guinea, India and Guadalcanal.

Monsman Suggests Longer Waiting Period To Curb Hasty Marriages

BEL AIR, Md., Feb. 26 (AP) — Asserting the state should do something to cut down the number of broken homes, Gerald Monsman recommended in an address last night that the present forty-eight-hour wait between application and issuance of a marriage license be lengthened to several weeks.

Monsman, counsel for the Legal Aid Bureau of Baltimore City, told the Business and Professional Women's Club of Harford county that the lengthening of the period would cut down on hasty marriages and give persons involved time to obtain medical examination and advice and attend lectures on the responsibilities and duties of marriage.

He further recommended that a certificate of attendance at such lectures should be demanded by those issuing the licenses.

"As long as the state shows so much interest in who should and should not get divorces, it is equally its right to show interest in who gets married," he said. "In that way, the state could prevent those matches that are most likely to lead to divorce."

He told the group he was shocked that the Legal Aid Bureau had exactly twice as many divorce cases in 1944 and 1945 as in the two preceding years.

In addition to the changes recommended in marriage laws, Monsman suggested the alteration of the divorce and adoption laws of the state.

He advocated the formation of a domestic relations court, where marriage problems could be ironed out, and declared that a more lenient grant of partial divorces would lead to more reconciliations.

Monsman also recommended that the forty-eight states ease up on present strict extradition laws to make it easier and less expensive to apprehend husbands who desert their wives and children.

Alimony required of a husband is inadequate, he said.

Adoption of children, Monsman stated, is much too easy and leads to many a round peg being put into a square hole. He suggested the state set up a commission to investigate each child in relation to its proposed foster home in a "scientific" manner to prevent a child with a high intelligence quotient being placed in a low IQ home or vice versa.

No Change in Plans For Phone Strike

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26, (AP) — Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach conferred with President Joseph A. Beirne of the National Federation of Telephone Workers today but said there was "no change" in the union's plans for a nationwide strike March 7.

Schwellenbach told reporters he would arrange a meeting with Vice-President C. F. Craig of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company tomorrow, if possible, to "get the company's side of the picture."

The secretary said he would discuss with Craig the possibility of using a settlement at A. T. and T. as a pattern for the industry. Beirne said 1,700 long lines operators were employed by the A. A. and T.

The union is negotiating with companies throughout the United States and the strike, if it comes, will be on a nationwide basis, Beirne told reporters. A single settlement which could be used as a pattern would be helpful, however, Schwellenbach suggested.

Agreements already reached call for wage increases of $3 to $8 a week, but Beirne said there were few of the higher ones and none of them would set a pattern for the industry.

Ondi's Sentence Is Reduced to 5 Years

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)—The War department disclosed today that the wartime court martial sentence of seventy-five years' imprisonment against Pfc. Alex Ondi, 29, of Cleveland, had been ordered reduced to a five-year term.

Undersecretary of War Kenneth C. Royall announced the action was taken Feb. 11 by the War department upon recommendation of an army clemency board.

The department said Ondi was tried and convicted of twice refusing in January, 1945, a direct order to go on patrol with other members of his unit. The outfit at the time was under enemy shell and sniper fire in a front line position in Luxembourg.

Ondi last summer was assigned to a pre-honor company at the army discipline barracks at Green Haven, N. Y., under procedure which would have led to restoration of duty, the department said.

However by his own request, the department added, he was relieved from that assignment in October and subsequently his case went before a clemency board automatically for review.

Royall said the reduction of sentence was normal procedure and "not due to pressure from any source."

Operation Completed Despite Explosion

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) — Doctors and nurses calmly completed an operation here today and wheeled their patient to safety after an anesthetic gas tank exploded, shattering a skylight and showering the operating room with glass.

The accident occurred at Providence hospital.

"It was nothing less than a miracle that none of us was hurt," one of the physicians said.

Municipal Strike In Houston Ends

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 26 (AP)—The bitterly contested seven-day-old strike of 700 municipal service workers ended today in a compromise agreement climaxed by the union spokesman good-naturedly hugging the mayor.

But until Mayor Otis Massey modified a previous stand and agreed to meet with American Federation of Labor leaders the air was tense. Five thousand industrial and other workers who remained away from their jobs to demonstrate in behalf of the city employes had gathered about the city hall when the agreement was announced. Once they booed the mayor when he appeared at a window.

Under the agreement, city employes who had been fired yesterday when they ignored a city back-to-work ultimatum will return to their jobs tomorrow morning with full seniority and civil service rights unimpaired.

The city agreed further to "correct" salaries if a civil service commission survey shows they are too low.

West Side P-T.A. Raises $216.42 For Playground

The West Side Parent-Teacher Association received the report on the recent party and voted to change the by-laws at the meeting last evening at the school, with Mrs. Ralph Isminger presiding.

Mrs. J. T. Johnson reported that $216.42 had been raised on the card party held earlier in the month and will be used to purchase playground equipment. The committee to change the by-laws will be appointed later. Routine business was also transacted.

The program included a group of songs, by Mrs. Blanch Stanton Gunter, who also directed the group singing. Mrs. Samuel T. Weatherholt was at the piano.

A radio script, commemorating the founding of the Parent-Teacher Association, forty-nine years ago, featured the program. It was entitled, "With Faith and Hope." David Steele was the announcer and Mrs. Florence Whitfield was the narrator. Others taking part were Mrs. Ross Prysock, Mrs. George Remer and Mrs. Brooke Starcher.

The program committee included Mrs. Steele, chairman, Miss Nan Livingstone and Mrs. Lydia Acher. Preceding the meeting teachers met the parents. A social hour concluded the evening and refreshments were served. The George Washington motif was carried out with miniature flags. The home room mothers were hostesses with Mrs. Starcher, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Guy Kave, Mrs. Harry Lannon, Mrs. Carl Ziler, Mrs. George Shaffer and Mrs. Ray Boyer.

Miss Livingstone's third grade won the $5 award for the most parents present.

Four New Cardinals To Return Next Month

ROME, Feb. 26 (AP) — The Catholic church's four new cardinals from the United States planned today to leave for home early next month. Two of them will interrupt the trip for fetes in their honor in foreign countries.

Francis Cardinal Spellman, of New York, whose plane leaves here March 2, will spend that night in Madrid where he will attend a state dinner given by Generalissimo Franco for him. Emmanuel Cardinal Cerejeira, patriarch of Lisbon and four new Spanish cardinals. He will be feted the next night by Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar in Lisbon.

John Cardinal Glennon, of St. Louis, traveling with Samuel Cardinal Stritch, of Chicago and Edward Cardinal Mooney, of Detroit, will leave here March 4 by way of Paris and Shannon, Eire, and will stay over to attend a dinner in Dublin given by Prime Minister Eamon de-Valera.

Nation's Butter Supplies Continue To Drop

CHICAGO, Feb. 26 (AP)—The nation's butter supplies have dropped to less than 15,000,000 pounds and the American Butter Institute today estimated this is only about two days ahead.

D. K. Howe, president of the institute, asserted at Omaha that this supply, down sharply from 50,000,000 at the first of the year, was "dangerously low."

As of February 23, the government estimated butter stocks at principal storage points at 14,500,000 pounds and said a considerable portion of that belongs to the government.

"It's getting worse and something must be done immediately," Howe said. He contended the OPA policy discourages production of butter, commenting:

"There is a ceiling on everything but sweet cream and butter fat is going to products other than butter."

men were wounded when they ventured into Mink Slide. A negro also was wounded.

Meanwhile, authorities checked incoming long distance telephone calls which they said were intended for negro leaders.

A highway patrol officer, who declined use of his name, said several calls had been received during the day at the A. J. Morton and Son Funeral Home. Among other places, he said, the calls came from Columbus, Ga., Chicago, and Nashville.

Firearms Confiscated

Bomar said the occupants of the place offered no resistance but that the patrolmen were fired upon from a dance hall across the street as they approached. The fire was answered by blasts from tommy guns.

The twelve men, Bomar declared, were charged with assault with intent to commit murder. Four shotguns, two small calibre rifles and a pistol were found in their possession, along with several opened bottles of whisky, the commissioner reported.

At the meeting of the militiamen and patrolmen at which he ordered the firearms search, commissioner Bomar told the group: "It is your duty to protect both the colored and white races." He added:

"There is no doubt in my mind but that part of this was brought about by some whites under the influence of liquor. And some of the colored persons also have been under the influence of liquor."

The nominee declared his company, Petrol Corporation, had sold no oil at all directly to Japan, and that in June, 1938, which he pointed out was forty-two months before Pearl Harbor, he instructed his firm not to sell any oil which might be transferred later to Japan.

Pauley complained that Tobey had charged him with "implementing Japan's supplies of oil as a potential enemy."

Saltonstall spoke up to assure Pauley that he did not have "the slightest feeling" he did anything wrong in connection with the sale of oil to Japan. There was no immediate response from Tobey.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PARTIALLY APPROVES STRIKE CONTROL BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) —The United States Chamber of Commerce indorsed the labor peace goals of the Case strike control bill today but withheld approval of its methods.

Otto Seyferth, chairman of the Chamber's Committee on Labor Relations, presented its position. He testified in Senate Labor Committee hearings on the House-approved and the union-opposed measure of Rep. Case (R-SD).

Seyferth urged against hasty action and said industrial peace will come only with:

1. "Acceptance of mutuality of interest" by employer and employe in the success of an enterprise.

2. Recognition by management that workers have the right to organize and bargain collectively.

3. Acceptance by the workers of "the principle that full and efficient production requires freedom for management to operate without the assumption of managerial functions by labor leaders."

The United Mineworkers, through counsel Wally Hopkins, told the committee that the Case bill would bring "chaos to the house of government," would wrongfully imperil labor's right to strike and encourage labor strife.

Police Probe Death Of Former Serviceman

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)—The body of Andrew Nault, 38-year-old former serviceman, was found today lying face down in a pool of blood on a day bed in his luxuriously furnished apartment here. There was a gash in the man's right temple.

Police said the body was discovered by Robert L. Peterson, 26, Navy department employe, who described himself as a friend of Nault. They quoted Peterson as saying he had the day off and called at the apartment. He told police that he let himself inside when his knocks were not answered.

A coroner's inquest was ordered to determine the cause of Nault's death. They said the man apparently had been dead for several hours.

Mrs. George Judy, 37, Shaw, W. Va., Dies

She was a native of Harman, W. Va., a daughter of Trice Lantz, St. George, and the late Lettie Arbogast Lantz, who died two weeks ago.

Besides her husband and her father, she is survived by the following children, Mrs. Helen Bard, and Junior Judy, both of Keyser, W. Va., and Eugene, Ray, Lonzo, Glenda, Linda, George and Nancy, all at home.

The body is at the Minnear funeral home, Parsons. Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 2 p. m. in Leadmine church by the Rev. Daniel Spade, Brethren minister. Interment will be in Pine Grove cemetery.

Odakonya Girls Elect Officers for 1946

Melva Hardinger was elected president of the Odakonya Camp Fire Girls at the meeting at the Union Grove Methodist parsonage. Other officers to serve with her are Nancy Purnell, secretary; Jane Baker, treasurer and Joann Blamble, publicity chairman.

A new member, Marion Twigg, was accepted; and plans were formulated for a play and an exhibit to be held in May. Nancy Purnell and Joann Blamble are in charge of arrangements.

Officers will be installed March 2 at the parsonage. After the business session the group will make rag dolls and animals for children of Labrador.

More than 5,000 Vets Get Free Y Memberships

Complimentary Memberships Are for Three Months, Sisson Says

Central YMCA has presented more than 5,000 complimentary three-month memberships to veterans of World War II to date, Robert L. Sisson, general secretary, said last night in his report to the board of directors.

Sisson told the directors that war veterans know the value of the YMCA because of their contacts with the USO at home and abroad during the war. He said he anticipates a large number of veterans who received the complimentary memberships will take out memberships for the remaining nine months at the expiration of the three-month period.

Serving Veterans

Central YMCA is co-operating with other agencies in serving veterans returning from service to their country, Sisson stated, and pointed out that the secretarial staff is counseling daily with men who have problems and is directing them to the proper authorities.

Sisson said he conferred with Edmund S. Burke, president, with regard to a tentative program for 1946, and pointed out that those plans, to be submitted to the board of directors, include elimination of the mortgage debt, summer camping, formation of an industrial membership committee, increase of sustaining memberships, dormitory improvements, and reconditioning of the second floor dining room.

Reports on Activities

Other matters covered in Sisson's report included playing host to Potomac Edison Company employes, the Model Airplane club, Church Bowling league, Young Businessmen's club, Christian Youth federation, Young Businesswomen's club, youth craft program, Sunday School Basketball league, "Y" Senior league, Lifesaving, Gold Medal basketball tournament, the YMCA Ladies Auxiliary and the Eastern Regional Membership Conference of the YMCA which Sisson attended.

Sisson said a resolution to Lloyd Rawlings, immediate past president, will be prepared by C. William Gilchrist and will be formally presented to Rawlings at a dinner meeting on March 19. Rawlings served the Y as president for two years.

Nehru Urges Indians To Seek Freedom By Peaceful Means

BOMBAY, Feb. 26 (AP)—Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru tonight urged Indians to seek independence by peaceful means, and asserted that the proper leaders would give the signal if revolution should become necessary.

India's troubles cannot be solved unless the British quit the country, Nehru declared at a huge mass meeting.

He called pon "every Indian in the army, air force, navy or police force to refuse to shoot or harm his brother Indian on orders of the Englishman."

Nehru, Mahandas K. Gandhi's heir to leadership in Congress party affairs, condemned last week's anti-British rioting, and declared "counter-revolutionaries" who were destroying their own goal of independence had led the Bombay disorders in which 200 to 300 persons were killed.

Pay Increases Are Recommended for All Army and Navy Men

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) — The army and navy recommended to Congress today a flat twenty per cent increase in pay and allowances of officers and men of all the services.

Secretary of War Patterson and Secretary of the Navy Forrestal said in a joint announcement the purpose is to bring pay schedules "more in line with the increased living costs" and also to provide additional incentive to recruiting.

stances and that owners refuse to rent rooms and small apartments because they must do so at a loss. Caleb J. White, rent inspector for the Cumberland office, stated he would welcome assistance from McCormick's office.

A number of local veterans have told Wilt of difficulty in finding places to live, and Wilt said yesterday that the help of Morrow and Condron will be welcomed.

Morrow is also veterans relations advisor for the state and is a discharged veteran of World War II. He served as a captain in the infantry. Prior to his army service he was secretary to United States District Judge William Coleman.

It was explained at the OPA office yesterday that the two Baltimore officials are interested in hearing complaints from veterans or other civilians on price or rent violations. But their visit here is primarily to check into the complaint about rent ceilings and its bearing on the reported housing shortage.

County Will Pay

Helfrich property beyond the eastern end of the playground.

Whitworth pointed out that a proposal was presented to the board last year for the sale of thirty-nine lots along Holland street, east of the playground, owned by the county. The board members are in favor of the plan but it will be necessary to have an act passed by the Maryland assembly before the lots can be sold and used as home sites. It was pointed out that the lots may be sold for at least $1,000 apiece, bringing in $40,000 to the county, and in addition the taxes from properties that may be built in the area will result in more revenue to the county.

The North End Playground is operated by an association of residents of that area, it was cited, but all the land is still owned by the county. In event the thirty-nine lots are sold, the playground would not be affected.

"Bookmobile" Approval Urged

The commissioners yesterday received another communication urging the approval of a proposed "bookmobile," or county library, when the next levy is approved. The communication came from the Mt. Royal Parent-Teacher Association which voted unanimously to indorse the proposal.

The letter, signed by Mrs. Garland Paxton, secretary of the organization, stated in part, "we feel the benefits derived from this will far overshadow any cost to the county or to the people who pay taxes, and we hope that you men are in the position to give the county this wonderful thing and will not hesitate one minute when the time comes to take action."

The commissioners yesterday were requested by E. R. Cotton, engineer secretary of the Interstate Commission of the Potomac River Basin, to attend an important meeting Friday, March 1, at city hall at 3 o'clock, to discuss ways and means of persuading the federal agencies to resume work suspended in 1942.

The letter declared, "The need of the dam is great enough to demand an early completion."

Road Improvement Asked

The commissioners also received an invitation to attend the thirteenth banquet of the LaVale Volunteer Fire Department which will be held tomorrow at 6:30 o'clock at the firemen's hall, LaVale.

Mrs. Allen McDaniels and Mrs. Ernest Barnes asked the county board to improve the Knob road, near Nave's crossroad, off the Bedford road. The request was referred to County Engineer John H. Carscaden for investigation.

The board granted the request of Carl Amtower for a tax exemption on a Virginia avenue property owned by Grace Methodist church. Under state law, property owned by churches is not subject to taxes.

Patterson Outlines

county, 775 are so aided. Dependent children under 18 now cared for in the state number 9,000, a reduction from 18,000. Of 28,000 in Allegany, 511 are now aided.

General public assistance is supported fifty per cent by the federal government and the rest by the states, it was noted. These are the residual groups not covered by Social Security. In some fields, as in support of the blind, federal aid runs fifty per cent, state aid a third and the rest local.

The state department has lately received added burdens, Patterson noted, some of them real headaches, especially supervision of the four state training schools, one of which at Cheltenham, is to be supplanted with a direly needed new plant.

Case Load Pyramids

Patterson explained how the obligations of public assistance gradually increase as the result of a pyramiding of the case load, for which reason it was necessary to ask the governor for added funds and for him to dig them up from other state sources.

The work of the Maryland Youth Commission is exceedingly important, Patterson said. It is to ascertain facts concerning the children of the state, collecting and interpreting them to learn the needs to be met, the services available, particularly local, and the utilization of these services by those for whom they are designed.

It will review legislation pertaining to children and youth, appropriations made for them, appraise the availability and adequacy and accessibility of all services within the state, to consult with public and private agencies about them, formulate proposals for action, report findings to the public, maintain contact with federal agencies, encourage and foster local community planning and action and, in general, provide a center of information on chidren and youth, and promote action in their behalf.

Work of the commission is to be supplemented by citizens' organizations.

Believe in Insurance

Bills pending in Congress for medical care and extension of Social Security were briefly described. In urging further coverage of the latter, Patterson said state welfare officials believe in the philosophy of insurance instead of direct aid.

Patterson has been at the head of state public welfare the last ten years. Thrice he has been president of the American Welfare Federation. He was a founder and first president of the local Rotary club and served as governor of the One Hundred and Eightieth Rotary International district.

Telephone Company Employe Gets Award

Catherine R. Shertzer, an employe in the Cumberland office of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City, received this month a two-star emblem in recognition of ten years of service with the company.

During February, fifty-nine employes of the company in Maryland received emblems. They had an aggregate of 755 years of service.

Dies in Florida

Cumberland police were attempting last evening to contact Mrs. Bessie Parsons Robinson, this city, to inform her that her father died in Florida. Funeral services will be held Saturday in Williamsburg, Pa.

Authorities here said Mrs. Robinson was asked to call her mother in Hollidaysburg, Pa.

Announce Birth

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Edmondson, Narrows Park, announce the birth of a son in Allegany hospital yesterday morning.

Isaac Coblentz, Peru, Ind., Dies Of Heart Attack

Former Head of Brethren Home Had Lived Here Six Months

Isaac Coblentz, 67, Peru, Ind., died suddenly yesterday afternoon at 5:15 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Arthur Scrogum, 114 North Centre street.

Mr. Coblentz, who had made his home with the Rev. and Mrs. Scrogum here for the past six months, had been in failing health for about three years. Death resulted from a heart attack while Mr. Coblentz was at work in the basement of the local home.

For the past fourteen years, Mr. Coblentz had been superintendent of the Church of the Brethren Old Folks Home, Fostoria, Ohio.

He was a native of Miami county, Indiana, a son of the late Joshua and Susan Smith Coblentz.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Anna Rairigh Coblentz, he is survived by another daughter, Mrs. David Landis, Continental, Ohio; six grandchildren, one great grandchild and a half-sister, Mrs. Dora York, Kokomo, Ind.

The body will be at the Hafer funeral home here until late this evening when it will be shipped to the Eichenberry funeral home, Peru, Ind.

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at Pipe Creek Church of the Brethren, near Peru, by the pastor, the Rev. Thomas Shiveley.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES

Henry Vogel, 73, a former resident of this city, died suddenly yesterday of a heart attack in Detroit, Mich.

He was a nephew of the late Henry Vogel of this city, and came to the United States with Mr. Vogel sixty-one years ago.

Mr. Vogel was a former city employe and lived here until twenty years ago when he moved to Detroit to make his home.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Mayme Vogel, he is survived by four daughters, Miss Katherine Vogel and Mrs. Roy Lovett, both of Detroit; Mrs. Edna Riley, Baltimore, and Mrs. Victor R. Harshman, South Bend, Ind., and one son, Fred Yeager, Detroit.

Funeral services and burial will be in Detroit.

JOHN AYERS RITES

Funeral services for John Francis Ayers, 61, retired Baltimore and Ohio Railroad conductor, who died Saturday at his home, 417 Broadway after an illness of three years, were conducted yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Kight funeral home.

The Rev. Hixon T. Bowersox, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, officiated and interment was in Hillcrest cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers were William Britt, F. L. Reed and W. D. Brown, of Cumberland Division No. 260, Order of Railway Conductors, and Fred Sine, Joseph Klavan and William Short, of Chosen Friends No. 34, I.O.O.F.

Active pallbearers, members of Rockwood Lodge No. 1140, I.O.O.F., Rockwood, Pa., were C. C. Weimer, O. A. Laraway, L. F. Zembower, W. F. Zembower, R. D. Mickey and L. J. Shrock.

DILFER RITES

Funeral services for John Walter Dilfer, Jr., 24, who died at his home, 920 Piedmont avenue, Saturday afternoon, were conducted yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Stein funeral home.

The Rev. H. Hall Sharp pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran church, officiated at the rites for the World War II veteran who was discharged from the army air forces about a week ago. Interment was in the church cemetery.

Military rites were accorded by Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion. Pallbearers were Wesley J. Abrams, Samuel Brown, Claude Deal, Charles Mulligan, John Becker and Joseph M. Fradiska.

The color guard was formed by George Cline, Lemuel Bowen, Truman Fuller, Roland Showers and F. Earl Brode. Fradiska sounded taps.

Members of the firing squad were Harold Underdonk, Robert Curry, William Bantz, Donald Humbertson, Thomas Dawson, Eugene Mulligan and John McCarty.

JAMES S. McCUE

Mrs. Lawrence I. Matt, 804 Maplewood lane, has received word of the death of her uncle, James S. McCue, about 71, at his home, 172 Chestnut street, Leetonia, Ohio, Sunday evening.

Funeral services will be held this morning at 9 o'clock in St. Patrick's Catholic church, Leetonia, and interment will be in the church cemetery.

Also surviving are his widow, Mrs. Mary Kreitzburg McCue, a former resident of Frostburg; two children, Ignatius M. and Teresa McCue, both at home; one brother, John McCue, and a sister, Miss Mayme McCue, both of Leetonia.

Mrs. Jennie M. Kreitzberg and Mrs. Paul Mouse, both of this city, and George Kreitzberg, Frostburg, will attend the services.

MRS. DICKEN RITES

Funeral services for Mrs. Rachel Dicken, 73, wife of Lon Dicken, Valley road, who died early yesterday morning in Allegany hospital, will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Kight funeral home.

The Rev. Edwin W. Saylor, pastor of First Baptist church, will officiate and interment will be in Zion Memorial cemetery.

A native of Flintstone, Mrs. Dicken was a daughter of the late James and Eliza Writter Browning. She had resided here most of her life, and was a member of Prosperity Christian church, Flintstone.

Besides her husband, she is survived by four sons, Presley and Robert F. Dicken, both of Valley Road; Herman Dicken, Baltimore, and Werner R. Dicken, this city; two daughters, Mrs. Lewis Walker, Ridgeley, and Mrs. Robert Bobo, Valley Road, and fourteen grandchildren.

MRS. METGER RITES

Funeral services for Mrs. Lillie Catherine Vogtman Metger, widow of Harvey E. Metger, who died Sunday at her home, 55 Knobley street, Ridgeley, were conducted yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home.

The Rev. Frederick Oberkircher, pastor of Zion Evangelical and Reformed church, officiated and interment was in Hillcrest cemetery.

WINS DISCHARGE-REJOINS SERVICE

LONACONING, Feb. 26—Thomas J. Richardson, (left) son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Richardson, 130 Jackson street, who served in the army for three years, has been honorably discharged. His brother, Jackie Richardson, 18, (right) a veteran of twenty months with the merchant marine, has enlisted for eighteen months, unassigned. Thomas fought in Europe for twenty-eight months with a combat engineer unit attached to the First army and saw service in Normandy, France and Germany. He holds the European theater ribbon with five battle stars and the Good Conduct medal. Jackie, who wears the South Pacific ribbon, served in Australia, New Guinea, India and Guadalcanal.

Monsman Suggests Longer Waiting Period To Curb Hasty Marriages

BEL AIR, Md., Feb. 26 (AP) — Asserting the state should do something to cut down the number of broken homes, Gerald Monsman recommended in an address last night that the present forty-eight-hour wait between application and issuance of a marriage license be lengthened to several weeks.

Monsman, counsel for the Legal Aid Bureau of Baltimore City, told the Business and Professional Women's Club of Harford county that the lengthening of the period would cut down on hasty marriages and give persons involved time to obtain medical examination and advice and attend lectures on the responsibilities and duties of marriage.

He further recommended that a certificate of attendance at such lectures should be demanded by those issuing the licenses.

"As long as the state shows so much interest in who should and should not get divorces, it is equally its right to show interest in who gets married," he said. "In that way, the state could prevent those matches that are most likely to lead to divorce."

He told the group he was shocked that the Legal Aid Bureau had exactly twice as many divorce cases in 1944 and 1945 as in the two preceding years.

In addition to the changes recommended in marriage laws, Monsman suggested the alteration of the divorce and adoption laws of the state.

He advocated the formation of a domestic relations court, where marriage problems could be ironed out, and declared that a more lenient grant of partial divorces would lead to more reconciliations.

Monsman also recommended that the forty-eight states ease up on present strict extradition laws to make it easier and less expensive to apprehend husbands who desert their wives and children.

Alimony required of a husband is inadequate, he said.

Adoption of children, Monsman stated, is much too easy and leads to many a round peg being put into a square hole. He suggested the state set up a commission to investigate each child in relation to its proposed foster home in a "scientific" manner to prevent a child with a high intelligence quotient being placed in a low IQ home or vice versa.

No Change in Plans For Phone Strike

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26. (AP) — Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach conferred with President Joseph A. Beirne of the National Federation of Telephone Workers today but said there was "no change" in the union's plans for a nationwide strike March 7.

Schwellenbach told reporters he would arrange a meeting with Vice-President C. F. Craig of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company tomorrow, if possible, to "get the company's side of the picture."

The secretary said he would discuss with Craig the possibility of using a settlement at A. T. and T. as a pattern for the industry. Beirne said 1,700 long lines operators were employed by the A. A. and T.

The union is negotiating with companies throughout the United States and the strike, if it comes, will be on a nationwide basis, Beirne told reporters. A single settlement which could be used as a pattern would be helpful, however, Schwellenbach suggested.

Agreements already reached call for wage increases of $3 to $8 a week, but Beirne said there were few of the higher ones and none of them would set a pattern for the industry.

Ondi's Sentence Is Reduced to 5 Years

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)—The War department disclosed today that the wartime court martial sentence of seventy-five years' imprisonment against Pfc. Alex Ondi, 29, of Cleveland, had been ordered reduced to a five-year term.

Undersecretary of War Kenneth C. Royall announced the action was taken Feb. 11 by the War department upon recommendation of an army clemency board.

The department said Ondi was tried and convicted of twice refusing in January, 1945, a direct order to go on patrol with other members of his unit. The outfit at the time was under enemy shell and sniper fire in a front line position in Luxembourg.

Ondi last summer was assigned to a pre-honor company at the army discipline barracks at Green Haven, N. Y., under procedure which would have led to restoration of duty, the department said.

However by his own request, the department added, he was relieved from that assignment in October and subsequently his case went before a clemency board automatically for review.

Royall said the reduction of sentence was normal procedure and "not due to pressure from any source."

Operation Completed Despite Explosion

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) — Doctors and nurses calmly completed an operation here today and wheeled their patient to safety after an anesthetic gas tank exploded, shattering a skylight and showering the operating room with glass.

The accident occurred at Providence hospital.

"It was nothing less than a miracle that none of us was hurt," one of the physicians said.

Municipal Strike In Houston Ends

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 26 (AP)—The bitterly contested seven-day-old strike of 700 municipal service workers ended today in a compromise agreement climaxed by the union spokesman good-naturedly hugging the mayor.

But until Mayor Otis Massey modified a previous stand and agreed to meet with American Federation of Labor leaders the air was tense. Five thousand industrial and other workers who remained away from their jobs to demonstrate in behalf of the city employes had gathered about the city hall when the agreement was announced. Once they booed the mayor when he appeared at a window.

Under the agreement, city employes who had been fired yesterday when they ignored a city back-to-work ultimatum will return to their jobs tomorrow morning with full seniority and civil service rights unimpaired.

The city agreed further to "correct" salaries if a civil service commission survey shows they are too low.

West Side P-T.A. Raises $216.42 For Playground

The West Side Parent-Teacher Association received the report on the recent party and voted to change the by-laws at the meeting last evening at the school, with Mrs. Ralph Isiminger presiding.

Mrs. J. T. Johnson reported that $216.42 had been raised on the card party held earlier in the month and will be used to purchase playground equipment. The committee to change the by-laws will be appointed later. Routine business was also transacted.

The program included a group of songs, by Mrs. Blanch Stanton Gunter, who also directed the group singing. Mrs. Samuel T. Weatherholt was at the piano.

A radio script, commemorating the founding of the Parent-Teacher Association, forty-nine years ago, featured the program. It was entitled, "With Faith and Hope." David Steele was the announcer and Mrs. Florence Whitfield was the narrator. Others taking part were Mrs. Ross Prysock, Mrs. George Remer and Mrs. Brooke Starcher.

The program committee included Mrs. Steele, chairman, Miss Nan Livingstone and Mrs. Lydia Acher. Preceding the meeting teachers met the parents. A social hour concluded the evening and refreshments were served. The George Washington motif was carried out with miniature flags. The home room mothers were hostesses with Mrs. Starcher, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Guy Kave, Mrs. Harry Lannon, Mrs. Carl Ziler, Mrs. George Shaffer and Mrs. Ray Boyer.

Miss Livingstone's third grade won the $5 award for the most parents present.

Four New Cardinals To Return Next Month

ROME, Feb. 26 (AP) — The Catholic church's four new cardinals from the United States planned today to leave for home early next month. Two of them will interrupt the trip for fetes in their honor in foreign countries.

Francis Cardinal Spellman, of New York, whose plane leaves here March 2, will spend that night in Madrid where he will attend a state dinner given by Generalissimo Franco for him, Emmanuel Cardinal Cerejeira, patriarch of Lisbon and four new Spanish cardinals. He will be feted the next night by Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar in Lisbon.

John Cardinal Glennon, of St. Louis, traveling with Samuel Cardinal Stritch, of Chicago and Edward Cardinal Mooney, of Detroit, will leave here March 4 by way of Paris and Shannon, Eire, and will stay over to attend a dinner in Dublin given by Prime Minister Eamon de Valera.

Nation's Butter Supplies Continue To Drop

CHICAGO, Feb. 26 (AP)—The nation's butter supplies have dropped to less than 15,000,000 pounds and the American Butter Institute today estimated this is only about two days ahead.

D. K. Howe, president of the institute, asserted at Omaha that this supply, down sharply from 50,000,000 at the first of the year, was "dangerously low."

As of February 23, the government estimated butter stocks at principal storage points at 14,500,000 pounds and said a considerable portion of that belongs to the government.

"It's getting worse and something must be done immediately," Howe said. He contended the OPA policy discourages production of butter, commenting:

"There is a ceiling on everything but sweet cream and butter fat is going to products other than butter."

men were wounded when they ventured into Mink Slide. A negro also was wounded.

Meanwhile, authorities checked incoming long distance telephone calls which they said were intended for negro leaders.

A highway patrol officer, who declined use of his name, said several calls had been received during the day at the A. J. Morton and Son Funeral Home. Among other places, he said, the calls came from Columbus, Ga., Chicago, and Nashville.

Morton was one of twelve negroes arrested when patrolmen entered his establishment shortly after daybreak.

Firearms Confiscated

Bomar said the occupants of the place offered no resistance but that the patrolmen were fired upon from a dance hall across the street as they approached. The fire was answered by blasts from tommy guns.

The twelve men, Bomar declared, were charged with assault with intent to commit murder. Four shotguns, two small calibre rifles and a pistol were found in their possession, along with several opened bottles of whisky, the commissioner reported.

At the meeting of the militiamen and patrolmen at which he ordered the firearms search, commissioner Bomar told the group: "It is your duty to protect both the colored and white races." He added:

"There is no doubt in my mind but that part of this was brought about by some whites under the influence of liquor. And some of the colored persons also have been under the influence of liquor."

The nominee declared his company, Petrol Corporation, had sold no oil at all directly to Japan, and that in June, 1938, which he pointed out was forty-two months before Pearl Harbor, he instructed his firm not to sell any oil which might be transferred later to Japan.

Pauley complained that Tobey had charged him with "implementing Japan's supplies of oil as a potential enemy."

Saltonstall spoke up to assure Pauley that he did not have "the slightest feeling" he did anything wrong in connection with the sale of oil to Japan. There was no immediate response from Tobey.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PARTIALLY APPROVES STRIKE CONTROL BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) —The United States Chamber of Commerce indorsed the labor peace goals of the Case strike control bill today but withheld approval of its methods.

Otto Seyferth, chairman of the Chamber's Committee on Labor Relations, presented its position. It testified in Senate Labor Committee hearings on the House-approved and the union-opposed measure of Rep. Case (R-SD).

Seyferth urged against hasty action and said industrial peace will come only with:

1. "Acceptance of mutuality of interest" by employer and employe in the success of an enterprise.

2. Recognition by management that workers have the right to organize and bargain collectively.

3. Acceptance by the workers of "the principle that full and efficient production requires freedom for management to operate without the assumption of managerial functions by labor leaders."

The United Mineworkers, through counsel Wally Hopkins, told the committee that the Case bill would bring "chaos to the house of government," would wrongfully imperil labor's right to strike and encourage labor strife.

Police Probe Death Of Former Serviceman

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)—The body of Andrew Nault, 38-year-old former serviceman, was found today lying face down in a pool of blood on a day bed in his luxuriously furnished apartment here. There was a gash in the man's right temple.

Police said the body was discovered by Robert L. Peterson, 26, Navy department employe, who described himself as a friend of Nault. They quoted Peterson as saying he had the day off and called at the apartment. He told police that he let himself inside when his knocks were not answered.

A coroner's inquest was ordered to determine the cause of Nault's death. They said the man apparently had been dead for several hours.

Mrs. George Judy, 37, Shaw, W. Va., Dies

She was a native of Harman, W. Va., a daughter of Trice Lantz, St. George, and the late Lettie Arbogast Lantz, who died two weeks ago.

Besides her husband and her father, she is survived by the following children, Mrs. Helen Bard, and Junior Judy, both of Keyser, W. Va., and Eugene, Ray, Lonzo, Glenda, Linda, George and Nancy, all at home.

The body is at the Minnear funeral home, Parsons. Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 2 p. m. in Leadmine church by the Rev. Daniel Spade, Brethren minister. Interment will be in Pine Grove cemetery.

Odakonya Girls Elect Officers for 1946

Melva Hardinger was elected president of the Odakonya Camp Fire Girls at the meeting at the Union Grove Methodist parsonage. Other officers to serve with her are Nancy Purnell, secretary; Jane Baker, treasurer and Joann Blamble, publicity chairman.

A new member, Marion Twigg, was accepted; and plans were formulated for a play and an exhibit to be held in May. Nancy Purnell and Joann Blamble are in charge of arrangements.

Officers will be installed March 2 at the parsonage. After the business session the group will make rag dolls and animals for children of Labrador.

Correct numbers are essential to fast telephone service. When in doubt about the number you want, check your directory or your personal telephone number list. This saves time and prevents annoyance to you and the person called in error.

Be Sure To List All Dependents On Your 1945 Income Tax Return

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26—(AP)—Be sure to list all of your dependents on your tax return for 1945.

Besides the surtax exemption of $500 for yourself and $500 for your wife or husband, you get a $500 exemption for each dependent. Those exemptions reduce your taxable income and therefore lower the amount of your tax.

If you use your withholding receipt or the short Form 1040 as a return, the amount of dependency exemptions is deducted automatically through the use of a tax table. If you use the long Form 1040 as a return, you subtract the amount of your exemptions for dependents (line 4, page 3) from net income before figuring the surtax.

Who is a "dependent" from an income tax standpoint? The law requires that in order to get an exemption:

1. The claimed dependent's income must be less than $500. (Otherwise, the claimed dependent himself must file a return.)

2. You must have furnished more than half of his support for the year.

3. He must be closely related to you.

4. He must be a citizen of the United States, or a resident of the United States, Canada or Mexico.

For many years the law required that a dependent had to be under 18 years of age or incapable, physically or mentally, of supporting himself. For the last two years persons could qualify as dependents regardless of age or ability to support themselves. You get a dependency for supporting a son or daughter at college over 18.

A dependent must be a relative in one of the following degrees:

Your child, or his or her descendant; a brother or sister, including a half brother or half sister; a stepbrother of stepsister; your parent, grandparent or other ancestors.

Also your stepfather or stepmother; your aunt, uncle, niece or nephew but not their husbands or wives. (You can't claim cousins as dependents.) Your in-laws such as father-in-law, mother-in-law, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, or daughter-in-law.

The above relationships apply to a legally-adopted child the same as though he or she were a child by blood. You get the full $500 exemption if a dependent lived only part of the year provided you were his chief support during the time he was living.

If a claimed dependent received less than $500 in wages from which tax was withheld, he should file a return in order to get a refund of that tax. Income of less than $500 is not taxable.

School Lunch Program Approved by Senate

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) — A permanent program for federal aid up to $115,000,000 annually for school lunches was aproved by the Senate today.

Action was taken on a voice vote.

The legislation now must go back to the House which previously authorized a $50,000,000 annual school lunch program with different requirements for matching of funds by states and local agencies.

Wife Seeks Advice As Husband Lives Up to Reputation

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

When a girl deliberately marries a man who she has good reason to believe will make her a worthless husband, should she put up with her bad bargain or get rid of him when he lives up to his reputation?

That's the problem facing the writer of the following letter:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am a young girl of 24, married to a man of 30 and about to become a mother. I guess I should be very happy, but I'm not. What I really mean is, my life is such a mess.

"Now please don't misunderstand me. I am really happy about the baby. I'm so excited I can hardly wait. But my real problem is my husband. I was forced to leave him when I was five months pregnant, because he stayed out nights leaving me alone and never returning till the wee hours of the morning.

"Since I left him, he has never tried to get in touch with me in any way. Sometimes I wonder how I could ever have loved a man who was so mean to me. He always claimed he loved me, but I think he has a funny way of showing it. I am so disgusted that my marriage turned out to be such a failure I don't know which way to turn. I am so ashamed to face my family and friends, but they all understand.

"What I really would like to know is, would you advise me to divorce this man after the baby is born? I don't think he will ever change. I have known him for the past seven years, but have been married to him for the past nineteen months. I knew all his faults, the way he liked the women also, so I guess I have no one to blame but myself. But I married him because I loved him. Now I wonder."

"DISGUSTED"

Knowing that there's no one but our own self to blame for our unhappiness isn't very much consolation, is it, "Disgusted?" But it does help, sometimes, in making us able to look at our problems more clearly. At least we don't start out befuddled by the mistaken idea that we can shift responsibility to someone else.

You loved this man so much that you were willing to marry him and take the long chance that things might turn out better than deep in your heart you thought they would. Thousands of other women have done that before you. No doubt you believed your love could change him; make him over into the kind of person you wanted him to be. Thousands of other women have fooled themselves into the same way of thinking. And most of them have lived to regret it, as you have done. No man becomes a different sort of man just because he becomes a husband. He's made of just the same stuff as he was before.

Some women keep right on loving a man who has shown himself to be worthless. And paradoxically, they're happier being miserable with him than they would be without him. They pay an exorbitant price in tears and suffering for sticking with him, but in some queer way, they evidently consider it worth paying.

But I don't think you're that kind. I think you're too disillusioned to love your husband any more or to cling to any hope that you'll ever find any happiness with him. So a divorce, or at least a separation, would seem to me to be your only answer to the problem, so that you can begin to make a new life for yourself and your child. And you're not likely to make the same mistake again.

Republican Resurgance In Montgomery County

RENEWED ACTIVITY of Republicans in Montgomery county, as reported by the "Bethesda Journal," is of more than passing interest to Allegany members of the party. According to the "Journal," the party there "faces its brightest outlook to take over at least some of the official control of the county after many lean years." The county setup is now regarded by political onlookers, it says, as favoring the Republicans even more than they were favored in 1934, when an alliance with disaffected Democrats made possible for them to take over the county board of commissioners and fill two seats in the legislature.

"On top of the trash collection breakdown, coupled with unpopularity of the new personal property tax law," the "Journal" says, "the Republicans find much comfort in the weakening of Lt. Col., E. Brooke Lee's power by the revolt of Democrats in the Seventh district, largely in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase area, under State Senator Thomas Earle Hampton.

"Almost any day now the Hampton organization, frankly contending with Col Lee for control of the party, may announce a slate in opposition to the regular Democratic ticket approved at Silver Spring.

"The old-line Democrats in the county also face new peril from the Charter committee. The break in the ranks unquestionably strengthens the hand of the Charter committee. Members of the committee feel that they would have won in the last election if they could have gotten enough voters to the polls. Present fireworks indicate that there will be many new voters at the polls in November, and most of them will be unfriendly to the ruling Democratic regime.

"Meanwhile, the Republican State Central Committee for Montgomery County is flushed with high hopes. The committee's headquarters is at 7649 Old Georgetown Rd., Bethesda. It has had a scheduled meeting each month, but many special meetings are called to further the working of the official Republican organization and to have the Republican party properly functioning in the fifty-one precincts in Montgomery county.

"It now has efficient precinct workers in most of the precincts and it is its duty to build and maintain a strong, efficient party organization in Montgomery county. The Republican judges and clerks of election are selected by the central committee and appointed by the election board, which sits at Rockville.

"Precinct chairmen are appointed for most of the precinct organization and usually has a committee of workers outside of the judge and clerk of polling places in each precinct, to help in getting the necessary information to the voters and to get the voters to the voting places throughout the county.

"Plans are now being worked out by the committee to put a strong and efficient party organization in each and every precinct in the county, the Journal was told this week.

"Each member of the committee has from five to ten precincts under his personal supervision, while the chairman has the duty of covering the work of the individual members of the committee as well as the entire county as a whole and to get in contact with the workers of each precinct, in order to make the two-party system work in this county."

This resurgence of Republican party activity in Montgomery is an excellent sign and party members of other Western Maryland counties will watch its progress with more than passing interest, perhaps finding some stimulus therein for work in kind in their own counties.

Victory Gardeners Should Continue

NOW THAT the sun is getting back to work, an air of coming spring permeates the atmosphere, impelling the city resident who delights in gardening to engage in earnest speculation. Seed catalogues are appearing in large numbers. It is indeed a cynic who can gaze at the pictures of luxuriant plants and colorful flowers, pictures that seem to reflect the vegetation of paradise, without promptly determining to grow similar specimens in his own garden.

Many a man who never planted a garden before the war learned, through participation in the Victory garden campaign, of the joys that come with the cultivation of vegetables and flowers. Those who reluctantly laid down the shovel and hoe last fall thinking that the government would not again ask them to grow as much of their own food as possible, may have been surprised recently to find that gardening still is considered a patriotic duty. President Truman has approved a plan to continue the Victory garden program this summer to aid in relieving the food shortage here and abroad.

"During the war the Victory gardeners made a magnificent contribution to the food production which was an important factor in winning the war," President Truman said in a telegram to the National Garden Institute. "Food is still one of the most vital weapons in securing a lasting and stable peace. Farmers and Victory gardeners of America must make every effort to help provide the additional food that is so sorely needed. The deep satisfaction that these food producers will receive from helping to relieve the critical starvation conditions abroad will be an additional reward for their extra efforts."

Those who may have decided to abandon plans for gardens of the Victory type this year because the war is over should take heed of this and plan to continue their work since, so far as the food situation is concerned, the war continues as a serious aftermath.

Bare-Legged Issue For Congressmen

A NUMBER OF CONGRESSMEN have pivoted around to the view that extension of OPA price powers beyond next June 30 should be selective. That is, authority to impose price ceilings should apply to some items and not to others. Clothing has been singled out by several congressmen as a category in which the OPA should be relieved of control so that pricing can be based upon costs and production speeded.

If the congressmen running for re-election this year know danger signals when they see them, they will make women's hosiery selective, yanking that item right out from under ceilings. Hosiery lines are a common sight in every community. Rumors of a few dozen nylons start the queues. Often women line up merely to register in hope of getting a pair at some indefinite time.

In the meantime women are becoming bare-legged, and they don't like it. Their resentment rises when they hear that nylons are being shipped to foreign countries where they can be sold without the OPA blotting up all the profits. They have learned, too, that the nylon industry, if the brakes were removed, could make six pairs a year for every woman.

Every congressman knows that women have a vote and they can be as cantankerous about registering it against an incumbent as a farmer who gets twenty-five cents for his wheat. The bare-legged issue is certainly going to have an influence in Congress when it votes on Bowles's request for still another extension of OPA.

Farm Price Line Adds to Problem

CHESTER BOWLES'S WARNING that it is of the utmost importance to hold the farm price line because food and fabrics together account for more than half of the consumer's expenditures—forty per cent for food and thirteen per cent for clothing—had the effect of a red flag in agricultural communities. Farmers say they rereived prices equal to those of today at a time when wages for city workers were twenty-five per cent, or less of today's figures.

In the agricultural field Bowles will face a harder fight than the one he has launched against the National Association of Manufacturers. Senator Bankhead, of Alabama, a leader in the congressional farm bloc, has served notice that there will be a drive to get more for farm products so that higher costs caused by ever-increasing wages will be offset.

With costs rising, insistence that farm prices must follow will be strong. Farmers feel that, unlike their sad experience of the twenties, they now have the strength to keep their incomes in line with city incomes.

It was inevitable that yielding the wage-price line in one place would bring a wide effort to force it in other places. And the farm effort can easily be successful, particularly in a year when most members of Congress are running for re-election.

After all, doesn't the well-meaning, conscientious worker really want labor bossism and racketeering and terrorism abolished and industrial peace and justiec substituted for lawlessness and the turmoil and injury and cost of strikes? The only argument, of course, is how it can and should be done.

Kansas City reports the one hundred and third robbery of a hamburger stand, which brought death to the current bandit, who had held up the present owner five times in his four-months tenure. The professional bandits out there must be hungry.

Secretary Schwellenbach speaks of a possibility that "an era of industrial warfare my be initiated." He ought to explain what it is the country has had on its hands for some time past.

THERE'S ALWAYS A WAY OUT

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

We are beset with problems. Business success is a problem. Health is a problem. Education is a problem. World peace is a problem. Life itself is a problem. But there is always a way into each, and a way out! But it takes thinking, planning and a rare order of courage to face each and all, and order out a winning solution.

But all of these problems that face us, from the beginning to the end of life, are apportioned to all of us to solve in our own way. We can't depend upon others to solve them for us. They have their own to solve. As an individual we must stand or fall. We can co-operate with others. We can learn by the example of others—by viewing their successes and their mistakes, as well, but we must plough ahead alone, mostly, in the manner of the man behind his own plough.

Our own mistakes teach us more than to have someone else point them out to us. Finding our way out of a difficult situation, gives us both ambition and ammunition to fight a better battle later on.

The best business of life is to keep moving, going ahead, even though we may not see clearly at once, for the fog that blinds our eyes. The fog always clears in time. So do the difficulties that mess up a problem. The task is to keep hunting out some hole from which the light can shine through. Edison kept hunting for that light until it finally burst out in his discovery of the electric light. The Wright Brothers discovered it when they saw their crude plane stay in the air for a brief period. Now, other men have found the way for it to stay in the air on trips around the world!

Many a man has lost all his life earnings, only to think out a new way into greater triumphs.

"Direct your eye inward, and you find
A thousand regions in your mind
Yet undiscovered. Travel them, and be
Expert in home-cosmography."

We have all the solutions within ourselves. But it takes some deep diving, with our eyes wide open, to get a real eyeful of the knowledge that will enable us to detect our way out of any problem or situation. And the most hopeful self-discovery is that it can be found!

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Russian Spy Activities in Canada May Bring Healthy Showdown, Pearson Says

Washington, D. C.
February 26, 1946

Mrs. Gordon Lange,
Swarthmore, Pa.
My Dear Sister:

Last October I was at your house when that tall, handsome husband of yours put his uniform in mothballs and went over to the draft board to report that he was out of the army. And I remember how amused we all were over the draft board's instruction that he keep his future whereabouts on file in case he might be called again.

This, we thought, was a big joke. After all, we had just completed a long and grueling war, with the country just getting ready to settle down and enjoy some well-earned years of peace. Yet the draft board clerk said: "We'll call you if we need you again."

I know you will call me a pessimist when I write this, but, judging by the way our foreign affairs are drifting today, I am beginning to think the thing we laughed at last October is now no laughing matter at all.

By that, I don't mean that Gordon will be called again. We are never going to need a big army in these days of atomic warfare. It would be mass suicide to expose large groups of helpless foot-soldiers to the ravages of atomic warfare. But what I do mean is that today, less than one year after the war is over, we are drifting on a turbulent sea of international rivalry, our rudder smashed, our compass lost, with only a hazy idea of where we are going.

Meanwhile, one of our former allies knows exactly where it wants to go, while another is sailing with a leaky hull, and we are bogged down from our attempt to keep it from capsizing altogether.

Soviet Spies Force Issues

However, I am writing in this pessimistic vein not because I enjoy being a pessimist, but because the time is short. The time is short and we as a nation must wake up. We must realize that the things we do in the international field right now—during these very weeks, days, and minutes—plant the seeds of future peace or war. We are rapidly heading toward the latter course.

That is why I consider the revelation of Russian spy activities in Canada a blessing in disguise. It may help us to realize what a dangerous rivalry we are in the middle of. It may help us to wake up to the fact that we are drifting toward international catastrophe.

It so happened that I had known about the Russian spy activities for several weeks before I broke the story and I know that what the Russians were doing goes much deeper than the State department would like to have us believe, and shows a network of Soviet agents not only engaged in a cut-throat race to secure the atom bomb, but also aimed at disrupting our whole communications system — if and when it becomes necessary.

Co-operation vs. Theft

There is, of course, something to be said on the side of Joe Davies's contention that every nation engages in espionage. That is true. However, it seems to me Mr. Davies overlooks the fact that we were in the process of working out an international plan to share the secret of the atom just at a time when the Russians were trying to steal it.

Secretary Byrnes had gone to Moscow and made a sincere gesture to share the atom, despite vigorous opposition from certain elements at home. Yet, simultaneously, the Russians wanted the atom bomb, independent of any international co-operation, and were quite willing to steal it if they could.

However, no great good is served by haggling over who is right or who is wrong. We have been wrong toward the Russians plenty of times in the past—particularly when we isolated them for seventeen years and helped make the most suspicious nation in the world.

The thing to worry about is not who is right or who is wrong—but where do we go from here. If the Russians continue spying over here, and if we continue our attempts to spy over there, this, plus all the friction in Iran, Turkey, Trieste, and Manchuria, is certain to end in war. Not only is it inescapable, but it will come sooner than later.

War or Friendship

If, on the other hand, we call for a showdown with Joe Stalin—a showdown based upon exchange of social and cultural relations between the Russian and American people—then we can escape war.

I have harped on this question of basic American-Russian friendship so much that I am sure everyone—especially my family—is sick of hearing about it. But it's the only practical way of preventing war. It's the way to apply the sermon on the mount to modern diplomacy.

There are any number of reasons why we will never go to war with Great Britain, and they all spring from the same fact—that we know and understand the British people. Thousands of American tourists visit Britain in every normal year. Hundreds of British lecturers and newspapermen come over here. Thousands of Americans have studied in England as Rhodes scholars or otherwise. Millions of British immigrants have come here to live.

So the problem of peace with England is easy. The problem of peace with Russia is much harder—first because of the language, second because a little group of military men at the head of the Soviet government have made it quite clear that they don't want their people to know us. They want to turn Soviet-United States friendship off and on like a spigot. The last thing they want is having the wishes of several million people regulate the flow.

They want to send all sorts of Soviet agents over here—a total of 1,700 of them are now operating here secretly—but they don't want even a few American newspapermen, or an American orchestra over there without confining them to Moscow and without shadowing them every minute.

Sermon on the Mount

This is not the kind of reciprocity that makes for peace. And this is where I think we have got to be tough with Stalin. It will take a lot of courage to be tough, because no one in this country likes to think about the consequences if Stalin thinks we are bluffing. But in my opinion we must have a take-it-or-leave-it showdown, and tell Stalin that either we must have complete freedom to make friends between the Russian and American people—or else.

And this can't be peanut friendship. It's got to be broad-scale exchanges of students and professors by the thousands; it's got to include the free exchange of literature, newspapers and newsmen, churchmen and atheists, the tuning in of radio broadcasts, the showing of motion pictures.

Personally, I would trade all the secrets of the atom bomb for the hard-and-fast right to show the Russian people that there is no trouble between our two countries except a few narrow-minded military men at the top.

Well, I didn't mean to preach a sermon, please forgive me. I have been terribly worried about the way we have been drifting. Unless it is stopped, little Johnny some day will be wearing the uniform his father put in mothballs last October.

Your brother,
DREW

Bargaining Rights Should Be Upheld, Lawrence Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26. —Something rather strange meets the eye in New York city, as one reads that the municipal government there is actually refusing to recognize a labor union as the sole and exclusive bargaining agent of a majority of the employees working on the subways.

The mayor contends that he has been advised by his counsel that the city is forbidden by the implications of the civil service law to recognize a union as the sole bargaining agent. If this is true—and legal opinions could differ on the meaning of the law—then it may be asked why the mayor doesn't ask the governor of the state of New York and the legislature to change the law.

For certainly it is rather late for an institution which represents the people, especially in a city so overwhelmingly Democratic as New York, to regard collective bargaining and the grant of sole bargaining rights to a majority as something tainted or poisonous.

Rights Are Guaranteed

The employers of the nation from coast to coast have been told that collective bargaining is a sacred right. The Congress has passed a law fathered by a leading Democratic member of the United States Senate who hails from the city of New York. This statute not only guarantees collective bargaining rights but gives to the agents of the majority of the employees a sole bargaining privilege.

Is there a distinction between employees of a city and employees of a private company? Some cities like Detroit have contracts which recognize transport workers unions, and it is difficult to see why the collective bargaining process can be such a great virtue and is so often extolled by Senator Wagner and others who make up the Democratic majorities in New York city and state, and yet it isn't a proper thing for the municipal government to grant.

If the mayor would agree to recommend legislation immediately and would treat with the transports workers union tentatively as the bargaining agent subject to the approval of the state legislature, it is quite possible that further difficulties would be averted.

Principle Equally Valid

For the New York State Legislature could hardly repudiate the principle in the Wagner Labor Relations act. That principle is just as valid, no matter whether the government or a private company is the employer. If it be said that government workers are in a different category and that collective bargaining has abuses, it must be inferred that city governments don't like collective bargaining. The question then must be asked: why should private employers be saddled with collective bargaining nuisances?

Either collective bargaining is a good way to maintain labor relations or it is the wrong way. The Democrats, by their party platforms and by their Democratic membership in Congress from the city of New York, have voted solidly for the Wagner act and against any modifications in it. Even to advocate amendments is to be accused of being reactionary and a foe of labor. But is it less reactionary for a Democratic administration in the biggest city in the country to repudiate collective bargaining and take refuge in a technicality in the law?

It has been argued that if subway workers are recognized, then firemen and policemen would have unions and the right to strike would be conceded. But is there anything worse for the city than a tie-up of the tugboats or interference with transportation? Plainly the city's workers, whether they be policemen or firemen, either should be forbidden to join unions altogether—which the Democrats would never venture to do—or else grant their unions all the privileges they customarily enjoy.

Federal Exemption Unrelated

Federal law exempts cities and states from collective bargaining with employes but this is not related to the merits of the subject and was written into the statutes merely to show the federal sovereign power's respect for the separate authority of state and city governments. A state legislature can at any time make it obligatory for cities to give their workers collective bargaining rights.

The fact that these rights are withheld in New York can only create the suspicion that private employers who balk at collective bargaining compulsions may possibly be right in voicing some of the same objections that a city encounters when it faces the problem concretely in the form of a mandatory negotiation with a majority of the employers as an alleged agent for the minority. But private business has to live under that procedure. City governments cannot be logical or consistent and oppose it.

Less Wearisome Tactics Are Used In Filibusters

By CENTRAL PRESS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 — When the southern filibuster against a Fair Employment Practice Commission ended in the Senate, an old doorman was heard to remark:

"This here filibuster wasn't like they used to be."

Ungrammatically, but pointedly, he expressed the opinion prevalent on Capitol Hill that filibusters today "ain't what they used to be."

Old timers sadly shake their heads and express fears that the old art is lost. "Nothing to it," they say of the filibuster against the FEPC.

That was just tea and crumpets, they snort. Now take the filibuster that the late Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin engaged in years ago against the Aldrich financial bill. That, they say, was the daddy of them all.

La Follette set an all-time record by holding the floor without a break for eighteen hours, twenty-three minutes. He began talking at 12:40 p. m., May 29, 1908, and did not yield the floor until 7:03 o'clock the next morning.

Sustained by Punch

To maintain his strength during the lengthy ordeal the elder La Follette drank a punch made of milk and eggs. In addition, he forced thirty-two quorum calls.

As a result of this, the chair ruled that henceforth no speaker could force a quorum call unless Senate busines intervened. That placed would-be record-breakers at a distinct disadvantage.

Despite this handicap, the late Senator Huey Long managed to stay on his feet for fifteen and a half hours when he staged a single-handed battle on June 12-13, 1935, to defeat the NRA. The Louisiana senator spoke until almost 4 a. m. and holds the runner-up record.

Speakers Work in Relays

Recent filibusters have been nothing like that. The filibuster against the FEPC continued for slightly more than three weeks, from Jan. 17 to Feb. 9, but speakers operated in relays and about the longest speech made was that of Senator Richard B. Russell (D) of Georgia, who spoke only four and a half hours.

In addition, the filibuster against the FEPC was conducted in a very genteel manner with nothing of the rough-and-tumble tactics of the old gladiators. The filibusters were permitted to resume their seats between 4:30 to 6 p. m., eat a good meal, get a good night's rest, and resume the next day, revitalized and refreshed.

In the old days the Senate remained in session all night and simply wore out a filibustering member. Senator Wayne J. Morse (R) of Oregon proposed similar treatment for the FEPC filibuster, but the thought of all-night sessions evoked little enthusiasm among his colleagues.

Compromises Refused

Years ago, the Senate refused to compromise on filibusters. When the late Senator William Allen of Nebraska took the floor in 1893 to talk against repeal of the silver purchase clause in the Sherman act, he spoke almost continuously for fourteen hours, forty-five minutes. Allen employed black coffee to keep awake.

Today, filibusters, such as that against the FEPC, end in a compromise. Southern opponents of FEPC agreed to permit the Senate to vote on cloture with the understanding that the FEPC bill would be withdrawn if the motion to limit debate lost.

Similarly, the 1944 filibuster against anti-poll tax legislation ended—with equal success for the filibusters—when a move for cloture failed.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Well, I went into a clothing store the other day and asked the salesman to show me a suit of clothes. Brother . . . . I haven't heard a laugh like that since the last time I asked Hedy Lamarr for a date!

Yessir, this clothing shortage is really getting terrible. . . . You should see the rags people are wearing . . . . it's awful . . . . Everybody's starting to look like Crosby!

I was waiting in line at one place to buy a suit and the guy behind me started pushing, so I said, "You'd better be careful or I'll report you to the manager!". . . . And he said, "Don't be silly, I am the manager!"

I don't know whether the shortage has reached the ridiculous stage yet or not, but I passed by the front of a Hollywood department store . . . and that's the first time I ever saw a mannequin with goosepimples.

And I understand that when you are able to get suits again, they won't have any pockets in them. They figure that after you pay your income tax, it'll be fall before you'll have anything to put in them anyway.

But I finally did see one suit . . . . it was a beautiful number . . . . the shoulders were padded with a box of cleansing tissues in each one . . . a patty of butter in the lapel . . . . and a big fat juicy steak in each pocket . . . . And then, just as I reached for one of the steaks, I fell out of bed and woke up!

Republican Resurgance In Montgomery County

RENEWED ACTIVITY of Republicans in Montgomery county, as reported by the "Bethesda Journal," is of more than passing interest to Allegany members of the party. According to the "Journal," the party there "faces its brightest outlook to take over at least some of the official control of the county after many lean years." The county setup is now regarded by political onlookers, it says, as favoring the Republicans even more than they were favored in 1934, when an alliance with disaffected Democrats made possible for them to take over the county board of commissioners and fill two seats in the legislature.

"On top of the trash collection breakdown, coupled with unpopularity of the new personal property tax law," the "Journal" says, "the Republicans find much comfort in the weakening of Lt. Col., E. Brooke Lee's power by the revolt of Democrats in the Seventh district, largely in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase area, under State Senator Thomas Earle Hampton.

"Almost any day now the Hampton organization, frankly contending with Col Lee for control of the party, may announce a slate in opposition to the regular Democratic ticket approved at Silver Spring.

"The old-line Democrats in the county also face new peril from the Charter committee. The break in the ranks unquestionably strengthens the hand of the Charter committee. Members of the committee feel that they would have won in the last election if they could have gotten enough voters to the polls. Present fireworks indicate that there will be many new voters at the polls in November, and most of them will be unfriendly to the ruling Democratic regime.

"Meanwhile, the Republican State Central Committee for Montgomery County is flushed with high hopes. The committee's headquarters is at 7649 Old Georgetown Rd., Bethesda. It has had a scheduled meeting each month, but many special meetings are called to further the working of the official Republican organization and to have the Republican party properly functioning in the fifty-one precincts in Montgomery county.

"It now has efficient precinct workers in most of the precincts and it is its duty to build and maintain a strong, efficient party organization in Montgomery county. The Republican judges and clerks of election are selected by the central committee and appointed by the election board, which sits at Rockville.

"Precinct chairmen are appointed for most of the precinct organization and usually has a committee of workers outside of the judge and clerk of polling places in each precinct, to help in getting the necessary information to the voters and to get the voters to the voting places throughout the county.

"Plans are now being worked out by the committee to put a strong and efficient party organization in each and every precinct in the county, the Journal was told this week.

"Each member of the committee has from five to ten precincts under his personal supervision, while the chairman has the duty of covering the work of the individual members of the committee as well as the entire county as a whole and to get in contact with the workers of each precinct, in order to make the two-party system work in this county."

This resurgence of Republican party activity in Montgomery is an excellent sign and party members of other Western Maryland counties will watch its progress with more than passing interest, perhaps finding some stimulus therein for work in kind in their own counties.

Victory Gardeners Should Continue

NOW THAT the sun is getting back to work, an air of coming spring permeates the atmosphere, impelling the city resident who delights in gardening to engage in earnest speculation. Seed catalogues are appearing in large numbers. It is indeed a cynic who can gaze at the pictures of luxuriant plants and colorful flowers, pictures that seem to reflect the vegetation of paradise, without promptly determining to grow similar specimens in his own garden.

Many a man who never planted a garden before the war learned, through participation in the Victory garden campaign, of the joys that come with the cultivation of vegetables and flowers. Those who reluctantly laid down the shovel and hoe last fall thinking that the government would not again ask them to grow as much of their own food as possible, may have been surprised recently to find that gardening still is considered a patriotic duty. President Truman has approved a plan to continue the Victory garden program this summer to aid in relieving the food shortage here and abroad.

"During the war the Victory gardeners made a magnificent contribution to the food production which was an important factor in winning the war," President Truman said in a telegram to the National Garden Institute. "Food is still one of the most vital weapons in securing a lasting and stable peace. Farmers and Victory gardeners of America must make every effort to help provide the additional food that is so sorely needed. The deep satisfaction that these food producers will receive from helping to relieve the critical starvation conditions abroad will be an additional reward for their extra efforts."

Those who may have decided to abandon plans for gardens of the Victory type this year because the war is over should take heed of this and plan to continue their work since, so far as the food situation is concerned, the war continues as a serious aftermath.

Bare-Legged Issue For Congressmen

A NUMBER OF CONGRESSMEN have pivoted around to the view that extension of OPA price powers beyond next June 30 should be selective. That is, authority to impose price ceilings should apply to some items and not to others. Clothing has been singled out by several congressmen as a category in which the OPA should be relieved of control so that pricing can be based upon costs and production speeded.

If the congressmen running for re-election this year know danger signals when they see them, they will make women's hosiery selective, yanking that item right out from under ceilings. Hosiery lines are a common sight in every community. Rumors of a few dozen nylons start the queues. Often women line up merely to register in hope of getting a pair at some indefinite time.

In the meantime women are becoming bare-legged, and they don't like it. Their resentment rises when they hear that nylons are being shipped to foreign countries where they can be sold without the OPA blotting up all the profits. They have learned, too, that the nylon industry, if the brakes were removed, could make six pairs a year for every woman.

Every congressman knows that women have a vote and they can be as cantankerous about registering it against an incumbent as a farmer who gets twenty-five cents for his wheat. The bare-legged issue is certainly going to have an influence in Congress when it votes on Bowles's request for still another extension of OPA.

Farm Price Line Adds to Problem

CHESTER BOWLES'S WARNING that it is of the utmost importance to hold the farm price line because food and fabrics together account for more than half of the consumer's expenditures—forty per cent for food and thirteen per cent for clothing—had the effect of a red flag in agricultural communities. Farmers say they received prices equal to those of today at a time when wages for city workers were twenty-five per cent, or less of today's figures.

In the agricultural field Bowles will face a harder fight than the one he has launched against the National Association of Manufacturers. Senator Bankhead, of Alabama, a leader in the congressional farm bloc, has served notice that there will be a drive to get more for farm products so that higher costs caused by ever-increasing wages will be offset.

With costs rising, insistence that farm prices must follow will be strong. Farmers feel that, unlike their sad experience of the twenties, they now have the strength to keep their incomes in line with city incomes.

It was inevitable that yielding the wage-price line in one place would bring a wide effort to force it in other places. And the farm effort can easily be successful, particularly in a year when most members of Congress are running for re-election.

After all, doesn't the well-meaning, conscientious worker really want labor bossism and racketeering and terrorism abolished and industrial peace and justiec substituted for lawlessness and the turmoil and injury and cost of strikes? The only argument, of course, is how it can and should be done.

Kansas City reports the one hundred and third robbery of a hamburger stand, which brought death to the current bandit, who had held up the present owner five times in his four-months tenure. The professional bandits out there must be hungry.

Secretary Schwellenbach speaks of a possibility that "an era of industrial warfare my be initiated." He ought to explain what it is the country has had on its hands for some time past.

THERE'S ALWAYS A WAY OUT

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

We are beset with problems. Business success is a problem. Health is a problem. Education is a problem. World peace is a problem. Life itself is a problem. But there is always a way into each, and a way out! But it takes thinking, planning and a rare order of courage to face each and all, and order out a winning solution.

But all of these problems that face us, from the beginning to the end of life, are apportioned to all of us to solve in our own way. We can't depend upon others to solve them for us. They have their own to solve. As an individual we must stand or fall. We can co-operate with others. We can learn by the example of others—by viewing their successes and their mistakes, as well, but we must plough ahead alone, mostly, in the manner of the man behind his own plough.

Our own mistakes teach us more than to have someone else point them out to us. Finding our way out of a difficult situation, gives us both ambition and ammunition to fight a better battle later on.

The best business of life is to keep moving, going ahead, even though we may not see clearly at once, for the fog that blinds our eyes. The fog always clears in time. So do the difficulties that mess up a problem. The task is to keep hunting out some hole from which the light can shine through. Edison kept hunting for that light until it finally burst out in his discovery of the electric light. The Wright Brothers discovered it when they saw their crude plane stay in the air for a brief period. Now, other men have found the way for it to stay in the air on trips around the world!

Many a man has lost all his life earnings, only to think out a new way into greater triumphs.

"Direct your eye inward, and you find
A thousand regions in your mind
Yet undiscovered. Travel them, and be
Expert in home-cosmography."

We have all the solutions within ourselves. But it takes some deep diving, with our eyes wide open, to get a real eyeful of the knowledge that will enable us to detect our way out of any problem or situation. And the most hopeful self-discovery is that it can be found!

Russian Spy Activities in Canada May Bring Healthy Showdown, Pearson Says

Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Gordon Lange,
Swarthmore, Pa.

My Dear Sister:

Last October I was at your house when that tall, handsome husband of yours put his uniform in mothballs and went over to the draft board to report that he was out of the army. And I remember how amused we all were over the draft board's instruction that he keep his future whereabouts on file in case he might be called again.

This, we thought, was a big joke. After all, we had just completed a long and grueling war, with the country just getting ready to settle down and enjoy some well-earned years of peace. Yet the draft board clerk said: "We'll call you if we need you again."

I know you will call me a pessimist when I write this, but, judging by the way our foreign affairs are drifting today, I am beginning to think the thing we laughed at last October is now no laughing matter at all.

By that, I don't mean that Gordon will be called again. We are never going to need a big army in these days of atomic warfare. It would be mass suicide to expose large groups of helpless foot-soldiers to the ravages of atomic warfare. But what I do mean is that today, less than one year after the war is over, we are drifting on a turbulent sea of international rivalry, our rudder smashed, our compass lost, with only a hazy idea of where we are going.

Meanwhile, one of our former allies knows exactly where it wants to go, while another is sailing with a leaky hull, and we are bogged down from our attempt to keep it from capsizing altogether.

Soviet Spies Force Issues

However, I am writing in this pessimistic vein not because I enjoy being a pessimist, but because the time is short. The time is short and we as a nation must wake up. We must realize that the things we do in the international field right now—during these very weeks, days, and minutes—plant the seeds of future peace or war. We are rapidly heading toward the latter course.

That is why I consider the revelation of Russian spy activities in Canada a blessing in disguise. It may help us to realize what a dangerous rivalry we are in the middle of. It may help us to wake up to the fact that we are drifting toward international catastrophe.

It so happened that I had known about the Russian spy activities for several weeks before I broke the story and I know that what the Russians were doing goes much deeper than the State department would like to have us believe, and shows a network of Soviet agents not only engaged in a cut-throat race to secure the atom bomb, but also aimed at disrupting our whole communications system — if and when it becomes necessary.

Co-operation vs. Theft

There is, of course, something to be said on the side of Joe Davies's contention that every nation engages in espionage. That is true. However, it seems to me Mr. Davies overlooks the fact that we were in the process of working out an international plan to share the secret of the atom just at a time when the Russians were trying to steal it.

Secretary Byrnes had gone to Moscow and made a sincere gesture to share the atom, despite vigorous opposition from certain elements at home. Yet, simultaneously, the Russians wanted the atom bomb, independent of any international co-operation, and were quite willing to steal it if they could.

However, no great good is served by haggling over who is right or who is wrong. We have been wrong toward the Russians plenty of times in the past—particularly when we isolated them for seventeen years and helped make the most suspicious nation in the world.

The thing to worry about is not who is right or who is wrong—but where do we go from here. If the Russians continue spying over here, and if we continue our attempts to spy over there, this, plus all the friction in Iran, Turkey, Trieste, and Manchuria, is certain to end in war. Not only is it inescapable, but it will come sooner than later.

War or Friendship

If, on the other hand, we call for a showdown with Joe Stalin—a showdown based upon exchange of social and cultural relations between the Russian and American people—then we can escape war.

I have harped on this question of basic American-Russian friendship so much that I am sure everyone—especially my family—is sick of hearing about it. But it's the only practical way of preventing war. It's the way to apply the sermon on the mount to modern diplomacy.

There are any number of reasons why we will never go to war with Great Britain, and they all spring from the same fact—that we know and understand the British people. Thousands of American tourists visit Britain in every normal year. Hundreds of British lecturers and newspapermen come over here. Thousands of Americans have studied in England as Rhodes scholars or otherwise. Millions of British immigrants have come here to live.

So the problem of peace with England is easy. The problem of peace with Russia is much harder—first because of the language, second because a little group of military men at the head of the Soviet government have made it quite clear that they don't want their people to know us. They want to turn Soviet-United States friendship off and on like a spigot. The last thing they want is having the wishes of several million people regulate the flow.

They want to send all sorts of Soviet agents over here—a total of 1,700 of them are now operating here secretly—but they don't want even a few American newspapermen, or an American orchestra over there without confining them to Moscow and without shadowing them every minute.

Sermon on the Mount

This is not the kind of reciprocity that makes for peace. And this is where I think we have got to be tough with Stalin. It will take a lot of courage to be tough, because no one in this country likes to think about the consequences if Stalin thinks we are bluffing. But in my opinion we must have a take-it-or-leave-it showdown, and tell Stalin that either we must have complete freedom to make friends between the Russian and American people—or else.

And this can't be peanut friendship. It's got to be broad-scale exchanges of students and professors by the thousands; it's got to include the free exchange of literature, newspapers and newsmen, churchmen and atheists, the tuning in of radio broadcasts, the showing of motion pictures.

Personally, I would trade all the secrets of the atom bomb for the hard-and-fast right to show the Russian people that there is no trouble between our two countries except a few narrow-minded military men at the top.

Well, I didn't mean to preach a sermon, please forgive me. I have been terribly worried about the way we have been drifting. Unless it is stopped, little Johnny some day will be wearing the uniform his father put in mothballs last October.

Your brother,
DREW

Bargaining Rights Should Be Upheld, Lawrence Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26. —Something rather strange meets the eye in New York city, as one reads that the municipal government there is actually refusing to recognize a labor union as the sole and exclusive bargaining agent of a majority of the employees working on the subways.

The mayor contends that he has been advised by his counsel that the city is forbidden by the implications of the civil service law to recognize a union as the sole bargaining agent. If this is true—and legal opinions could differ on the meaning of the law—then it may be asked why the mayor doesn't ask the governor of the state of New York and the legislature to change the law.

For certainly it is rather late for an institution which represents the people, especially in a city so overwhelmingly Democratic as New York, to regard collective bargaining and the grant of sole bargaining rights to a majority as something tainted or poisonous.

Rights Are Guaranteed

The employers of the nation from coast to coast have been told that collective bargaining is a sacred right. The Congress has passed a law fathered by a leading Democratic member of the United States Senate who hails from the city of New York. This statute not only guarantees collective bargaining rights but gives to the agents of the majority of the employees a sole bargaining privilege.

Is there a distinction between employees of a city and employees of a private company? Some cities like Detroit have contracts which recognize transport workers unions, and it is difficult to see why the collective bargaining process can be such a great virtue and is so often extolled by Senator Wagner and others who make up the Democratic majorities in New York city and state, and yet it isn't a proper thing for the municipal government to grant.

If the mayor would agree to recommend legislation immediately and would treat with the transports workers union tentatively as the bargaining agent subject to the approval of the state legislature, it is quite possible that further difficulties would be averted.

Principle Equally Valid

For the New York State Legislature could hardly repudiate the principle in the Wagner Labor Relations act. That principle is just as valid, no matter whether the government or a private company is the employer. If it be said that government workers are in a different category and that collective bargaining has abuses, it must be inferred that city governments don't like collective bargaining. The question then must be asked: why should private employers be saddled with collective bargaining nuisances?

Either collective bargaining is a good way to maintain labor relations or it is the wrong way. The Democrats, by their party platforms and by their Democratic membership in Congress from the city of New York, have voted solidly for the Wagner act and against any modifications in it. Even to advocate amendments is to be accused of being reactionary and a foe of labor. But is it less reactionary for a Democratic administration in the biggest city in the country to repudiate collective bargaining and take refuge in a technicality in the law?

It has been argued that if subway workers are recognized, then firemen and policemen would have unions and the right to strike would be conceded. But is there anything worse for the city than a tie-up of the tugboats or interference with transportation? Plainly the city's workers, whether they be policemen or firemen, either should be forbidden to join unions altogether—which the Democrats would never venture to do—or else grant their unions all the privileges they customarily enjoy.

Federal Exemption Unrelated

Federal law exempts cities and states from collective bargaining with employes but this is not related to the merits of the subject and was written into the statutes merely to show the federal sovereign power's respect for the separate authority of state and city governments. A state legislature can at any time make it obligatory for cities to give their workers collective bargaining rights.

The fact that these rights are withheld in New York can only create the suspicion that private employers who balk at collective bargaining compulsions may possibly be right in voicing some of the same objections that a city encounters when it faces the problem concretely in the form of a mandatory negotiation with a majority of the employers as an alleged agent for the minority. But private business has to live under that procedure. City governments cannot be logical or consistent and oppose it.

Less Wearisome Tactics Are Used In Filibusters

By CENTRAL PRESS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 — When the southern filibuster against a Fair Employment Practice Commission ended in the Senate, an old doorman was heard to remark:

"This here filibuster wasn't like they used to be."

Ungrammatically, but pointedly, he expressed the opinion prevalent on Capitol Hill that filibusters today "ain't what they used to be."

Old timers sadly shake their heads and express fears that the old art is lost. "Nothing to it," they say of the filibuster against the FEPC.

That was just tea and crumpets, they snort. Now take the filibuster that the late Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin engaged in years ago against the Aldrich financial bill. That, they say, was the daddy of them all.

La Follette set an all-time record by holding the floor without a break for eighteen hours, twenty-three minutes. He began talking at 12:40 p. m., May 29, 1908, and did not yield the floor until 7:03 o'clock the next morning.

Sustained by Punch

To maintain his strength during the lengthy ordeal the elder La Follette drank a punch made of milk and eggs. In addition, he forced thirty-two quorum calls.

As a result of this, the chair ruled that henceforth no speaker could force a quorum call unless Senate busines intervened. That placed would-be record-breakers at a distinct disadvantage.

Despite this handicap, the late Senator Huey Long managed to stay on his feet for fifteen and a half hours when he staged a single-handed battle on June 12-13, 1935, to defeat the NRA. The Louisiana senator spoke until almost 4 a. m. and holds the runner-up record.

Speakers Work in Relays

Recent filibusters have been nothing like that. The filibuster against the FEPC continued for slightly more than three weeks, from Jan. 17 to Feb. 9, but speakers operated in relays and about the longest speech made was that of Senator Richard B. Russell (D) of Georgia, who spoke only four and a half hours.

In addition, the filibuster against the FEPC was conducted in a very genteel manner with nothing of the rough-and-tumble tactics of the old gladiators. The filibusters were permitted to resume their seats between 4:30 to 6 p. m., eat a good meal, get a good night's rest, and resume the next day, revitalized and refreshed.

In the old days the Senate remained in session all night and simply wore out a filibustering member. Senator Wayne J. Morse (R) of Oregon proposed similar treatment for the FEPC filibuster, but the thought of all-night sessions evoked little enthusiasm among his colleagues.

Compromises Refused

Years ago, the Senate refused to compromise on filibusters. When the late Senator William Allen of Nebraska took the floor in 1893 to talk against repeal of the silver purchase clause in the Sherman act, he spoke almost continuously for fourteen hours, forty-five minutes. Allen employed black coffee to keep awake.

Today, filibusters, such as that against the FEPC, end in a compromise. Southern opponents of FEPC agreed to permit the Senate to vote on cloture with the understanding that the FEPC bill would be withdrawn if the motion to limit debate lost.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Well, I went into a clothing store the other day and asked the salesman to show me a suit of clothes. Brother . . . . I haven't heard a laugh like that since the last time I asked Hedy Lamarr for a date!

Yessir, this clothing shortage is really getting terrible. . . . You should see the rags people are wearing . . . . it's awful . . . . Everybody's starting to look like Crosby!

I was waiting in line at one place to buy a suit and the guy behind me started pushing, so I said, "You'd better be careful or I'll report you to the manager!". . . . And he said, "Don't be silly, I am the manager!"

I don't know whether the shortage has reached the ridiculous stage yet or not, but I passed by the front of a Hollywood department store . . . and that's the first time I ever saw a mannequin with goosepimples.

And I understand that when you are able to get suits again, they won't have any pockets in them. They figure that after you pay your income tax, it'll be fall before you'll have anything to put in them anyway.

But I finally did see one suit . . . . it was a beautiful number . . . . the shoulders were padded with a box of cleansing tissues in each one . . . a patty of butter in the lapel . . . . and a big fat juicy steak in each pocket . . . . And then, just as I reached for one of the steaks, I fell out of bed and woke up!

Mr. and Mrs. Liller To Be Honored at Family Dinner

Party To Mark Fifty-first Wedding Anniversary; Birthday of Mr. Liller

Mrs. Olive Workman will entertain with a family dinner in a joint celebration of the fifty-first wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Liller, and the seventy-sixth birthday of her father. It will be held tomorrow at the home of her parents, Ellerslie road.

Mr. and Mrs. Liller were married on February 26, 1895; and Mr. Liller was born February 27, 1870.

The former Miss Ida May Daugherty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Daugherty, Rio, W. Va., and Mr. Liller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Liller, Purgittsville, W. Va., were married February 26, 1895 in the residence of Dr. Nicholas Leatherman, with the Rev. John Leatherman officiating.

Prior to her marriage Mrs. Liller taught school at Purgittsville. Mr. Liller assisted his father with his farm at the time of his marriage, after which he and his bride moved to New Creek, W. Va., where he was employed at the tannery until 1912, at which time he and Mrs. Liller moved to Cumberland, where he worked for the General Textile Mills until his retirement in 1934, when they moved to their present home on the Ellerslie road.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Liller are members of Central Methodist church, this city, and the former is also a member of the Patriotic Order of Sons of America. Although Mr. Liller has been in ill health since December 7, 1944, his condition is greatly improved at present. Mrs. Liller continues in good health.

Mr. and Mrs. Liller are the parents of five children, the late Guy Liller, who was killed in World War I; Mrs. Irma Schade, Ronald Liller, both of this city; Mrs. Wilhelmina McDaniel, St. Louis, Mo.; and Mrs. Workman, at home. They have three grandchildren, Mary Dawn Liller, Don Schade and Staff Sgt. Guy P. Liller, Jr., Browning street, who returned from service in the ETO last November; and one great grand child, Carolyn Jo Liller, who will be one year old on March 3.

YOUNG WOMEN TO HOLD ELEPHANT PARTY TOMORROW

The Young Women's Club of Grace Methodist church formulated plans for an "elephant party" at the meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. John Fisher, LaVale.

The party will be held at the church tomorrow evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Mrs. Harry Hall will be in charge of the refreshments; Mrs. Fisher, of the program and Mrs. W. Raymond Beall, of the white elephant sale.

Mrs. Beall presided at the routine business session and conducted the program. Eight members and two visitors were present.

The next meeting will be held March 25.

Miss Elizabeth Amery To Address American Home Group Tomorrow

Miss Elizabeth Amery, Annapolis, will be the speaker at the meeting of the American Home Group of the Woman's Civic Club tomorrow. The meeting will be held at 2 o'clock at Fort Hill high school.

Miss Amery of the state department of education and state supervisor of home economics, will discuss how the high school prepares girls for their place in the American home.

Tea will be served during the social hour concluding the meeting. Miss Evelyn Miller, home economics teacher, will be in charge, assisted by students of Fort Hill.

Flintstone Faculty Honors Mrs. Roland At Birthday Party

Mrs. Elsie Hill Roland was honored by a group of the faculty of the Flintstone school, with a surprise birthday dinner, Sunday evening at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

This year's school term will complete Mrs. Roland's twentieth year as principal at Flintstone. Prior to her appointment as principal she taught as assistant for eight years. Until three years ago she was the only woman agricultural teacher in the United States.

Recently Mrs. Roland received a letter from Miss Hester Bradley of Bath, Mich., telling her that she had read in an article written by Mrs. Roland published in Better Farming Methods. Mrs. Roland is a Smith-Hughes Agriculture teacher and Miss Bradley teaches at James Couzens Agricultural school, Bath, Mich.

An informal social concluded the dinner and Virgil Atkinson, in behalf of the group, presented an electric roaster to Mrs. Roland.

Hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kolb, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Robinette, Frank McFarland, Miss Florence Thompson, Miss Mary Morgan, Miss Catherine Robinette, Howard Robinette, Miss Pearl Wilson, Mrs. Nan Eaton, Miss Eleanor Eaton, Miss Maude A. Bean, Chester Robinette, Miss Margaret Ringler and J. S. Roland.

Personals

Staff Sgt. John Knowlton, Air Transport Command, has returned to the home of his mother, Mrs. Thelma Knowlton, 240 Avirett avenue. He has returned from two years service in Labrador and has received his discharge.

Miss Isabelle Screen returned to her home, Narrows Park, yesterday from Memorial hospital, where she underwent a major operation.

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Carlyle Speake will leave today for Baltimore, to reside. Dr. Speake, who has served as the doctor for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad here for the past five years, has been made medical examiner and shop surgeon at Mt. Clare shops. He is being succeeded here by Dr. G. Hubert Artis, Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Katie (Custer) Miller, 47 North Liberty street, is a patient in Allegany hospital, where she will undergo an operation today.

Mr. and Mrs. George Leib, Lee Thrasher, Mrs. Mary Brinkman and Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Bassel have returned from Hagerstown, where they attended the Washington birthday banquet and dance of the Military Order of Purple Heart.

Cpl. Charles A. Taylor, Camp Lee, Va., spent the weekend at his home, 307 Baltimore avenue, having been called here by the serious illness of his grandmother, Mrs. C. S. Ring.

William Douglas Moon, Boatswain Mate 2-c, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Moon, 21 Potomac avenue, Ridgeley, has returned to San Francisco, Calif., where he is stationed with the Troop Train Enlisted Personnel Pool. He was home on emergency leave due to the illness of his father.

Mrs. Mary Wandless, of Potomac Park, wife of Pvt. Stephen Wanless, stationed in Japan, who recently underwent a surgical operation, is recuperating at the home of her sister, Mrs. Earl R. Blauch, Frankfort Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grugan returned to Columbia, S. C., after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Shaffer of 411 Louisiana avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Liller To Be Honored at Family Dinner

Party To Mark Fifty-first Wedding Anniversary; Birthday of Mr. Liller

Mrs. Olive Workman will entertain with a family dinner in a joint celebration of the fifty-first wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Liller, and the seventy-sixth birthday of her father. It will be held tomorrow at the home of her parents, Ellersile road.

Mr. and Mrs. Liller were married on February 26, 1895; and Mr. Liller was born February 27, 1870.

The former Miss Ida May Daugherty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Daugherty, Rio, W. Va., and Mr. Liller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Liller, Purgittsville, W. Va., were married February 26, 1895 in the residence of Dr. Nicholas Leatherman, with the Rev. John Leatherman officiating.

Prior to her marriage Mrs. Liller taught school at Purgittsville. Mr. Liller assisted his father with his farm at the time of his marriage, after which he and his bride moved to New Creek, W. Va., where he was employed at the tannery until 1912, at which time he and Mrs. Liller moved to Cumberland, where he worked for the General Textile Mills until his retirement in 1934, when they moved to their present home on the Ellersile road.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Liller are members of Central Methodist church, this city, and the former is also a member of the Patriotic Order of Sons of America. Although Mr. Liller has been in ill health since December 7, 1944, his condition is greatly improved at present. Mrs. Liller continues in good health.

Mr. and Mrs. Liller are the parents of five children, the late Guy Liller, who was killed in World War I; Mrs. Irma Schade, Ronald Liller, both of this city; Mrs. Wilhelmina McDaniel, St. Louis, Mo.; and Mrs. Workman, at home. They have three grandchildren, Mary Dawn Liller, Don Schade and Staff Sgt. Guy P. Liller, Jr., Browning street, who returned from service in the ETO last November; and one great grand child, Carolyn Jo Liller, who will be one year old on March 3.

YOUNG WOMEN TO HOLD ELEPHANT PARTY TOMORROW

The Young Women's Club of Grace Methodist church formulated plans for an "elephant party" at the meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. John Fisher, LaVale.

The party will be held at the church tomorrow evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Mrs. Harry Hall will be in charge of the refreshments; Mrs. Fisher, of the program and Mrs. W. Raymond Beall, of the white elephant sale.

Mrs. Beall presided at the routine business session and conducted the program. Eight members and two visitors were present.

The next meeting will be held March 25.

Miss Elizabeth Amery To Address American Home Group Tomorrow

Miss Elizabeth Amery, Annapolis, will be the speaker at the meeting of the American Home Group of the Woman's Civic Club tomorrow. The meeting will be held at 2 o'clock at Fort Hill high school.

Miss Amery of the state department of education and state supervisor of home economics, will discuss how the high school prepares girls for their place in the American home.

Tea will be served during the social hour concluding the meeting. Miss Evelyn Miller, home economics teacher, will be in charge, assisted by students of Fort Hill.

Flintstone Faculty Honors Mrs. Roland At Birthday Party

Mrs. Elsie Hill Roland was honored by a group of the faculty of the Flintstone school, with a surprise birthday dinner, Sunday evening at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

This year's school term will complete Mrs. Roland's twentieth year as principal at Flintstone. Prior to her appointment as principal she taught as assistant for eight years. Until three years ago she was the only woman agricultural teacher in the United States.

Recently Mrs. Roland received a letter from Miss Hester Bradley of Bath, Mich., telling her that she had read in an article written by Mrs. Roland published in Better Farming Methods. Mrs. Roland is a Smith-Hughes Agriculture teacher and Miss Bradley teaches at James Couzens Agricultural school, Bath, Mich.

An informal social concluded the dinner and Virgil Atkinson, in behalf of the group, presented an electric roaster to Mrs. Roland.

Hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kolb, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Robinette, Frank McFarland, Miss Florence Thompson, Miss Mary Morgan, Miss Catherine Robinette, Howard Robinette, Miss Pearl Wilson, Mrs. Nan Eaton, Miss Eleanor Eaton, Miss Maude A. Bean, Chester Robinette, Miss Margaret Ringler and J. S. Roland.

REC CLUB MEMBERS AREN'T SUPERSTITIOUS

Mission Study Courses To Be Given Tomorrow

An all day study meeting will be sponsored Thursday by the Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church. The course will begin at 10 o'clock and members of the Second Baptist church this city; Eckhart and First English Baptist church, Frostburg, will be included in the class.

Mrs. Edwin W. Saylor will teach the book, "Stewardship Applied in Missions," by Dr. J. B. Lawrence. The women of the host church will serve tea and coffee for the box lunch.

The Royal Ambassadors, Junior and Intermediate Girls' Auxiliary will come for their study class, immediately after school on Thursday. Mrs. H. O. Waters, Frostburg, will be their teacher. Supper will be served to all who take the course.

ing. Mrs. Edna Gillum was in charge of entertainment and refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held March 22 at the home of Miss Mary Ella Growden, Bedford road.

Strength and Weakness of Major Parties Analyzed in Poll Series

Truman Revealed as Popular but Is Criticized by Conservatives

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 26 — President Truman has lost popularity in recent months but still enjoys the approval of a majority of all voters. This is one of many findings to come from an extensive check-up on the national political situation by the Institute.

In the course of surveying political sentiment toward national politics in all of the states of the Union, nearly a thousand interviewers, reporting to the Institute interviewed thousands of voters in all sections of the country and in all walks of life.

A summary of findings in these nation-wide polls reveals the following facts about the political scene today.

(1) When President Truman first took office he had the enthusiastic support of a majority of voters in both major parties. Republicans and Democrats alike thought he was doing a good job. Today a large bloc of Republican voters have become critical of his political actions and now disapprove of the way he is handling his job.

Still Overwhelmingly Choice

(2) The reason for this defection is that Republicans believe that President Truman is leaning leftward toward the views of labor and liberal groups, whereas they would like to see him keep to a middle of the road policy which they believe he was trying to follow during the early months of his administration.

(3) Although Truman has lost some of his popularity, particularly with conservative elements, he is still the overwhelming choice of rank and file Democratic voters for the Democratic nomination for president in 1948. He gets sixty-seven per cent of the vote of those with opinions; Wallace is second with fifteen per cent. The vote of sixty-seven per cent for nomination in 1948 compares with a vote of seventy-nine per cent for Roosevelt, among Democratic voters, a year and a half before the 1944 election.

(4) With the Congressional elections a few months away, the American public believes that strikes and labor legislation will be the most important issue in the coming campaign. Approximately seven out of every ten voters believe that Congress should do something about the strike situation.

(5) On the Republican side of the fence, Governor Dewey of New York leads the list of presidential candidate possibilities but receives only thirty-eight per cent of the vote of the Republican rank and file. Former Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota is second among Republican voters, as judged by rank and file sentiment, with a vote of twenty-seven per cent of those with opinions. John W. Bricker is third with eight per cent.

Stassen Has Strength

(6) The strength of Harold Stassen can be seen from the fact that in his home territory, the Middle West, he gets a higher vote than Governor Dewey. In Mid-West states Stassen gets thirty-three per cent of the vote of Republicans who have a present choice, Dewey thirty per cent.

7) The strength of the Democratic party is evidenced by the hold which it has upon the middle and lower economic levels. The majority of voters look upon the Republican party as the party of wealth and consider the Democratic party as the party of the people. In this sense the situation has changed radically from the days when the Republican party was thought of as the party of the "full dinner pail."

8) In the handling of national problems the public believes that the Republicans generally would do a better job today in looking after the financial affairs of the country, encouraging new business ventures, keeping taxes from getting too high, keeping up business profits. In contrast, the public believes the Democratic party is better able to deal with world affairs, better able to keep wages right and farm income high.

9) One of the greatest weaknesses of the Republican party is its present inability to attract younger voters into its fold. Approximately two out of every three young voters say they prefer the Democratic to the Republican party.

10) The political views of veterans differ little from those of young voters. War experience has apparently not created a special voting bloc. Veterans hold views almost exactly the same as other voters in the same age levels. Approximately two out of every three veterans say they would vote for the Democratic party if an election were being held today.

11) The big city vote is still the back-bone of Democratic party strength outside the solid South. Not one city of more than 500,000 population has gone Republican in the last three presidential years. Only eight cities in the 100,000 to 500,000 population group went Republican in 1944.

Labor Favors Truman

12) Despite the criticism of Truman on the part of some labor union leaders, the President still shows great strength among organized labor. C.I.O. members tend to be slightly more Democratic than A.F. of L. voters and these two groups are more Democratic than non-union labor. But even the non-union labor gives a substantial majority preference to the Democratic Party.

13) The colored vote which Republicans have repeatedly attempted to win in recent years is still predominantly Democratic in presidential preference, as it has been in the last two presidential elections.

14) The independent voters of the nation still cast the deciding votes in presidential elections. Approximately 9,900,000 voters list themselves as Independents, surveys find. In the last election sixty-two per cent of the Independents voted for Roosevelt as against 38 per cent for Dewey. Today the Independent vote favors the Democratic Party by a slightly lower percentage (fifty-seven per cent).

15) The major source of Republican strength is the rural and farm areas outside the South and the vote of people in the upper economic group. A large majority (fifty-eight per cent) of Mid-West farmers are Republican, surveys find, and the party extended its influence rapidly in rural counties above the Mason-Dixon line from 1936 on. The tide of Republican sentiment has been moving steadily westward, with Kansas the most Republican state today.

Regional Education Plan for Whites And Negroes in South Gains Favor

By HENRY LESESNE

ATLANTA, Feb. 26 (AP) — The South, a land of problems peculiarly its own, is giving increasing attention to a regional approach to education—for both races.

It was out of a southern problem, the racial minority question, that the idea first emerged of each southern state developing a graduate school in a specialized field to which students from all southern states could come.

The Supreme Court of the United States posed the question some years ago when it held in effect that the South must provide equal graduate training for the minority race.

Costs Are Equalized

The states, generally, resorted to the plan of equalizing the tuition costs of negroes who desired to attend colleges in other parts of the country, making up the difference out of their own pockets.

Then this idea came up. Why not regional professional and vocational schools for negroes? The plan, temporarily shelved by the war, is No. 1 at present on the agenda of the Southern Governors Conference.

A committee of the governors conference composed of Govs. Chauncey Sparks, of Alabama, Thomas Bailey, of Mississippi, and C. W. Darden, of Virginia, recommended regional schools for negroes and approved a basic plan whereby each state would provide a specialized college in one field, to which all southern states would send students.

The idea appealed so much to the governors that they asked the committee to look also into the possibility of a similar co-operative exchange of white students.

Nearly every state in the South, it was pointed out, has a school which excels in some line of training—to such an extent that there is no need of the other states trying to compete in that particular field.

Would Improve Instruction

Distance barriers no longer exist. Proponents of the plan contend that a regional educational program would both improve the quality of instruction and reduce the cost.

The committee now is trying to evolve a plan to divide up the educational functions and apportion the students on a regional basis by mutual agreements among the states.

Before the idea can be whipped into an operative plan, however, a definite program must be agreed upon and reciprocal agreements must be approved by the legislatures.

Five Area Men Enlist For Army Service

One veteran and four new enlistees left yesterday for Baltimore, to take examinations for enlistment in the United States Army, Captain Laurence M. Bairstow, local recruiter said yesterday.

The veteran is Edward M. Hadley, 21, son of Mrs. Mary Hadley, 514 Bedford street. He enlisted for eighteen months. Hadley was discharged December 19, after active service in the ETO where he was credited with participation in five battles.

The new enlistees are Elijah Stephen Lawrence, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor D. Lawrence, 520 Virginia avenue; Allen Leroy White, 17, son of Mrs. Zella White, 316 Springdale street; James Wallace Johnson, 17, son of Jaspar Johnson, Keyser, W. Va., and Guy Eugene Fleegle, 18, son of Mrs. Hazel Fleegle, Corriganville.

Four More Yanks Due in States

Four Cumberland soldiers were scheduled to arrive in the United States Tuesday on three troopships. They are Sgt. J. A. Whitman, due at Seattle on the S. S. Marysville Victory; Pfc. Michael J. Counihan and Pvt. Floyd E. Jenkins, at New York on the S. S. William and Mary; and Staff Sgt. Leroy W. Hare, Sr., at New York on the S. S. Tufts Victory.

Cpl. William F. Morgan, of 43 Marion street, and Pfc. Myrl W. Buckman, of Kirby, W. Va., landed at New York Monday from the S. S. Hagerstown Victory.

Alva William, Jr., ART., 3-c, of 431 Cumberland street, has arrived in this country from Saipan and will report to Bainbridge for discharge.

Truman Congratulates Russia on Unifying Her Armed Forces

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) — President Truman today congratulated Soviet Russia on her decision to unify her armed forces.

Asked at his news conference for comment on the merger under which Generalissimo Stalin becomes head of the new "People's Commissariat of the Armed Forces of the USSR," the president replied that he congratulated Russia on this move.

Mr. Truman has recommended to Congress a unification of this country's armed forces.

Truman Is Neutral In Bridge Controversy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) — President Truman remained neutral today in Washington's controversy over whether there should be one or two bridges over the Potomac river on highway fourteen leading into Virginia.

The president, who recently toured Washington with former Secretary of the Interior Ickes to view proposed sites, said he was still considering the matter.

Ickes advocated one six-lane bridge while other officials sponsored two four-lane structures.

Regional Education Plan for Whites And Negroes in South Gains Favor

By HENRY LESESNE

ATLANTA, Feb. 26 (AP) — The South, a land of problems peculiarly its own, is giving increasing attention to a regional approach to education—for both races.

It was out of a southern problem, the racial minority question, that the idea first emerged of each southern state developing a graduate school in a specialized field to which students from all southern states could come.

The Supreme Court of the United States posed the question some years ago when it held in effect that the South must provide equal graduate training for the minority race.

Costs Are Equalized

The states, generally, resorted to the plan of equalizing the tuition costs of negroes who desired to attend colleges in other parts of the country, making up the difference out of their own pockets.

Then this idea came up. Why not regional professional and vocational schools for negroes? The plan, temporarily shelved by the war, is No. 1 at present on the agenda of the Southern Governors Conference.

A committee of the governors conference composed of Govs. Chauncey Sparks, of Alabama, Thomas Bailey, of Mississippi, and C. W. Darden, of Virginia, recommended regional schools for negroes and approved a basic plan whereby each state would provide a specialized college in one field, to which all southern states would send students.

The idea appealed so much to the governors that they asked the committee to look also into the possibility of a similar co-operative exchange of white students.

Nearly every state in the South, it was pointed out, has a school which excels in some line of training—to such an extent that there is no need of the other states trying to compete in that particular field.

Would Improve Instruction

Distance barriers no longer exist. Proponents of the plan contend that a regional educational program would both improve the quality of instruction and reduce the cost.

The committee now is trying to evolve a plan to divide up the educational functions and apportion the students on a regional basis by mutual agreements among the states.

Before the idea can be whipped into an operative plan, however, a definite program must be agreed upon and reciprocal agreements must be approved by the legislatures.

Five Area Men Enlist For Army Service

One veteran and four new enlistees left yesterday for Baltimore, to take examinations for enlistment in the United States Army, Captain Laurence M. Bairstow, local recruiter said yesterday.

The veteran is Edward M. Hadley, 21, son of Mrs. Mary Hadley, 514 Bedford street. He enlisted for eighteen months. Hadley was discharged December 19, after active service in the ETO where he was credited with participation in five battles.

The new enlistees are Elijah Stephen Lawrence, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor D. Lawrence, 520 Virginia avenue; Allen Leroy White, 17, son of Mrs. Zella White, 316 Springdale street; James Wallace Johnson, 17, son of Jaspar Johnson, Keyser, W. Va., and Guy Eugene Fleegle, 18, son of Mrs. Hazel Fleegle, Corrigansville.

Four More Yanks Due in States

Four Cumberland soldiers were scheduled to arrive in the United States Tuesday on three troopships. They are Sgt. J. A. Whitman, due at Seattle on the S. S. Marysville Victory; Pfc. Michael J. Counihan and Pvt. Floyd E. Jenkins, at New York on the S. S. William and Mary; and Staff Sgt. Leroy W. Hare, Sr., at New York on the S. S. Tufts Victory.

Cpl. William F. Morgan, of 43 Marion street, and Pfc. Myrl W. Buckman, of Kirby, W. Va., landed at New York Monday from the S. S. Hagerstown Victory.

Alva William, Jr., ART., 3-c, of 431 Cumberland street, has arrived in this country from Saipan and will report to Bainbridge for discharge.

Truman Congratulates Russia on Unifying Her Armed Forces

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) — President Truman today congratulated Soviet Russia on her decision to unify her armed forces.

Asked at his news conference for comment on the merger under which Generalissimo Stalin becomes head of the new "People's Commissariat of the Armed Forces of the USSR," the president replied that he congratulated Russia on this move.

Mr. Truman has recommended to Congress a unification of this country's armed forces.

Truman Is Neutral In Bridge Controversy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP) — President Truman remained neutral today in Washington's controversy over whether there should be one or two bridges over the Potomac river on highway fourteen leading into Virginia.

The president, who recently toured Washington with former Secretary of the Interior Ickes to view proposed sites, said he was still considering the matter.

Ickes advocated one six-lane bridge while other officials sponsored two four-lane structures.

Lloyd C. Liller, Oakland Barber, Dies Suddenly

Knights of Pythias Lodge Will Conduct Services at Grave

By GEORGE H. HANST

OAKLAND, Feb. 26—Lloyd Carl Liller, 37, local barber, died suddenly at the home of his mother, Mrs. Ida Liller, Liberty street, about 6:30 o'clock last evening. He was found in an unconscious condition and efforts to revive him failed. He was pronounced dead by Dr. E. I. Baumgartner.

Mr. Liller had conducted a barber shop in Oakland for a number of years. He was a member of the Methodist church, Oakland; Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, and a past chancellor commander of the order. He also belonged to the Loyal Order of Moose. He was a past president and assistant director of the Oakland Volunteer Fire company band and was instrumental in its reorganization about two years ago.

He was born August 11, 1908, in Oakland, a son of Mrs. Ida Liller and the late Charles I. Liller.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Hilda Turner Liller, two sons and two daughters, Lloyd Eugene Liller, S 1-c, Bainbridge; Jack Edward Liller and Carol Sue Liller, students in Oakland high school; and Sharon Lynn Liller, at their home on Center street; also his mother, of Oakland; and a sister, Mrs. Anna Jones, Westernport.

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Bolden funeral home, with Dr. Denver C. Pickens, Methodist minister, officiating. Interment will be in the Oakland cemetery with members of the Knights of Pythias lodge having charge of final rites at the grave.

Mrs. Sines Dies

Mrs. Norah V. Reckart Sines, 63, died Monday morning about 12 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Iris Thomas, Sang Run, following a stroke of paralysis.

She was born September 24, 1881, in Preston county, W. Va., a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Sines. She was a member of the Methodist church at Sang Run.

Surviving are five children by her first husband, Mrs. Minnie Dodrill, Morgantown, W. Va.; Mrs. Laura Casteel, Friendsville; Mrs. Genevieve Uphold, Terra Alta; William Reckart, Friendsville; and Theodore Reckart, Deer Park; and three children by her second husband, Mrs. Beatrice Vansickle, Reading, Pa.; Mrs. Iris Thomas, Sang Run; and Byron Sines, Friendsville; also twenty-five grandchildren, four great grandchildren, and one sister, Mrs. Virgie Tasker, Terra Alta.

Fueral services will be conducted Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Sang Run church with Rev. Howard Wriston, Methodist pastor at Friendsville, officiating. Interment will be in the Sang Run cemetery.

Two More English Brides Will Come To Cumberland Area

Two more English brides of servicemen from this area will sail from England, March 2, according to information received here by the local Red Cross chapter.

Mrs. Kathleen J. Miltenberger, of 11 Harrold Road, Bozert, near Wellingbourgh, wife of Sgt. Charles C. Miltenberger, of near Ridgeley, W. Va., will embark March 2 on the S. S. Ericsson.

Mrs. Rose Roberts and 13-months-old son, Eugene, of Leicester, wife and son of Eugene F. Roberts, of near Hambleton, W. Va., are scheduled to sail on the S. S. Brazil.

Two other GI brides and babies now on the high seas en voyage to Cumberland are: Mrs. Dorothy Wigfield and seven-months-old daughter, Margaret F., of Roundhay Road, Leeds, wife and daughter of Master Sgt. Arol Wigfield, Route 4, who left England February 22 aboard the S. S. Argentina.

Mrs. Simone Eckhard, of Nottingham, and 16-months-old son Bruce, dependents of T-Sgt. Oliver Eckhard, Spring street, who are on the S. S. Queen Mary which was scheduled to leave England February 24 and is due in New York about March 2.

Soil Conservation Will Be Discussed

R. E. Laramy, soil conservationist for Allegany county and Harry Delbrook, a farmer of near Mt. Savage, will participate in a discussion at 7:30 o'clock this evening, over station WTBO, on the subject of Soil Conversation.

This is the second in a series of radio discussions on various phases of conservation, being sponsored every two weeks by the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce. Co-operating in the program are several agencies including the soil conservation service; state department of forests; state game and inland fish commission; Allegany County Board of Education and Allegany County Extension Service.

Two weeks ago, Harold W. Smith and Laramy discussed conservation in the first fifteen-minute program of the series.

Dr. Halliday Will Succeed Dr. French

BALTIMORE, Feb. 26 (AP) — Dr. Robert H. Riley Jr., director of the state department of health, announced today that Dr. T. H. Halliday would asume the duties of Anne Arundel county health officer March 1.

Dr. Halliday will relieve Dr. W. J. French, who has been granted leave or absence by the department to visit several Latin American countries as consultant in public health problems for a federal agency, Dr. Riley said.

In addition, the services of the health officers of adjoining counties will be available to Dr. Halliday, Riley said, indicating that Drs. T. R. Shrop of Howard county and Hugh R. Ward of Calvert county would assist him when necessary.

Application Is Filed For New Scout Troop At Petersburg, W. Va.

Application for a charter for the newly organized Boy Scout troop at Petersburg, W. Va., has been filed here, and will be forwarded to national headquarters, Kenneth E. Jackson, scout executive of Potomac Council said yesterday.

The new troop, the second to be formed in the South Branch district has been designated as Troop No. 63, and has twenty-six charter members. The troop is sponsored by the Petersburg Kiwanis club and applicants for the charter include, Earl Sheldon Black, 25, scoutmaster; Olin S. Kimble, 44, assistant scoutmaster; Creed Delton Sions, 41, assistant scoutmaster; Luther Wade Rexrode, 54, chairman; Forest Wells Bowman, 41, and Howard Harmon, 39, troop committeemen.

Jackson said the charter should arrive in about thirty days, at which time he will go to Petersburg to institute the new troop and present the document.

Police Investigate Breaking and Entering Into Cafe and Home

Local police were investigating yesterday reports that a North Centre street cafe and a Cumberland street home had been broken into recently.

The City Cafe, 134 North Centre street, police were told, was entered by way of a skylight yesterday from 1 to 7 a. m. John Crawford, an employe of the place, reported several dollars were taken from a pinball machine which the thieves broke open. A music box also was damaged, police were told, but the cash box in the cafe was not bothered.

Also reported was the entering of the home of Frank Molinari, 32 Cumberland street, Saturday. Police were told a black pocketbook, several sets of combs set with green and pink stones and some ladies' garments were taken.

A formal farewell meeting for Lt. Pinder was held Sunday night and a farewell party was held Monday night.

MELTING POT ARGENTINA TOO BUSY FOR SIESTAS

By LAURANCE F. STUNTZ
AP Newsfeatures

BUENOS AIRES — If Chicago were where Wilmington, North Carolina, is and its shop signs were in Spanish, it would be pretty much like this Argentine capital.

Almost any foreigner can find something in Buenos Aires to remind him of home. New Yorkers find it in the hot, wet air of the subways; Londoners find it in the railroad system; Frenchmen find it in the food. Italians, whose countrymen have formed the bulk of recent heavy immigration to Argentina, find it in the presence of their cousins.

The man from Chicago says the skyline reminds him of home; the woman from Bombay says the sea breeze reminds her of that Indian city; the man from Hamburg hears a lot of German on the streets and the Swedes notice the ships moored at the foot of almost every downtown street.

Buenos Aires is like no other Latin American city. The Indians of Mexico City are lacking; so is the old Spanish flavor of, say, Lima. Buenos Aires is as modern as Los Angeles in its buildings, has world famed meat and a hotter and wetter climate than Washington or Baltimore.

A lot of the capital's cosmopolitan air comes from the heavy immigration. Newspapers here (there are two English dailies, two German, one Yiddish, one French and one Italian in addition to the Spanish ones) note after the names and ages of accident victims their nationalities. Argentines say wryly their country has a minority problem and they are the minority.

Physically, the city is just as far south of the Equator as Wilmington, N. C., is north of it. Streets are straight and gridiron the city, built on a point which bulges into the wide estuary of the La Plata river. Summers are hot—90 degrees and above—and wet; winters are mild but humid.

Capital residents reflect nearly as many national characteristics as their city. They are like the English in the way they flood to the country for their weekends. The universal Saturday half-holiday is called the "English weekend."

They are like the English, too, in their love of sports—football (soccer) stadiums here can seat a third of the 2,500,000 population at one time. The "portenos," as they call themselves in Spanish, are like the French in the way they talk about food, although more like Italians in the way they prepare it.

The vast expanse of country stretching from the coast to the Andes is pure-middle west—from the air the trip from Cordoba to Buenos Aires might just as well be the trip from Kansas City to St. Louis. The country is flat and a seven-foot layer of black top-soil makes it rich. The Argentines say they could grow wheat for forty years before they would have to even give the land a rest.

Their wheat flows to Rosario or Buenos Aires for loading into ships which carry most of it to England and their cattle come usually to the packinghouses south of Buenos Aires to be converted into chilled beef for the British market.

The Buenos Aires child growing up has a nurse if his family belongs to the lower middle class or better. He plays in the park and goes to the Zoological Garden and begs money for candy.

Chances are that as he grows up he will nurture a luxuriant moustache, which he will probably shave off after he gets married.

If he goes to a neighboring country, he will be as surprised as any North American at the habit of going home for lunch and a siesta. And as surprised as any Englishman that the streetcar conductors are not uniformed.

He votes in normal times on the American plan and as quietly as an Englishman. In abnormal times he riots politically as fervently as any Frenchman.

He may be rich or poor, but, except for the language, you couldn't tell him from the man next door.

Candidates for State Officers Are Scarce

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 26 (AP) — If the present rate of filing certificates of candidacy for state offices continues, the pattern of the 1944 primary election filing may be duplicated.

In that election the deadline for filing certificates was March 21 and 23 candidates waited until March to file.

The deadline for filing is April 15.

So far neither party has a candidate for comptroller of the treasury. Four congressional seats — in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth districts — have no aspirant from either party.

In the other two only Democrats have filed.

The Republicans generally appear more reluctant than the Democrats to file. Only one has officially come out for the United States Senate and two for governor. The Democrats, on the other hand, have two major candidates for the Senate and three for the governorship.

Plans Are Announced For Three Projects

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Federal Works Agency today advanced $16,310 to finance preparation of plans and specifications for three projects in Maryland and one in Virginia.

The projects, amount advanced and total cost include:

Maryland: Six-classroom addition and cafeteria at Bladensburg school, $5,000 and $125, 00; eight-classroom addition at Fairmont Heights school, including cafeteria and auditorium, $6,000 and $150,000; cafeteria at Bladensburg high school, $3,000 and $75,000.

In the matter of the Petition of George Edward Currey to Change His Name vs. Ex Parte.

No. 18964 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of the petition in the above case is to change the name of George Edward Currey to that of George Edward Vannoy.

The petition states that the petitioner is thirty years of age, has been a resident of Cumberland for the past two years, and the reason the petitioner desires to have his name changed is because the name of Vannoy has been used by him for a long period of time, and because he is commonly known by the name of Vannoy and not by the name of Currey.

It is thereupon this 5th. day of February, 1946, ordered by the Circuit Court for Allegany County in Equity that the petitioner cause a copy of this order, with the object and substance of the petition, to be inserted in some daily newspaper published in Allegany County, Maryland, once a week for three successive weeks before the 27th. day of February, 1946, giving notice to whom it may concern to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 2nd. day of March, 1946, to show cause, if any there be, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Lloyd C. Liller, Oakland Barber, Dies Suddenly

Knights of Pythias Lodge Will Conduct Services at Grave

By GEORGE H. HANST

OAKLAND, Feb. 26—Lloyd Carl Liller, 37, local barber, died suddenly at the home of his mother, Mrs. Ida Liller, Liberty street, about 6:30 o'clock last evening. He was found in an unconscious condition and efforts to revive him failed. He was pronounced dead by Dr. E. I. Baumgartner.

Mr. Liller had conducted a barber shop in Oakland for a number of years. He was a member of the Methodist church, Oakland; Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, and a past chancellor commander of the order. He also belonged to the Loyal Order of Moose. He was a past president and assistant director of the Oakland Volunteer Fire company band and was instrumental in its reorganization about two years ago.

He was born August 11, 1908, in Oakland, a son of Mrs. Ida Liller and the late Charles I. Liller.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Hilda Turner Liller, two sons and two daughters, Lloyd Eugene Liller, S 1-c, Bainbridge; Jack Edward Liller and Carol Sue Liller, students in Oakland high school; and Sharon Lynn Liller, at their home on Center street; also his mother, of Oakland; and a sister, Mrs. Anna Jones, Westernport.

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Bolden funeral home, with Dr. Denver C. Pickens, Methodist minister, officiating. Interment will be in the Oakland cemetery with members of the Knights of Pythias lodge having charge of final rites at the grave.

Mrs. Sines Dies

Mrs. Norah V. Reckart Sines, 63, died Monday morning about 12 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Iris Thomas, Sang Run, following a stroke of paralysis.

She was born September 24, 1881, in Preston county, W. Va., a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Sines. She was a member of the Methodist church at Sang Run.

Surviving are five children by her first husband, Mrs. Minnie Dodrill, Morgantown, W. Va.; Mrs. Laura Casteel, Friendsville; Mrs. Genevieve Uphold, Terra Alta; William Reckart, Friendsville; and Theodore Reckart, Deer Park; and three children by her second husband, Mrs. Beatrice Vansickle, Reading, Pa.; Mrs. Iris Thomas, Sang Run; and Byron Sines, Friendsville; also twenty-five grandchildren, four great grandchildren, and one sister, Mrs. Virgie Tasker, Terra Alta.

Fueral services will be conducted Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Sang Run church with Rev. Howard Wriston, Methodist pastor at Friendsville, officiating. Interment will be in the Sang Run cemetery.

Two More English Brides Will Come To Cumberland Area

Two more English brides of servicemen from this area will sail from England, March 2, according to information received here by the local Red Cross chapter.

Mrs. Kathleen J. Miltenberger, of 11 Harrold Road, Bozert, near Wellingbourgh, wife of Sgt. Charles C. Miltenberger, of near Ridgeley, W. Va., will embark March 2 on the S. S. Ericsson.

Mrs. Rose Roberts and 13-months-old son, Eugene, of Leicester, wife and son of Eugene F. Roberts, of near Hambleton, W. Va., are scheduled to sail on the S. S. Brazil.

Two other GI brides and babies now on the high seas en voyage to Cumberland are: Mrs. Dorothy Wigfield and seven-months-old daughter, Margaret F., of Roundhay Road, Leeds, wife and daughter of Master Sgt. Arol Wigfield, Route 4, who left England February 22 aboard the S. S. Argentina.

Mrs. Simone Eckhard, of Nottingham, and 16-months-old son Bruce, dependents of T-Sgt. Oliver Eckhard, Spring street, who are on the S. S. Queen Mary which was scheduled to leave England February 24 and is due in New York about March 2.

Soil Conservation Will Be Discussed

R. E. Laramy, soil conservationist for Allegany county and Harry Delbrook, a farmer of near Mt. Savage, will participate in a discussion at 7:30 o'clock this evening, over station WTBO, on the subject of Soil Conversation.

This is the second in a series of radio discussions on various phases of conservation, being sponsored every two weeks by the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce. Co-operating in the program are several agencies including the soil conservation service; state department of forests; state game and inland fish commission; Allegany County Board of Education and Allegany County Extension Service.

Two weeks ago, Harold W. Smith and Laramy discussed conservation in the first fifteen-minute program of the series.

Dr. Halliday Will Succeed Dr. French

BALTIMORE, Feb. 26 (AP) — Dr Robert H. Riley Jr., director of the state department of health, announced today that Dr. T. H. Halliday would asume the duties of Anne Arundel county health officer March 1.

Dr. Halliday will relieve Dr. W. J. French, who has been granted leave or absence by the department to visit several Latin American countries as consultant in public health problems for a federal agency, Dr. Riley said.

In addition, the services of the health officers of adjoining counties will be available to Dr. Halliday, Riley said, indicating that Drs. T. R. Shrop of Howard county and Hugh R. Ward of Calvert county would assist him when necessary.

MELTING POT ARGENTINA TOO BUSY FOR SIESTAS

By LAURANCE F. STUNTZ
AP Newsfeatures

BUENOS AIRES — If Chicago were where Wilmington, North Carolina, is and its shop signs were in Spanish, it would be pretty much like this Argentine capital.

Almost any foreigner can find something in Buenos Aires to remind him of home. New Yorkers find it in the hot, wet air of the subways; Londoners find it in the railroad system; Frenchmen find it in the food. Italians, whose countrymen have formed the bulk of recent heavy immigration to Argentina, find it in the presence of their cousins.

The man from Chicago says the skyline reminds him of home; the woman from Bombay says the sea breeze reminds her of that Indian city; the man from Hamburg hears a lot of German on the streets and the Swedes notice the ships moored at the foot of almost every downtown street.

Buenos Aires is like no other Latin American city. The Indians of Mexico City are lacking; so is the old Spanish flavor of, say, Lima. Buenos Aires is as modern as Los Angeles in its buildings, has world famed meat and a hotter and wetter climate than Washington or Baltimore.

A lot of the capital's cosmopolitan air comes from the heavy immigration. Newspapers here (there are two English dailies, two German, one Yiddish, one French and one Italian in addition to the Spanish ones) note after the names and ages of accident victims their nationalities. Argentines say wryly their country has a minority problem and they are the minority.

Physically, the city is just as far south of the Equator as Wilmington, N. C., is north of it. Streets are straight and gridiron the city, built on a point which bulges into the wide estuary of the La Plata river. Summers are hot—90 degrees and above—and wet; winters are mild but humid.

Capital residents reflect nearly as many national characteristics as their city. They are like the English in the way they flood to the country for their weekends. The universal Saturday half-holiday is called the "English weekend."

They are like the English, too, in their love of sports—football (soccer) stadiums here can seat a third of the 2,500,000 population at one time. The "portenos," as they call themselves in Spanish, are like the French in the way they talk about food, although more like Italians in the way they prepare it.

The vast expanse of country stretching from the coast to the Andes is pure-middle west—from the air the trip from Cordoba to Buenos Aires might just as well be the trip from Kansas City to St. Louis. The country is flat and a seven-foot layer of black top-soil makes it rich. The Argentines say they could grow wheat for forty years before they would have to even give the land a rest.

Their wheat flows to Rosario or Buenos Aires for loading into ships which carry most of it to England and their cattle come usually to the packinghouses south of Buenos Aires to be converted into chilled beef for the British market.

The Buenos Aires child growing up has a nurse if his family belongs to the lower middle class or better. He plays in the park and goes to the Zoological Garden and begs money for candy.

Chances are that as he grows up he will nurture a luxuriant moustache, which he will probably shave off after he gets married.

If he goes to a neighboring country, he will be as surprised as any North American at the habit of going home for lunch and a siesta. And as surprised as any Englishman that the streetcar conductors are not uniformed.

He votes in normal times on the American plan and as quietly as an Englishman. In abnormal times he riots politically as fervently as any Frenchman.

He may be rich or poor, but, except for the language, you couldn't tell him from the man next door.

Candidates for State Officers Are Scarce

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 26 (AP) — If the present rate of filing certificates of candidacy for state offices continues, the pattern of the 1944 primary election filing may be duplicated.

In that election the deadline for filing certificates was March 21 and 23 candidates waited until March to file.

Candidates planning to take part in the June 24 primary have been similarly slow in filing their certificates with the secretary of state.

The deadline for filing is April 15. So far neither party has a candidate for comptroller of the treasury. Four congressional seats — in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth districts — have no aspirant from either party.

In the other two only Democrats have filed.

The Republicans generally appear more reluctant than the Democrats to file. Only one has officially come out for the United States Senate and two for governor. The Democrats, on the other hand, have two major candidates for the Senate and three for the governorship.

Plans Are Announced For Three Projects

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Federal Works Agency today advanced $16,310 to finance preparation of plans and specifications for three projects in Maryland and one in Virginia.

The projects, amount advanced and total cost include:

In the matter of the Petition of George Edward Currey to Change His Name vs. Ex Parte.
No. 18964 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The petition states that the petitioner is thirty years of age, has been a resident of Cumberland for the past two years, and the reason the petitioner desires to have his name changed is because the name of Vannoy has been used by him for a long period of time, and because he is commonly known by the name of Vannoy and not by the name of Currey.

It is thereupon this 5th. day of February, 1946, ordered by the Circuit Court for Allegany County in Equity that the petitioner cause a copy of this order, with the object and substance of the petition, to be inserted in some daily newspaper published in Allegany County, Maryland, once a week for three successive weeks before the 27th. day of February, 1946, giving notice to whom it may concern to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 2nd. day of March, 1946, to show cause, if any there be, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Lorraine Plummer Becomes Bride Of Roy W. Guy

Ceremony Is Performed in First Methodist Church, Frostburg

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG, Feb. 26—Roy Wilson Guy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Guy, Morgantown, W. Va., and Miss Lorraine Plummer, daughter of Mrs. Anna S. Plummer, Wright's Crossing, were married Monday, 6 p. m., in First Methodist church by the Rev. Watson E. Holley.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Edna M. Engle sang "I Love You Truly," with Mrs. Thelma Rephann at the organ. Mrs. Rephann also played the traditional wedding marches.

The bridge, given in marriage by her brother, William Lee Plummer, was attired in a light green suit with matching accessories and a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Paul Powers, who served as bridesmaid, wore a pink suit with matching accessories and a corsage of red rosebuds. Patrick Donnelly, Cumberland, served as best man.

Mrs. Guy, a graduate of Beall high school with the class of 1936, also attended Catherman's Business college, Cumberland, and worked at the Celanese plant until December, 1944, when she enlisted in the WAVES. She trained at Hunter college, N. Y., and served as a storekeeper, first class, at San Diego until her discharge.

Mr. Guy was recently discharged from the navy after being in service three and a half years. He served part of the time in the Pacific theater of operations as a pharmacist's mate, first class.

The couple plan to reside in Washington, where the groom will attend school under provisions of the GI Bill of Rights.

Hill Addresses Rotarians

Charles Hill, local newsdealer, was the speaker Monday evening at the luncheon of the Frostburg Rotary Club. He gave a vocational talk. Miss Cleo Dawson, a guest, also spoke briefly after being introduced by Prof. Ivan C. Diehl. Her talk related to lasting peace through a world brotherhood. Visitors were Max Bastion and Joseph Tuk, of the Cumberland club.

Later in the evening, Miss Dawson was the speaker on the second Forum lecture of the Frostburg Institute of International Understanding being sponsored by the Frostburg Rotary Club. The subject of Miss Dawson's address was "The Constructive Use of Air Transport". Next week the program will be in charge of Harold Carl.

Earl L. Maxwell, Widely Known Attorney, Dies in Elkins, W. Va.

Native of Tucker County Suffers Fatal Heart Attack at Home

By HELEN COLLETT

PARSONS, Feb. 26 — Earl Linsey Maxwell, 57, widely known Northern West Virginia attorney died unexpectedly at his home in Elkins Sunday night of a heart attack.

Mr. Maxwell was recovering from a severe injury suffered last October and had spent the day at his home. He became ill about 10:15 p. m., and his death occurred before medical assistance could be obtained.

He was a native of Tucker county, and spent his entire lifetime in that section. He was born at St. George, Tucker county, September 7, 1888, a son of the late Wilson B., and Carrie Linsey Maxwell. His father was a prominent attorney, as had been his grandfather, Rufus Maxwell, who practiced in Tucker county. It was the Maxwell family that wrote the first history of the early settlers of this county.

The family moved to Parsons and then went to Elkins in the early 1900's.

Mr. Maxwell attended public schools in Tucker and Randolph counties, Davis and Elkins college, and was graduated from West Virginia university Law school in 1909 at the age of 20.

On graduation from law school he engaged in the practice of law with his father ntil the latter's death twenty years ago.

He was a Democrat and had been active in his party's affairs since young manhood. He was elected prosecuting attorney of Randolph county in 1915.

On November 25, 1919 he married Miss Nellie E. Rexstrew who with one son, Robert Earl Maxwell a pre-law student at Davis and Elkins college, survive.

Also surviving are the following brothers and sisters Dr. Norman E. Maxwell of Welch, Mrs. John Hoffman of Morgantown; Mrs. Gene Alcott of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Joseph Maxwell of Chicago, Ill.

Receives Lodge Award

Luther J. Griffith, of Hambleton, is eighty years old and is the second oldest member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows in the state of West Virginia. He has been awarded a sixty year pin in that lodge.

Mr. Griffith who has been a carpenter all of his life, was born at Aurora, Preston county, and can remember coming to Tucker county to St. George when a lad of ten, for he drove a cow from his home.

He was born August 10, 1865, a son of Hillary and Elizabeth Rhinehart Griffith. His father, a member of the Seventeenth Regiment of the Civil war was poisoned in Wheeling when he and his regiment were fed poison pies while stationed there.

After his death, the mother brought her children to St. George to rear them and it was that town, then the county seat of Tucker county, that Mr. Griffith first joined the Odd Fellow Lodge in 1886.

He was married to Lillian Ford in Hambleton, September 1902, and they had four children. Mrs. Fuller Gooding, of Thomas, died three years ago and three children living are Carl P. Griffith of Waterbury, Conn., Harry M. Griffith of Thomas, and Joseph Blaine Griffith, a veteran of World War II, who is now a patient in the Veterans' Hospital in Oteen, N. C.

Mr. Griffith has one brother and two sisters living, all older than he. His brother, J. D. Griffith, of Hambleton, will observe his ninety-eight

Coney Volunteer Firemen Honor Former Members

By MARIE MERRBACH

LONACONING, Feb. 26—Goodwill Volunteer Fire Company No. 1, Lonaconing, held a "Welcome Home" supper Sunday evening for members of their fire company who served during World War II and are now honorably discharged. They are Henry Robertson, Robert Love, Raymond Eichhorn, Ellis Byers, Robert Robertson and William Richardson.

William Marshall was chairman of the affair, with Felix Foote Sr., George Eichhorn, Thomas Fisher and Adam Byers on the committee.

George Eichhorn acted as toastmaster. Col. George Henderson, Cumberland, was the principal speaker. Gorman Getty also spoke.

Entertainers were the three Lodgson sisters, Eleanor, Maryanna and Patsy, with Mrs. Gerald A. Paris, pianist, and Mrs. John Turnbull, vocalist.

This is the first time the organization has had a full gathering since the war.

Former Resident Dies

Mrs. Mary Robertson, Mrs. Bessie Eilbeck and Mrs. Harry Patton, Cresaptown, and Mrs. Charles Carlson, Monessen, Pa., have returned from Detroit, Mich., where they attended the funeral of the Rev. James Patton, Jr., of the Carnell Baptist church.

He was a native of Lonaconing, having left here at the age of thirteen. He was the oldest grandson of Mrs. Euphemia Patton, Lonaconing.

The Rev. Patton is survived by his widow, his father, James Patton, Sr., one sister and a brother.

Services were held from the Carnell Baptist church in Detroit, where he was a pastor for three years.

Couple Honored

A shower was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hacker Sunday, in honor of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hacker, Jr., who were recently married.

Recent Bride Honored

A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Metz, Laurel Run, recently in honor of their only daughter, Nellie, who was married to Cpl. Joseph "Pepper" Inskeep, Barton, December 22 at the parsonage of the First Methodist church, Lonaconing, by the Rev. John E. Stacks, pastor.

Cpl. Inskeep is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Inskeep, Barton, and is stationed at Dover, Del. He was unable to get home for the occasion as he is confined to a hospital there with the grippe.

Mrs. Inskeep is a graduate of Barton High school, class of 1944, and is employed in the laboratory department at the Celanese plant.

Clarence Metz and Joseph Inskeep, fathers of the couple, planned the entertainment for the evening. The "Dance of the Islands" was presented by Miss Vera Miller, Grantsville. Mrs. Carrie Dye, Lonaconing, danced several heel and toe polkas. Mrs. Metz, mother of the bride, sang, "Some Sunday Morning" and "Honey". Music was furnished by Raymond Michael, Barton. Mrs. Mabel Metz and Mrs. Annie Inskeep, mothers of the couple, served refreshments.

Mrs. Inskeep received many attractive gifts. The young couple plan on building a new home in the spring, following Cpl. Inskeep's discharge from the service.

Soldier Escapes Guards on Way To Hospital

Disappears from Train En Route to Newton D. Baker Institution

By LUKE McDOWELL

KEYSER, W. Va., Feb. 26 — The city police office received a radio message from Newton D. Baker Government hospital, Martinsburg, to be on the lookout for Frank Rep Kott (or Cott), who escaped his guards and disappeared from a train while enroute to the hospital.

He is described as follows:

ASN 13206639, age 31, height five feet, ten inches, weight 176; brown hair, nearly bald; wearing combat boots, cavalry braid on cap. The call asked all state police between Parkersburg and Keyser and those in the neighboring counties in Maryland to be on the alert for any trace of this soldier who is described as a mental case.

Class Visits Court

Miss Mernie Judy, principal of the Burlington elementary school, brought her civics class of twenty members to Keyser this morning and spent the day visiting the several offices in the court house. This is Miss Judy's method of giving her class first-hand information of the way various departments of the county government work.

Harry O. Rogers, clerk of the county court, explained to the class the way the vital and statistical and land records are kept showing the evolution of recording from the old way of writing records, long hand, in ponderous books, to the present photostatic method. Paul W. Dayton, told of the processes of the circuit court in which he serves as clerk. He told of the jury system, both the grand jury and the petit jury, explaining the functions of each. He told of the duties of the judge of

Lorraine Plummer Becomes Bride Of Roy W. Guy

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG, Feb. 26—Roy Wilson Guy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Guy, Morgantown, W. Va., and Miss Lorraine Plummer, daughter of Mrs. Anna S. Plummer, Wright's Crossing, were married Monday, 6 p. m., in First Methodist church by the Rev. Watson E. Holley.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Edna M. Engle sang "I Love You Truly," with Mrs. Thelma Rephann at the organ. Mrs. Rephann also played the traditional wedding marches.

The bridge, given in marriage by her brother, William Lee Plummer, was attired in a light green suit with matching accessories and a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Paul Powers, who served as bridesmaid, wore a pink suit with matching accessories and a corsage of red rosebuds. Patrick Donnelly, Cumberland, served as best man.

Mrs. Guy, a graduate of Beall high school with the class of 1936, also attended Catherman's Business college, Cumberland, and worked at the Celanese plant until December, 1944, when she enlisted in the WAVES. She trained at Hunter college, N. Y., and served as a storekeeper, first class, at San Diego until her discharge.

Mr. Guy was recently discharged from the navy after being in service three and a half years. He served part of the time in the Pacific theater of operations as a pharmacist's mate, first class.

The couple plan to reside in Washington, where the groom will attend school under provisions of the GI Bill of Rights.

Hill Addresses Rotarians

Charles Hill, local newsdealer, was the speaker Monday evening at the luncheon of the Frostburg Rotary Club. He gave a vocational talk. Miss Cleo Dawson, a guest, also spoke briefly after being introduced by Prof. Ivan C. Diehl. Her talk related to lasting peace through a world brotherhood. Visitors were Max Bastion and Joseph Tuk, of the Cumberland club.

Later in the evening, Miss Dawson was the speaker on the second Forum lecture of the Frostburg Institute of International Understanding being sponsored by the Frostburg Rotary Club. The subject of Miss Dawson's address was "The Constructive Use of Air Transport". Next week the program will be in charge of Harold Carl.

Earl L. Maxwell, Widely Known Attorney, Dies in Elkins, W. Va.

By HELEN COLLETT

PARSONS, Feb. 26 — Earl Linsey Maxwell, 57, widely known Northern West Virginia attorney died unexpectedly at his home in Elkins Sunday night of a heart attack.

Mr. Maxwell was recovering from a severe injury suffered last October and had spent the day at his home. He became ill about 10:15 p. m., and his death occurred before medical assistance could be obtained.

He was a native of Tucker county, and spent his entire lifetime in that section. He was born at St. George, Tucker county, September 7, 1888, a son of the late Wilson B., and Carrie Linsey Maxwell. His father was a prominent attorney, as had been his grandfather, Rufus Maxwell, who practiced in Tucker county. It was the Maxwell family that wrote the first history of the early settlers of this county.

The family moved to Parsons and then went to Elkins in the early 1900's.

Mr. Maxwell attended public schools in Tucker and Randolph counties, Davis and Elkins college, and was graduated from West Virginia university Law school in 1909 at the age of 20.

On graduation from law school he engaged in the practice of law with his father ntil the latter's death twenty years ago.

He was a Democrat and had been active in his party's affairs since young manhood. He was elected prosecuting attorney of Randolph county in 1915.

On November 25, 1919 he married Miss Nellie E. Rexstrew who with one son, Robert Earl Maxwell a pre-law student at Davis and Elkins college, survive.

Also surviving are the following brothers and sisters Dr. Norman E. Maxwell of Welch, Mrs. John Hoffman of Morgantown; Mrs. Gene Alcott of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Joseph Maxwell of Chicago, Ill.

Receives Lodge Award

Luther J. Griffith, of Hambleton, is eighty years old and is the second oldest member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows in the state of West Virginia. He has been awarded a sixty year pin in that lodge.

Mr. Griffith who has been a carpenter all of his life, was born at Aurora, Preston county, and can remember coming to Tucker county to St. George when a lad of ten, for he drove a cow from his home.

He was born August 10, 1865, a son of Hillary and Elizabeth Rhinehart Griffith. His father, a member of the Seventeenth Regiment of the Civil war was poisoned in Wheeling when he and his regiment were fed poison pies while stationed there.

After his death, the mother brought her children to St. George to rear them and it was that town, then the county seat of Tucker county, that Mr. Griffith first joined the Odd Fellow Lodge in 1886.

He was married to Lillian Ford in Hambleton, September 1902, and they had four children, Mrs. Fuller Gooding, of Thomas, died three years ago and three children living are Carl P. Griffith of Waterbury, Conn., Harry M. Griffith of Thomas, and Joseph Blaine Griffith, a veteran of World War II, who is now a patient in the Veterans' Hospital in Oteen, N. C.

Mr. Griffith has one brother and two sisters living, all older than he. His brother, J. D. Griffith, of Hambleton, will observe his ninety-eight

Coney Volunteer Firemen Honor Former Members

By MARIE MERRBACH

LONACONING, Feb. 26—Goodwill Volunteer Fire Company No. 1, Lonaconing, held a "Welcome Home" supper Sunday evening for members of their fire company who served during World War II and are now honorably discharged. They are Henry Robertson, Robert Love, Raymond Eichhorn, Ellis Byers, Robert Robertson and William Richardson.

William Marshall was chairman of the affair, with Felix Foote Sr., George Eichhorn, Thomas Fisher and Adam Byers on the committee.

George Eichhorn acted as toastmaster. Col. George Henderson, Cumberland, was the principal speaker. Gorman Getty also spoke.

Entertainers were the three Lodgson sisters, Eleanor, Maryanna and Patsy, with Mrs. Gerald A. Paris, pianist, and Mrs. John Turnbull, vocalist.

This is the first time the organization has had a full gathering since the war.

Former Resident Dies

Mrs. Mary Robertson, Mrs. Bessie Eilbeck and Mrs. Harry Patton, Cresaptown, and Mrs. Charles Carlson, Monessen, Pa., have returned from Detroit, Mich., where they attended the funeral of the Rev. James Patton, Jr., of the Carnell Baptist church.

He was a native of Lonaconing, having left here at the age of thirteen. He was the oldest grandson of Mrs. Euphemia Patton, Lonaconing.

The Rev. Patton is survived by his widow, his father, James Patton, Sr., one sister and a brother.

Services were held from the Carnell Baptist church in Detroit, where he was a pastor for three years.

Couple Honored

A shower was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hacker Sunday, in honor of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hacker, Jr., who were recently married.

Recent Bride Honored

A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Metz, Laurel Run, recently in honor of their only daughter, Nellie, who was married to Cpl. Joseph "Pepper" Inskeep, Barton, December 22 at the parsonage of the First Methodist church, Lonaconing, by the Rev. John E. Stacks, pastor.

Cpl. Inskeep is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Inskeep, Barton, and is stationed at Dover, Del. He was unable to get home for the occasion as he is confined to a hospital there with the grippe.

Mrs. Inskeep is a graduate of Barton High school, class of 1944, and is employed in the laboratory department at the Celanese plant.

Clarence Metz and Joseph Inskeep, fathers of the couple, planned the entertainment for the evening. The "Dance of the Islands" was presented by Miss Vera Miller, Grantsville. Mrs. Carrie Dye, Lonaconing, danced several heel and toe polkas. Mrs. Metz, mother of the bride, sang, "Some Sunday Morning" and "Honey". Music was furnished by Raymond Michael, Barton. Mrs. Mabel Metz and Mrs. Annie Inskeep, mothers of the couple, served refreshments.

Mrs. Inskeep received many attractive gifts. The young couple plan on building a new home in the spring, following Cpl. Inskeep's discharge from the service.

Pfc. Don Heller Is Spending Furlough Here

Pfc. Don L. Heller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman M. Heller, 716 Elm street, is home on furlough from the marine corps, and will return to duty at Quantico, Va., April 8.

Herman Heller, an ex-marine platoon sergeant was discharged from the marine corps in January and has returned to his place of former employment at the Baltimore and Ohio bolt and forge shops here. He enlisted in the marines in April 1943, and was stationed at Quantico as a platoon sergeant and instructor during the war.

He had seven years prior service in the corps, and was a sergeant in Company D, Maryland State Guard here prior to his enlistment. He was active in helping organize the state guard, and wher the need for instructors in the marine corps arose, he enlisted and trained several thousand recruits at Quantico.

During his marine corps career, Sgt. Heller was a member of the Quantico Marine Corps rifle and pistol teams, and he is considered one of the best small arms marksmen in this section. He still follows target shooting as a hobby.

His son, Pfc. Heller, entered the marines in April 1945, after graduating from Fort Hill high school. At Parris Island, S. C., where he took his boot training, he attained recognition as a marksman by shooting the second highest score ever attained on the rifle range there. He scored 328 points out of 340. The highest recorded score is 330. Heller fired his score on a rainy day, when visibility was not too good. He was later sent to Camp Dunlap, Cal., and held the marksmanship record there.

With the help of his father, he has been transferred to Quantico, where he hopes to follow in his Dad's footsteps and become a member of the famous marine's rifle and pistol team at that base.

—Maryland families received $22,139,000 in life insurance death benefit payments during 1945, compared with $20,035,000 in the previous year and $19,856,000 in 1943, the Institute of Life Insurance reports.

State's Coal Output Is 1,853,000 Tons

Coal Was Taken from Mines in Allegany, Garrett Counties

Coal produced in Maryland in 1945 amounted to 1,853,000 tons, according to a report of the Fifth Federal Reserve district. The coal was taken from mines in Allegany and Garrett counties.

A similar report for Bedford county, Pa., showed an output of 732,797 tons in the same period.

The peak monthly production in Maryland mines was reached last October when 171,000 tons were removed, while the lowest amount mined during 1945 totalled 138,000 tons in February, 1945.

Output in Maryland during 1945 was as follows each month:

January	146,000 tons.
February	138,000 tons.
March	167,000 tons.
April	146,000 tons.
May	147,000 tons.
June	158,000 tons.
July	157,000 tons.
August	151,000 tons.
September	147,000 tons.
October	171,000 tons.
November	161,000 tons.
December	164,000 tons.
Total	1,853,000 tons.

The Maryland Bureau of Mines reports that strip mining is on the increase in Allegany and Garrett counties with more tha ten firms engaged in this type of production.

Bedford county, Pa., was second highest in output in the 18th Bituminous District in Pennsylvania with only Clearfield county topping its output. The latter county had a total of 811,138 tons mined during the year. Output in Bedford county by various companies follows:

Rockhill Coal Co.	298,062
H. B. Mellott	77,522

Five Permits Issued By City Engineer

Three building permits and two occupancy permits were granted yesterday by Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer.

Ralph S. Wilson, Midland, secured a permit to remodel the second floor of a building at 122 Union street for an apartment. The work, estimated to cost $400, will be done by Henry Dressman, who took out the permit in Wilson's name.

Another building permit was granted to Mrs. Dolan Lewis to construct a one-story concrete block garage, estimated to cost $500, at the rear of 209 Thomas street. The building will measure 22 by 32 feet.

Mrs. Bessie May Davis, 1418 River avenue, secured a permit to build a one-story addition to a service station at 1600 Ford avenue, at an estimated cost of $200. The addition, which will measure 13 by 21 feet, will have a concrete foundation, concrete block walls and a ruberoid roof. Construction will be done by H. E. Shobe.

Charles F. Burke, Jr., secured a permit for Dr. John K. Rozum, 1002 Holland street, to use the first story of a building at 305 Decatur street as an office. The building, located in a Residential C zoning district, was formerly occupied as a nurses' home, classroom and laboratory.

E. C. Sewell, Allegany inn, secured a permit to use part of the first floor of a building at 204 Baltimore avenue as a radio repair shop. The premises, formerly occupied as a general repair shop, are located in a business zoning district.

Mother and Son Finally Reunited

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26 (AP)—An Indianapolis woman and her 20-year-old son, separated for eleven years, passed each other in Union Station here today, but did not recognize each other.

They were reunited a few minutes later in joyful embraces after a newsman brought them together.

The mother, Mary O'Day, waited hopefully for the train bearing her son, Pvt. Leo Reisacker, from his camp at Aberdeen, Md. The youth came through the gate, looked at his mother and passed on. His mother turned her eager face to the next soldier, but her anxiety was relieved a short while later when her son returned.

Miss O'Day, who assumed her maiden name a number of years ago after the death of her husband in an accident, lost trace of her son and a 22-year-old daughter, Phoebe, after placing them in a children's home in Columbus, Ohio.

The boy began a search for his mother after learning he was to be sent overseas. A newspaper story brought them together.

New Well Expected To Give Steady Flow of Gas

Drillers Bring in New Commercial Supply near Davis, W. Va.

A steady flow of natural gas is expected from the well brought in Saturday by drillers in Canaan valley, nine miles from Davis, W. Va., officials of the Ohio Oil Company said yesterday.

The firm has been working in that section since 1942 in an effort to find a new supply of gas.

The drillers reached a depth of more than a mile before the gas in commercial quantities was found, and it was estimated that a flow of 3,000,000 to 7,000,000 cubic feet daily is assured. Using a huge rotary drill, the workers reached the gas at a depth of 8,403 feet.

Three Towers Erected

The Big Chief Drilling Company, of Tulsa, Okla., employed by the Ohio Oil Company, has 15 men working on a 24-hour schedule, with three towers erected in the Tucker county area. Work was started last March on the tract, which is owned by the Kuykendall estate.

John L. Clymer, general office manager of the oil company, estimated that equipment valued at $250,000 is being used in bringing in the new supply of gas, and said the well is the farthest east ever to be drilled in the Oriskany sand strata.

Two "wild cat" wells were brought in during the past 12 months, and gas discovered, but not in commercial quantities, according to Bruce R. Miller, petroleum engineer, and M. P. Popp, drilling superintendent for the oil company.

To Make "Hook Ups"

Officials of the firm said today that a better estimate of the well's production could be made within a few days, after "hook ups" of the drilling equipment are completed.

The gas will be piped to the lines of one of the companies which supply West Virginia and Maryland consumers, it was said, but arrangements are still pending and it is not known which firm will receive the supply.

One natural gas company official in Charleston said the discovery might "do a great deal" toward relieving the shortage which periodically plagues eastern industries. There is a possibility that other wells may be discovered in the Tucker county section.

Head of Berkeley Music Center Is Found Shot to Death

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26 (AP)—Charles Mallory Dutton, head of the Berkeley Music Center and noted musician, was found dead today on the University of California campus with a bullet wound in the left temple.

A university gardener found the body beside a creek in Strawberry canyon, across from Dutton's Berkeley home.

Police Inspector R. F. Parker said a small revolver and a note were found beside the body of the 68-year-old musician, who for more than thirty years had conducted the Berkeley Music Center in his large home.

The note, inspector Parker said, complained bitterly that after long years there Dutton was to be evicted.

"I am hurled into this sudden labyrinth," he quoted. "There is no available place to transfer the music center. x x x my usefulness here automatically terminates. x x x suddenly life appears to collapse. x x x I cannot conceal the grim truth."

ANNOUNCING

YOU ARE WHAT YOU ACCEPT

You are what you accept.

That's going to arouse protesting snorts from many, maybe most, of our leading citizens.

Generally speaking, we don't believe that we are what we accept. We believe we are what our mothers and fathers, grandmothers and grandfathers, back in the dim beginnings made us. We believe we take this trait from Great Uncle Ed and that tendency from Aunt Susan. Also there are a dozen other sources to bear the responsibility for our personality. There's the old schoolhouse and the silly way people had to act back in the nineties . . . and the tough breaks we had getting our first job . . . and the fact that nobody understands us—

In short, we have a dozen alibis for being what we are today . . . a dozen reasons for our faults and failures . . . and all of them seem logical in our eyes.

They aren't logical. They aren't even true. We aren't the inevitable product of our glands. We aren't what grandpa and grandma made us or what the little old school house did to us. We weren't molded into our present pattern by the silly taboos and traditions of the nineties.

WE ARE WHAT WE ACCEPT AS WE GO ALONG—AND BY WHAT WE REJECT.

In short, we are what we make ourselves by our own prejudices and fears, our intolerance and jealousies, our cautions and cowardice, our cussedness and our dumbness.

Two men or two women may see the same things in life. Two men may see a barren hillside. One may see it only with bitterness, thinking of the good grapes or vines it might have produced. To him that hillside is a barren waste. He feels nothing but resentment when he sees it.

But to the other man, who is a poet, that hillside represents a singing harmony of color. Gold and amber, bronze and crimson, fawn and scarlet clothe its slopes. The mystery of beauty lies over it, and falls upon him when he views it. He cannot see that hillside without being a happier, better, more inspired man.

And two women may inhabit the same home. One, woman sees only the same shabby walls . . . knows only the same humdrum chores which she hates feels only the same sense of frustration and self pity and mounting anger at her fate.

Yet the other woman, though equally bright and sensitive and ambitious, finds her fulfillment in that home and the family which seeks it as a haven. To her its walls are lovely for they bound her kingdom. To her, although the chores may be cut from the same pattern, they are never monotonous, never tiresome, for they serve the same secret, glorious fulfillment of her life as wife, mother and woman.

Four people—looking at the same things—facing the same opportunities. Yet to one man and to one woman they bring enrichment and contentment and to the other man and other woman they bring nothing but bitterness and resentment.

You are what you accept.

You rlife is not a pre-ordained thing mapped out like a mechanical blueprint. It has the magnificent, the divine attribute of free will. You can, to a great extent, make your life what you wish it to be out of the material that comes your way, however ordinary or trivial that material may seem to be.

THAT DOES NOT MEAN THAT YOU CAN ALWAYS CONTROL THE THINGS THAT HAPPEN TO YOU. THIS IS NOT SO. SHOCKS AND LOSSES AND TRAGIC GRIEF MAY COME TO YOU WHICH YOU CANNOT PREVENT. BUT YOU CAN DECIDE HOW YOU WILL TAKE THE THINGS THAT HAPPEN TO YOU . . . HOW YOU WILL INTERPRET THEM . . . WHETHER YOU WILL REJECT OR ACCEPT THEM . . . WHETHER YOU WILL USE THEM TO BUILD A LARGER LIFE OR LEAVE THEM TO OBSTRUCT YOUR TRAIL AND HANDICAP YOUR MOVEMENTS ALL THE DAYS OF YOUR EXISTENCE.

You are what you accept. If you accept the fact that you are a man, who had lost greatly of his blood in battle, rejected the life-giving plasma, he would die very quickly. And it would be largely his own fault. Whereas his comrade, who co-operated with the doctors and nurses, would have a good chance for recovery.

Everything that comes to us in this battle of life is plasma. Everything, however rugged or bleak or demoralizing it may seem at the time, can nourish and enlarge us—if we will accept it.

Why should not we accept the things we need for our development? Because it is easier to say "no" than to say "yes." It is easier to wall ourselves away by prejudice and intolerance and suspicion and ignorance than it is to open our minds and our spirits to the beauty and truth which press about us constantly. It is easier to accept hate than love for it feeds our self pity and our thwarted vanity.

We are what we accept. We are not the sum total of our blood and tissues and social inheritance. We are the accumulation of the good things we have chosen to take and make a part of ourselves.

Ridgeley Stops AHS; Moorefield High Wins

Allegany Suffers 27 to 25 Setback In Extra Period

Bill Comer's Goal Snaps 11- Game Win Streak of Campers

Bill Comer connected on a set shot from a corner to score the field goal that gave Ridgeley high school's Blackhawks a 27 to 25 verdict over Allegany high school's city and W.M.I. League champions last night in an overtime period battle on the Ridgeley court before a packed house.

The teams were forced to battle an extra period when Bill Brehany heaved in a long shot to knot the count at 25-all just ten seconds before the close of the regular game. Comer's basket was the only score made in the three-minute overtime session.

Highlighting the battle was Ridgeley's defense work in the first half. The Hawks, who incidentally smashed Allegany's eleven-game winning streak, held the Campers scoreless from the field fourteen minutes but the two baskets registered by Jimmie Radcliffe and Johnny Bachman late in the second period enabled the Campobello team to tie the score at 8-8 as the teams left the floor at intermission.

Gene Shaw's foul goal was the first point scored in the game but Ace Comer's goal and foul and Brehany's basket put Ridgeley on the long end of a 5-1 score at the quarter whistle. Foul goals by Price, Brant, A. Comer and Shaw and Moss's double-decker gave Ridgeley a 4-point edge at 8-4 when baskets by Radcliffe and Bachman tied the count at 8-8.

Allegany went ahead on Glen Brant's goal as the third period opened. After the lead had changed hands several times the Campers emerged on the long end of a 22-16 score as the period closed.

In the final stanza a field and foul goal by Joe Moss cut Allegany's lead to one-point at 24-23 and Brant's free throw gave the Bowersmen a two-point edge when Brehany heaved in the goal which tied the score at 25-25 ten seconds before the regular game end.

Marks First Triumph

It marked the first time in the history of the Ridgeley-Allegany basketball series that the Blackhawks had ever emerged victorious over the Cumberlanders. Through its triumph Coach Art Scalli's team gained revenge for a 41-22 defeat suffered at Campobello.

Ace Comer and Joe Moss, of Ridgeley, and Brant, of Allegany, were in a triple tie for high point honors—each making up nine tallies.

Two players were banished from the game via the five personal fouls route, of AHS, made his exit in the third period and Moss, of the Hawks, was waved out in the final heat. The officials plastered fourteen personals on the Blue and White and thirteen on the victors.

Allegany's Reserves, paced by Sterne and Heinze, who scored nine points each, defeated the Ridgeley Reserves, 27 to 24. Jewell was high man for Ridgeley with nine markers. The lineups:

Somerset Eagles Nose Out Bedford

Emert's Foul Goal Sews Up Game in Last Ten Seconds, 43-42

BEDFORD, Pa., Feb. 26—A greatly improved Somerset high school quint came back tonight to turn the tables on Bedford high's Bisons to the tune of 43 to 42 after having dropped a 46-33 decision on its home court earlier in the season.

The game was a nip and tuck affair throughout and was won by the Eagles ten seconds before the final whistle when Emert hooped a free throw to break at 42-42 deadlock.

Somerset led at the quarter, 7-3, trailed at the half, 18-17 and battled the Buffaloes to a 28-28 draw in the third stanza.

Emert incidentally led the Eagles' attack with six field goals, four foul goals and a total of sixteen points. "Bud" Fisher collected eight field goals but missed five shots at the charity line to head the Bedford offensive with 16 tallies.

Somerset's Jayvees nosed out the Bedford junior varsity in the opening game, 29 to 26, in an overtime period. The lineups:

Two Assistant Coaches Signed by Northwestern

Heap, Wildcat football star of the mid-thirties, is a naval aviation lieutenant-commander awaiting discharge at the Glenview, Ill., Air Base. He was head football and baseball coach at Illinois Wesleyan university for three years.

Knockdown Is Groomed For $100,000 Handicap

ARCADIA, Calif., Feb. 26 (AP)—Knockdown, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby, is being groomed definitely for the other "hundred grander"—the Santa Anita Handicap, March 9.

Mrs. Elizabeth Arden Graham, owner of Main Chance Farm, said she has "every expectation" of running the big son of Discovery. Knockdown has been weighed at 108 pounds for the handicap, compared with the 122 he carried in the Derby.

Central Cracks Oakland's 7-Game Winning Streak

Doyle and Frizzell Get 30 Points as Tigers Cop Final, 40-33

LONACONING, Feb. 26 — Central high school's Tigers wound up their 1945-46 basketball campaign tonight by scoring their fourth straight victory over Oakland high school, of Garrett county, thereby snapping the Highlanders' seven-game winning streak. The score was 40 to 33.

A twenty-two point rally in the second quarter decided the battle after Oakland had taken an 11-6 lead at the end of the first period. After the smoke from the fireworks had cleared at half time the Tigers were out in front, 28-18. The close of the third quarter found Coach Frank Carrington's warriors on top by four points, 30-26.

Bob Doyle and Floyd Frizzell provided most of the action for Central by pouring in all but ten of the Tigers points. Doyle collected nine field goals and 18 points while Frizzell garnered an even dozen on six fielders. Bob Bosley was Oakland's best bet with eleven points. The lineups:

Beall Is Winner Over Fort Ashby

Mountaineers Eke Out 34-32 Decision in Series Opener

FROSTBURG, Feb. 26 — Fort Ashby started out like a house fire tonight, piling up an eight point lead before Beall found the range, but Coach Finzel's Mountaineers matched the Eagles basket for basket the rest of the way and eked out a 34 to 32 decision.

Twenty-three points were scored by the teams in the first quarter which ended 13-10 in Beall's favor. The locals also led at the half, 18-13, and at the end of the third stanza, 24-22.

Farrady and Truly were leading scorers for Beall with nine points each while Best and Geis played nice floor games. May headed the visitors in scoring with ten points while Larson made nine and excelled with his floor play.

Beall will play at Keyser on Thursday, journey to Fort Ashby for a return game March 5 and face the Beall Alumni quint here March 8 in the season's finale.

In tonight's prelim Beall's junior varsity quint defeated Grace Methodist, leader of the Cumberland YMCA Sunday School League, for the second time. The score was 31 to 28. Tom Turner and Bob Crump were outstanding for the winners while Lattimer and Stevenson were the Methodists' best bets. The lineups:

Terps Lose Ninth

KINGS POINT, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—The Kings Point Merchant Marine Academy quintet closed its basketball campaign tonight by trouncing the University of Maryland's five 52-25.

In scoring their sixth victory against ten defeats the mariners also took ample vengeance for the 43-29 licking the Terrapins handed them two weeks ago. It was Maryland's ninth defeat in 20 games and their fourth loss in a row. Army whipped the Marylanders 48-31 at West Point yesterday.

The SPORTLIGHT By GRANTLAND RICE

Fooball-Baseball Combinations

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 26 —The Yankees happen to have at least two hired men who have starred at both baseball and football, much to Joe McCarthy's disgust on the football side. The Yankee manager likes football as much as a cobra loves a mongoose, or the other way around.

Joe McCarthy

It is McCarthy's idea that while football is a great game for a football player, it is also a game that wrecks too many shoulder, knee and ankle ligaments for anyone who hopes to make his living out of baseball. And Joe can give you all the examples you'd have time to read in a week.

His two star footballers are Spud Chandler, fullback on the fine Georgia team that wrecked Yale years ago, when the Blue was flying high, and Snuffy Stirnweiss, one of the best backs that ever ran and passed for North Carolina's Tarheels. I haven't included Joe Gordon, who as a freshman at Oregon, was rated the finest back the Northwest had ever known, on a par with Tuffy Leemans, one of his playmates. Ask Tuffy.

The presence of these three football stars on the Yankee roster — Chandler, Stirnweiss and Gordon, brought up the argument involving the names of those starring at both games. It is amazing to know how little the members of this present generation know about the past.

For example, few recall the fact that Christy Mathewson was better known as a football player at Bucknell than he was ever known as a sterling pitcher. Also that Orvie Overall of the old Cubs was supposed to be better at football when he played at California than he was at baseball.

Mathewson and Overall were the first two who starred at both jobs. And both were among the best. That takes us back a matter of some forty odd years—back to the springtime of John McGraw and Frank Chance. And that happens to be a slight matter of more than 14,000 yesterdays.

Rating the Combination Flock

In one of our gab sessions under the soothing palms of St. Pete, we began raking up the names of those who had played both games well. You might be surprised at the list. First Matty and Overall. Then there was a fellow known as Jim Thorpe. A fair big leaguer but probably the greatest name in football.

Charlie Moran, Center's famous coach, a brilliant star at Canton in pro football, was also another big leaguer in baseball. I happened to play with Uncle Charlie in both games shortly after the second Punic war.

Cal Hubbard, among football's headliners, turned to umpiring. Bob Neyland, head coach at Tennessee, split his fame between both games. He could have starred in either sport as a pro.

Eddie Dyer, new manager of the Cardinals, was one of the best backs Rice University remembers in that very rugged Texas circuit. Sammy Baugh, a brilliant footballer, was the star college baseball entry from the expansive state of Texas but after he joined the Cardinals manager Frank Frisch sorrowfully discovered that Sammy couldn't hit either a curve or a fast ball with two paddles.

Dixie Howell played both games well. So did Ace Parker and the burly Filipowicz, who abandoned baseball for the gridiron game.

Who remembers Strang Nicklin, who once coached Army's ball team? And who remembers that Cy Rigler, a leading umpire, also starred on Canton's famous pro football team?

Eddie Collins played quarterback for Columbia. His son played both football and baseball at Yale. And what an end or a back Ty Cobb would have made, until he killed someone or was killed himself.

Lou Gehrig was one of the best backs in Columbia's football history. And how about Frank Frisch, not only one of Fordham's greatest baseball greatest backs, but Fordham's greatest baseball star. And Frisch, as a gridiron luminary, weighed 141 pounds. Tick Tichenor of Auburn and Georgia, weighing 118 pounds, made all southern football and baseball teams four years.

I've left out many famous combinations who handled both games superbly through the last forty-odd years. They run into the hundreds. The main argument under St. Pete's moon, which can offer a photo finish to Miami's moon, concerns itself with the best of the lot—the one who can offer a higher average in both games.

On the spur of the balmy moment we'll suggest Frank Frisch, one of the best ball players of all time and a football entry that made Walter Camp's all-America squad. Maybe you recall a stronger nominee. What's his name?

Paw Paw Passers Beat Bruce High

Mountaineers Cop Final Home Game of Season, 36 to 34

PAW PAW, W. Va., Feb. 26—Paw Paw high school's Mountaineers closed their home campaign with a 36 to 34 victiry over Bruce high school, of Westernport tonight.

Coach Plummer Pride's passers jumped away to a 17-9 lead at the quarter, held a five-point lead at the half, 26-21, and the visitors trailed by only two points when the third quarter ended, 32-30.

It was Paw Paw's seventh victory in 19 starts while the setback was Bruce's fourteenth against four wins.

The scoring combination of Robertson and Taylor accounted for twenty-nine Paw Paw tallies. Robertson poured in sixteen points while Taylor garnered thirteen. Bruce's "big guns" were Johnny Donnelly and Dick Price, each of whom racked up twelve tallies.

Paw Paw concludes its regular schedule on Friday by playing at Berkeley Springs. Paw Paw will face Mathias in the opening round of the Shepherd college sectional tournament on March 7. The lineups:

BASEBALL BRIEFS

BILL WARKS ON FARM

CHESTERTOWN, Md., Feb. 26 (AP)—Bill Nicholson, Chicago Cubs' outfielder who has rejected two new contracts calling for a cut in salary, said today that he had not received a third offer from the National League club.

He expressed dissatisfaction two weeks ago when the first contract arrived, declaring that he "expected" a cut, "but didn't expect to get whacked that hard." The second contract was the same as the first, he said.

It was understood a third contract was on its way. Nicholson has been working around his home here, and at his farm near Chestertown while the Cubs have opened spring training in California.

CARRASQUEL TO REPORT

TRIBE GROOMS KLEINE

CLEARWATER, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—The grooming of Hal Kleine into a consistently good hurler for the Cleveland Indians got the attention of Manager Lou Boudreau today.

Boudreau already has announced that Bob Feller, Steve Gromek, Allie Reynolds and Chuck Embree will be the big four of his pitching staff, but looks to the 22-year-old left-hander from St. Louis for support if Kleine can overcome his erraticism.

GIANTS GO FISHING

MIAMI, Feb. 26 (AP) — Winston Churchill, England's vacationing former prime minister, spoke in the Orange bowl and Manager Mel Ott of the New York Giants, cancelled his team's workout in belief that the oratory of the British leader wouldn't blend with that put out by his players.

Instead, the Giants went fishing.

KRAMER TALKS TERMS

ANAHEIM, Calif., Feb. 26 (AP)—Manager Luke Sewell breathed easier today because a conference with Pitcher Jack Kramer gave evidence that the right-hander may end his holdout seige soon and join the rest of the St. Louis Browns. Sewell has the other three of his right-hand big four in Denny Galehouse, Bob Muncrief and Nelson Potter.

YANKS HIT FOR DISTANCE

BALBOA, C. Z., Feb. 26 (AP)—The New York Yankees clouted six home runs today as they walloped the Canal Zone League All-Stars 10-3 in Balboa stadium. It was the Yankees' sixth straight exhibition triumph in as many games.

MUSIAL'S ON WAY BACK

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 26 (AP)—Sailor Stan Musial, in his own words, is on his "way back to the big leagues."

The St. Louis Cardinal outfielder and 1943 National league batting champion today received approval of his navy discharge papers. He expects to be shipped off to Bainbridge (Md.) Separation Center in the near future.

"I don't know when I'll actually be discharged," he said. The navy recently announced that Musial would be discharged March 15.

Hardy Countians Turn Back Keyser In 23-15 Contest

Yellowjackets Move Step Closer to PVC Title; 700 See Battle

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Feb. 26 — Moorefield high school's Yellowjackets moved a step closer to the Potomac Valley Conference basketball championship tonight by defeating Keyser high school, a leading contender, by the score of 23 to 15.

It was the twelfth conference victory in fifteen starts for Coach Johnny Paugh's Jackets, who need a win over Petersburg on the Vikings' court on March 6 to clinch the conference crown.

A capacity crowd of approximately 700 persons jammed every bit of space available in the local gym to witness the important battle and saw the home team atone for a 33-22 setback suffered in Keyser several weeks ago.

Keyser held a 6-5 edge at the close of the first period but Moorefield shot ahead at the halfway mark, 9-6, and also held a three-point advantage when the third quarter was concluded, 13-10. Then the Jackets flashed their best shooting form in the final heat to outscore the Golden Tornado, ten to five, to boost their margin of victory to eight points.

George Hott paced the Moorefield scorers by meshing ten points while Smith collected eight. This pair of sharpshooters were responsible for all of the winners' field goals and 18 of the 23 points.

Sixteen personal fouls were called on Moorefield and fourteen on Keyser by Referee "Eck" Miers, of Keyser. The locals lost Dwight Kessel on personals in the final period. The lineups:

South Dakota Will Not Run in Widener Event

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—South Dakota, picked as a possible giant killer in the $50,000 added Widener Handicap Saturday, will not run in the Florida classic after all, it was disclosed today.

Hialeah officials received a telegram from Duke Penter, superintendent of the Fairgrounds Race Track at New Orleans, saying:

Previously Al Smitha, owner of the four-year-old son of Omaha had said that the sensational "Whirlaway of the small tracks" would be shipped to Hialeah for the rich Widener.

LaSalle Cleans Up Berkeley Springs Series, 36 to 28

Mattingly and Snyder Top Attack in Explorers' Victory No. 22

BERKELEY SPRINGS, W. Va., Feb. 26.—Coach Bill Keegan's LaSalle high school floormen from Cumberland chalked up their twenty-second victory of the season here tonight over Berkeley Springs high school. The score was 36 to 28.

The triumph gave the Explorers a clean sweep of the series with the Morgan countians, who lost the opener in Cumberland by the score of 41 to 20.

A pair of Bobs—Mattingly and Snyder—were LaSalle's chief offensive threats in tonight's tilt. Mattingly tossed in an even dozen markers on five fielders and two free throws while Snyder connected five times from the field and once at the charity stripe.

Rice romped off with high point honors for Berkeley by accounting for five of the home team's eleven field goals and a total of eleven points.

Ridgeley Stops AHS; Moorefield High Wins

Allegany Suffers 27 to 25 Setback In Extra Period

Bill Comer's Goal Snaps 11- Game Win Streak of Campers

Bill Comer connected on a set shot from a corner to score the field goal that gave Ridgeley high school's Blackhawks a 27 to 25 verdict over Allegany high school's city and W.M.I. League champions last night in an overtime period battle on the Ridgeley court before a packed house.

The teams were forced to battle an extra period when Bill Brehany heaved in a long shot to knot the count at 25-all just ten seconds before the close of the regular game. Comer's basket was the only score made in the three-minute overtime session.

Highlighting the battle was Ridgeley's defense work in the first half. The Hawks, who incidentally smashed Allegany's eleven-game winning streak, held the Campers scoreless from the field fourteen minutes but the two baskets registered by Jimmie Radcliffe and Johnny Bachman late in the second period enabled the Campobello team to tie the score at 8-8 as the teams left the floor at intermission.

Gene Shaw's foul goal was the first point scored in the game but Ace Comer's goal and foul and Brehany's basket put Ridgeley on the long end of a 5-1 score at the quarter whistle. Foul goals by Price, Brant, A. Comer and Shaw and Moss's double-decker gave Ridgeley a 4-point edge at 8-4 when baskets by Radcliffe and Bachman tied the count at 8-8.

Allegany went ahead on Glen Brant's goal as the third period opened. After the lead had changed hands several times the Campers emerged on the long end of a 22-16 score as the period closed.

In the final stanza a field and foul goal by Joe Moss cut Allegany's lead to one-point at 24-23 and Brant's free throw gave the Bowersmen a two-point edge when Brehany heaved in the goal which tied the score at 25-25 ten seconds before the regular game end.

Marks First Triumph

It marked the first time in the history of the Ridgeley-Allegany basketball series that the Blackhawks had ever emerged victorious over the Cumberlanders. Through its triumph Coach Art Scalli's team gained revenge for a 41-22 defeat suffered at Campobello.

Ace Comer and Joe Moss, of Ridgeley, and Brant, of Allegany, were in a triple tie for high point honors—each making up nine tallies.

Two players were banished from the game via the five personal fouls route. ... of AHS, made his ... in the third period and Moss, of the Hawks, was waved out in the final heat. The officials plastered fourteen personals on the Blue and White and thirteen on the victors.

Allegany's Reserves, paced by Sterne and Heinze, who scored nine points each, defeated the Ridgeley Reserves, 27 to 24. Jewell was high man for Ridgeley with nine markers. The lineups:

Somerset Eagles Nose Out Bedford

Emert's Foul Goal Sews Up Game in Last Ten Seconds, 43-42

BEDFORD, Pa., Feb. 26—A greatly improved Somerset high school quint came back tonight to turn the tables on Bedford high's Bisons to the tune of 43 to 42 after having dropped a 46-33 decision on its home court earlier in the season.

The game was a nip and tuck affair throughout and was won by the Eagles ten seconds before the final whistle when Emert hooped a free throw to break at 42-42 deadlock.

Somerset led at the quarter, 7-3, trailed at the half, 18-17 and battled the Buffaloes to a 28-28 draw in the third stanza.

Emert incidentally led the Eagles' attack with six field goals, four foul goals and a total of sixteen points. "Bud" Fisher collected eight field goals but missed five shots at the charity line to head the Bedford offensive with 16 tallies.

Somerset's Jayvees nosed out the Bedford junior varsity in the opening game, 29 to 26, in an overtime period. The lineups:

Two Assistant Coaches Signed by Northwestern

Heap, Wildcat football star of the mid-thirties, is a naval aviation lieutenant-commander awaiting discharge at the Glenview, Ill., Air Base. He was head football and baseball coach at Illinois Wesleyan university for three years.

Knockdown Is Groomed For $100,000 Handicap

ARCADIA, Calif., Feb. 26 (AP)—Knockdown, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby, is being groomed definitely for the other "hundred grander"—the Santa Anita Handicap, March 9.

Mrs. Elizabeth Arden Graham, owner of Main Chance Farm, said she has "every expectation" of running the big son of Discovery. Knockdown has been weighed at 108 pounds for the handicap, compared with the 122 he carried in the Derby.

Central Cracks Oakland's 7-Game Winning Streak

Doyle and Frizzell Get 30 Points as Tigers Cop Final, 40-33

LONACONING, Feb. 26—Central high school's Tigers wound up their 1945-46 basketball campaign tonight by scoring their fourth straight victory over Oakland high school, of Garrett county, thereby snapping the Highlanders' seven-game winning streak. The score was 40 to 33.

A twenty-two point rally in the second quarter decided the battle after Oakland had taken an 11-6 lead at the end of the first period. After the smoke from the fireworks had cleared at half time the Tigers were out in front, 28-18. The close of the third quarter found Coach Frank Carrington's warriors on top by four points, 30-26.

Bob Doyle and Floyd Frizzell provided most of the action for Central by pouring in all but ten of the Tigers points. Doyle collected nine field goals and 18 points while Frizzell garnered an even dozen on six fielders. Bob Bosley was Oakland's best bet with eleven points. The lineups:

Beall Is Winner Over Fort Ashby

Mountaineers Eke Out 34-32 Decision in Series Opener

FROSTBURG, Feb. 26—Fort Ashby started out like a house fire tonight, piling up an eight point lead before Beall found the range, but Coach Finzel's Mountaineers matched the Eagles basket for basket the rest of the way and eked out a 34 to 32 decision.

Twenty-three points were scored by the teams in the first quarter which ended 13-10 in Beall's favor. The locals also led at the half, 18-13, and at the end of the third stanza, 24-22.

Farrady and Truly were leading scorers for Beall with nine points each while Best and Geis played nice floor games. May headed the visitors in scoring with ten points while Larson made nine and excelled with his floor play.

Beall will play at Keyser on Thursday, journey to Fort Ashby for a return game March 5 and face the Beall Alumni quint here March 8 in the season's finale.

In tonight's prelim Beall's junior varsity quint defeated Grace Methodist, leader of the Cumberland YMCA Sunday School League, for the second time. The score was 31 to 28. Tom Turner and Bob Crump were outstanding for the winners while Lattimer and Stevenson were the Methodists' best bets. The lineups:

Terps Lose Ninth

KINGS POINT, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—The Kings Point Merchant Marine Academy quintet closed its basketball campaign tonight by trouncing the University of Maryland's five 52-25.

In scoring their sixth victory against ten defeats the mariners also took ample vengeance for the 43-29 licking the Terrapins handed them two weeks ago. It was Maryland's ninth defeat in 20 games and their fourth loss in a row. Army whipped the Marylanders 48-31 at West Point yesterday.

The SPORTLIGHT By GRANTLAND RICE

Fooball-Baseball Combinations

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 26—The Yankees happen to have at least two hired men who have starred at both baseball and football, much to Joe McCarthy's disgust on the football side. The Yankee manager likes football as much as a cobra loves a mongoose, or the other way around.

Joe McCarthy

It is McCarthy's idea that while football is a great game for a football player, it is also a game that wrecks too many shoulder, knee and ankle ligaments for anyone who hopes to make his living out of baseball. And Joe can give you all the examples you'd have time to read in a week.

His two star footballers are Spud Chandler, fullback on the fine Georgia team that wrecked Yale years ago, when the Blue was flying high, and Snuffy Stirnweiss, one of the best backs that ever ran and passed for North Carolina's Tarheels. I haven't included Joe Gordon, who as a freshman at Oregon, was rated the finest back the Northwest had ever known, on a par with Tuffy Leemans, one of his playmates. Ask Tuffy.

The presence of these three football stars on the Yankee roster—Chandler, Stirnweiss and Gordon, brought up the argument involving the names of those starring at both games. It is amazing to know how little the members of this present generation know about the past.

For example, few recall the fact that Christy Mathewson was better known as a football player at Bucknell than he was ever known as a sterling pitcher. Also that Orvie Overall of the old Cubs was supposed to be better at football when he played at California than he was at baseball.

Mathewson and Overall were the first two who starred at both jobs. And both were among the best. That takes us back a matter of some forty odd years—back to the springtime of John McGraw and Frank Chance. And that happens to be a slight matter of more than 14,000 yesterdays.

Rating the Combination Flock

In one of our gab sessions under the soothing palms of St. Pete, we began raking up the names of those who had played both games well. You might be surprised at the list. First Matty and Overall. Then there was a fellow known as Jim Thorpe. A fair big leaguer but probably the greatest name in football.

Charlie Moran, Center's famous coach, a brilliant star at Canton in pro football, was also another big leaguer in baseball. I happened to play with Uncle Charlie in both games shortly after the second Punic war.

Cal Hubbard, among football's headliners, turned to umpiring. Bob Neyland, head coach at Tennessee, split his fame between both games. He could have starred in either sport as a pro.

Eddie Dyer, new manager of the Cardinals, was one of the best backs Rice University remembers in that very rugged Texas circuit. Sammy Baugh, a brilliant footballer, was the star college baseball entry from the expansive state of Texas but after he joined the Cardinals manager Frank Frisch sorrowfully discovered that Sammy couldn't hit either a curve or a fast ball with two paddles.

Dixie Howell played both games well. So did Ace Parker and the burly Filipowicz, who abandoned baseball for the gridiron game.

Who remembers Strang Nicklin, who once coached Army's ball team? And who remembers that Cy Rigler, a leading umpire, also starred on Canton's famous pro football team?

Eddie Collins played quarterback for Columbia. His son played both football and baseball at Yale. And what an end or a back Ty Cobb would have made, until he killed someone or was killed himself.

Lou Gehrig was one of the best backs in Columbia's football history. And how about Frank Frisch, not only one of Fordham's greatest baseball greatest backs, but Fordham's greatest baseball star. And Frisch, as a gridiron luminary, weighed 141 pounds. Tick Tichenor of Auburn and Georgia, weighing 118 pounds, made all southern football and baseball teams four years.

I've left out many famous combinations who handled both games superbly through the last forty-odd years. They run into the hundreds. The main argument under St. Pete's moon, which can offer a photo finish to Miami's moon, concerns itself with the best of the lot—the one who can offer a higher average in both games.

On the spur of the balmy moment we'll suggest Frank Frisch, one of the best ball players of all time and a football entry that made Walter Camp's all-America squad. Maybe you recall a stronger nominee. What's his name?

Paw Paw Passers Beat Bruce High

Mountaineers Cop Final Home Game of Season, 36 to 34

PAW PAW, W. Va., Feb. 26—Paw Paw high school's Mountaineers closed their home campaign with a 36 to 34 victiry over Bruce high school, of Westernport tonight.

Coach Plummer Pride's passers jumped away to a 17-9 lead at the quarter, held a five-point lead at the half, 26-21, and the visitors trailed by only two points when the third quarter ended, 32-30.

It was Paw Paw's seventh victory in 19 starts while the setback was Bruce's fourteenth against four wins.

The scoring combination of Robertson and Taylor accounted for twenty-nine Paw Paw tallies. Robertson poured in sixteen points while Taylor garnered thirteen. Bruce's "big guns" were Johnny Donnelly and Dick Price, each of whom racked up twelve tallies.

Paw Paw concludes its regular schedule on Friday by playing at Berkeley Springs. Paw Paw will face Mathias in the opening round of the Shepherd college sectional tournament on March 7. The lineups:

BASEBALL BRIEFS

BILL WARKS ON FARM

CHESTERTOWN, Md., Feb. 26 (AP)—Bill Nicholson, Chicago Cubs' outfielder who has rejected two new contracts calling for a cut in salary, said today that he had not received a third offer from the National League club.

He expressed dissatisfaction two weeks ago when the first contract arrived, declaring that he "expected" a cut, "but didn't expect to get whacked that hard." The second contract was the same as the first, he said.

It was understood a third contract was on its way. Nicholson has been working around his home here, and at his farm near Chestertown while the Cubs have opened spring training in California.

CARRASQUEL TO REPORT

TRIBE GROOMS KLEINE

CLEARWATER, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—The grooming of Hal Kleine into a consistently good hurler for the Cleveland Indians got the attention of Manager Lou Boudreau today.

Boudreau already has announced that Bob Feller, Steve Gromek, Allie Reynolds and Chuck Embree will be the big four of his pitching staff, but looks to the 22-year-old lefthander from St. Louis for support if Kleine can overcome his erraticism.

GIANTS GO FISHING

MIAMI, Feb. 26 (AP)—Winston Churchill, England's vacationing former prime minister, spoke in the Orange bowl and Manager Mel Ott of the New York Giants, cancelled his team's workout in belief that the oratory of the British leader wouldn't blend with that put out by his players.

Instead, the Giants went fishing.

KRAMER TALKS TERMS

ANAHEIM, Calif., Feb. 26 (AP)—Manager Luke Sewell breathed easier today because a conference with Pitcher Jack Kramer gave evidence that the right-hander may end his holdout seige soon and join the rest of the St. Louis Browns. Sewell has the other three of his right-hand big four in Denny Galehouse, Bob Muncrief and Nelson Potter.

YANKS HIT FOR DISTANCE

BALBOA, C. Z., Feb. 26 (AP)—The New York Yankees clouted six home runs today as they walloped the Canal Zone League All-Stars 10-3 in Balboa stadium. It was the Yankees' sixth straight exhibition triumph in as many games.

MUSIAL'S ON WAY BACK

The St. Louis Cardinal outfielder and 1943 National league batting champion today received approval of his navy discharge papers. He expects to be shipped off to Bainbridge (Md.) Separation Center in the near future.

"I don't know when I'll actually be discharged," he said. The navy recently announced that Musial would be discharged March 15.

Hardy Countians Turn Back Keyser In 23-15 Contest

Yellowjackets Move Step Closer to PVC Title; 700 See Battle

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Feb. 26—Moorefield high school's Yellowjackets moved a step closer to the Potomac Valley Conference basketball championship tonight by defeating Keyser high school, a leading contender, by the score of 23 to 15.

It was the twelfth conference victory in fifteen starts for Coach Johnny Paugh's Jackets, who need a win over Petersburg on the Vikings' court on March 6 to clinch the conference crown.

The Jackets played stellar defensive ball in tonight's game in holding the Mineral countains to four field goals while scoring nine themselves. None of the vsiting players garnered more than one two-point goal.

A capacity crowd of approximately 700 persons jammed every bit of space available in the local gym to witness the important battle and saw the home team atone for a 33-22 setback suffered in Keyser several weeks ago.

Keyser held a 6-5 edge at the close of the first period but Moorefield shot ahead at the halfway mark, 9-6, and also held a three-point advantage when the third quarter was concluded, 13-10. Then the Jackets flashed their best shooting form in the final heat to outscore the Golden Tornado, ten to five, to boost their margin of victory to eight points.

George Hott paced the Moorefield scorers by meshing ten points while Smith collected eight. This pair of sharpshooters were responsible for all of the winners' field goals and 18 of the 23 points.

Sixteen personal fouls were called on Moorefield and fourteen on Keyser by Referee "Eck" Miers, of Keyser. The locals lost Dwight Kessel on personals in the final period. The lineups:

South Dakota Will Not Run in Widener Event

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—South Dakota, picked as a possible giant killer in the $50,000 added Widener Handicap Saturday, will not run in the Florida classic after all, it was disclosed today.

Hialeah officials received a telegram from Duke Penter, superintendent of the Fairgrounds Race Track at New Orleans, saying:

Previously Al Smitha, owner of the four-year-old son of Omaha had said that the sensational "Whirlaway of the small tracks" would be shipped to Hialeah for the rich Widener.

Mattingly and Snyder Top Attack in Explorers' Victory No. 22

BERKELEY SPRINGS, W. Va., Feb. 26.—Coach Bill Keegan's LaSalle high school floormen from Cumberland chalked up their twenty-second victory of the season here tonight over Berkeley Springs high school. The score was 36 to 28.

The triumph gave the Explorers a clean sweep of the series with the Morgan countians, who lost the opener in Cumberland by the score of 41 to 20.

A pair of Bobs—Mattingly and Snyder—were LaSalle's chief offensive threats in tonight's tilt. Mattingly tossed in an even dozen markers on five fielders and two free throws while Snyder connected five times from the field and once at the charity stripe.

Byers Asks Court To Compel Racing Solons To Revoke His Suspension

Judge Dickerson Takes Case under Advisement after Hearing Trainer's Attorneys

BALTIMORE, Feb. 26— (AP) — Trainer J. Dallet (Dolly) Byers had his "day in court" today when his attorneys argued before Superior Court Judge Edwin T. Dickerson for a writ of mandamus to compel the Maryland Racing Commission to revoke the one-year suspension given him last December on stimulation charges.

After hearing Byers's attorneys and Assistant State Attorney General Hall Hammond, the judge took the case under advisement.

Cites 48-hour Limit

He also argued that the record of the commission's hearing contained no evidence to show that benzedrine was administered to Cosey, a horse owned by Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark, of New York and Cooperstown, N. Y., within forty-eight hours of the Pimlico Steeplechase won by the horse November 14.

A 48-hour limit is written into the commission's rule 146 (A) forbidding the administering of drugs to horses.

Circuit Court Judge Emory H. Niles recently held that section (D) of the same rule, which makes evidence of stimulation "conclusive proof" of the trainer's complicity or negligence, unconstitutional and invalid.

"It doesn't make sense," Janney said, to stimulate a horse when he is the favorite and the odds are short.

Hammond argued that Byers was "entitled to a minimum of due process, but not to a maximum," as he would if the right to train horses was a "property right," as Judge Niles held.

He said the commission had "properly inferred" from a chemist's testimony that the benzedrine found in Cosey had been administered within forty-eight hours of the race.

The judge asked Hammond how the trainer could be held responsible if the Pimlico stables were not screened to prevent public access.

Byers could have posted a watch on the stables, Hammond replied, but he made no attempt to do so.

Attorneys Will Appeal

Attorneys for both sides have indicated they will appeal the court's decision.

Judge Niles's recent opinion took the form of a declaratory judgment in the similar suits of three trainers also suspended on stimulation charges, holding that hearings given them under rule 146 (D) did not constitute due process of law, as required by the constitution and the Maryland declaration of rights.

Chairman George P. Mahoney of the racing commission has announced that these hearings, interrupted by the court proceedings, will be resumed shortly under other sections of rule 146.

COOPER TO LEAVE NAVY

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 26 (AP)—Catcher Walker Cooper will be discharged from the navy April 2 at Lambert Field, St. Louis, the field's public relations office announced today. The St. Louis Cardinals recently sold him to the New York Giants for $175,000.

Muhlenberg's Mules Accept Bid To Play In Garden Tourney

NEW YORK, Feb. 26 (AP) — Muhlenberg has accepted a bid to compete in the national invitation basketball tournament in Madison Square Garden next month, Chairman Asa Bushnell of the invitation committee said tonight.

The Pennsylvania Mules, who downed St. Francis of Brooklyn in the Garden last night, 70 to 50, have won 21 of their 23 games.

The Mules also were invited in 1944 and 1945. This will be their first tourney under Coach Lee Coker.

Bergere Predicts 50 Cars Will Run In Speed Classic

Indiana Speedway's Face Is Lifted; Fans Eager To Pay $3 to $12

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Indianapolis motor speedway, used only for a few test runs since 1941, is having its face lifted in a $250,000 renovation and improvement program.

President Wilbur Shaw and his staff haven't reported on ticket sales for the 500-mile Memorial Day race except to say their clerks are swamped with mail from fans eager to pay $3 to $12 for pasteboards.

The track proper was reconditioned last November for tire tests and won't need much attention except replacement of some "apron" material on turns, so the speedway crew can concentrate on preparations for the paying customers.

The number of reserved seats is being upped from 65,000 to 75,000 by addition of parquet seats. Paddock and "G" stands are being rebuilt of steel and concrete. The program includes a new restaurant and refurnished restrooms and concessions.

Only five cars have been entered formally for 1946 but speedway veteran Cliff Bergere, who plans a school for new drivers, predicts at least 50 cars will compete.

One of the novelties being groomed for the grind is a projected two-engine entry of L. J. (Lou) Fageol of Kent, O. A four-cylinder engine will drive the front set of wheels and another will power the rear set. The driver will sit between the motors.

Windmill Likes Wind And Wins at Hialeah

HIALEAH, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP) — It was very windy here today and a game black mare named Windmill, owned by Mrs. Tom Haskos, provided hunch players with a fine opportunity by winning the Rose Eternal Purse in a rousing duel with Hilton Dabson's Nance's Ace.

At the end of the six furlong feature for fillies and mares, Windmill held a nose margin over her rival, while Mrs. E. L. Hopkins' Carmel Town lost the place by a length and a half. Six started, with Nance's Ace a slight choice over the winner.

Windmill, accounting for her second straight purse and third in six starts at the meeting, paid $6.20 and finished in 1:11 4-5 under Apprentice Joe Licausi. Some 17,500 fans saw the exciting contest.

The Philadelphia Eagles will do all their traveling to out-of-town football games next fall by airpane.

Chicago Expands String of Farms

Cubs Add Fayetteville and Shelby; Increase Chain to 15 Clubs

CHICAGO, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs, quietly copying the chainstore pattern of the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees, today announced affiliation with two more minor league clubs to expand their farm system to fifteen teams.

Shelby, N. C., of the new Class B Tri-State League and Fayetteville, N. C., in the revived Coastal Plain (D) League were the new affiliates.

Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League is the Cub's top minor league farm, while the Double A entries are Nashville (Southern Association) and Tulsa (Texas League). Other clubs:

Class B—Portsmouth, Va., (Piedmont); Davenport, Ia., (Three-I); Hagerstown, Md., (Interstate); Tacoma (Western International) and Shelby.

Class C—Hutchison, Kan., (Western Association); Visalia, Calif. (California League); Quebec (Canadian-American).

Penn State Will Play Nine Football Games

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Feb. 26 (AP)—Pennsylvania State College announced a nine-game football schedule today for 1946 with Fordham university and the University of Miami (Fla) as new opponents for the Nittany Lions.

Two games with Miami and Syracuse will be played under the lights.

The schedule:

October 5, Bucknell; Oct. 12, Syracuse (night), away; Oct. 19, Michigan State; Oct. 26, Colgate, away; Nov. 2, Fordham; Nov. 9, Temple; Nov. 16, U. S. Naval Academy, away; Nov. 23, Pitt, away; Nov. 29, Miami (night), away.

Mack Would Pay High To Obtain Yank Infielder

A's Could Use Stirnweiss To Plug Weak Spot at Second Base

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—Connie Mack, a gentleman who doesn't usually go in for high finance, said today he's willing to "go pretty strong" for the New York Yankees' George Stirnweiss.

Connie Mack

But, added the 83-year-old manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, "not if they want a million dollars."

Since Joe Gordon returned to the Yankees, the rumor mart has been buzzing that Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yanks is planning to sell or trade Stirnweiss.

The former University of North Carolina football star would be just the man to fit into the Athletics' postwar infield plans, Mack said, adding, however, that the Yanks "shouldn't let a fellow like that go even if Gordon turns out to be just as good as he ever was."

Mack, who about this time of year talks optimistically about changes for his team, is on the pessimistic side. But in 1931, the last time the A's copped the American league flag, Mack reported in spring training that he didn't think the Athletics would do too well.

His major problem now is second base. Benny McCoy, the high-priced free agent back from the navy, hasn't impressed during the early spring workouts, and Irv Hall of last year's eighth place club is not regarded as a standout at the keystone sack.

The rest of the infield appears well stocked.

Pitching is the forte. There are Russ Christopher, Bobo Newsom, Jesse Flores, Dick (No Hit) Fowler, Phil Marchildon, Joe Berry and Porter Vaughn to mention a few.

The rumor boys say McCoy and Vaughn—plus cash—might be bait for a trade for Stirnweiss.

McCarthy Replies

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Feb. 26 (AP) — Manager Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees, queried concerning the possibility of trading holdout George (Snuffy) Stirnweiss to the Philadelphia Athletics, said today "you can bet all your dought that it sounds like something unlikely to happen."

More than 19,000 acres are now under lease by the Ohio division of conservation in its rapidly expanding program of farm ponds.

YMCA and Red Cross Will Sponsor Life Saving Course March 4 to 16

Kelley Will Be in Charge; March 1 Is Deadline for Registrations

The annual Y.M.C.A.-American Red Cross life saving course, sponsored jointly by the two organizations, will be conducted March 4 to 16, inclusive, in the Y.M.C.A. pool.

There will be a junior life saving course for boys and girls between 12 and 15 years of age, beginning at 4 p. m. each week day and a senior course for boys and girls, 15 years of age and over, beginning at 5:30 p. m. each week day.

All participants interested in this course may secure registration cards from Fort Hill high school, Allegany high school, LaSalle high school, Ridgeley high school and the Y.M.C.A. Registration cards must be at the "Y" no later than March 1 and signed by the parents of the applicant.

Classes will be conducted by James E. Kelley, Jr., aquatic supervisor of the "Y" and the Red Cross. These courses are free of charge but registration is required.

Mountaineers Need Win To Establish Record

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 26 —(AP)—West Virginia university's top-rated basketball team hits the highway again tomorrow, going to Washington, Pa., for a return clash with Washington and Jefferson which was walloped 77 to 34 here recently.

By trimming the Presidents again, the Mountaineers can set a new Mountaineer winning record. In defeating Maryland at College Park last Saturday they equalled the mark set by the 1942 national champion Mountaineers who won 16 games during the regular season and three more in the Madison Square Garden tournament.

WALKER ASKS MORE MONEY

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—Manager Eddie Dyer of the St. Louis Cardinals was disturbed today over the continued absence of Outfielder Harry Walker, who is asking for more money after two years in the army.

"I wish Harry had appeared last week with the other discharged service players," Dyer said. "The head start for former service men was arranged for their benefit and all them need it, including Walker."

Byers Asks Court To Compel Racing Solons To Revoke His Suspension

Judge Dickerson Takes Case under Advisement after Hearing Trainer's Attorneys

BALTIMORE, Feb. 26— (AP) — Trainer J. Dallet (Dolly) Byers had his "day in court" today when his attorneys argued before Superior Court Judge Edwin T. Dickerson for a writ of mandamus to compel the Maryland Racing Commission to revoke the one-year suspension given him last December on stimulation charges.

After hearing Byers's attorneys and Assistant State Attorney General Hall Hammond, the judge took the case under advisement.

Cites 48-hour Limit

He also argued that the record of the commission's hearing contained no evidence to show that benzedrine was administered to Cosey, a horse owned by Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark, of New York and Cooperstown, N. Y., within forty-eight hours of the Pimlico Steeplechase won by the horse November 14.

A 48-hour limit is written into the commission's rule 146 (A) forbidding the administering of drugs to horses.

Circuit Court Judge Emory H. Niles recently held that section (D) of the same rule, which makes evidence of stimulation "conclusive proof" of the trainer's complicity or negligence, unconstitutional and invalid.

"It doesn't make sense," Janney said, to stimulate a horse when he is the favorite and the odds are short.

Hammond argued that Byers was "entitled to a minimum of due process, but not to a maximum," as he would if the right to train horses was a "property right," as Judge Niles held.

He said the commission had "properly inferred" from a chemist's testimony that the benzedrine found in Cosey had been administered within forty-eight hours of the race.

The judge asked Hammond how the trainer could be held responsible if the Pimlico stables were not screened to prevent public access.

Byers could have posted a watch on the stables, Hammond replied, but he made no attempt to do so.

Attorneys Will Appeal

Attorneys for both sides have indicated they will appeal the court's decision.

Judge Niles's recent opinion took the form of a declaratory judgment in the similar suits of three trainers also suspended on stimulation charges, holding that hearings given them under rule 146 (D) did not constitute due process of law, as required by the constitution and the Maryland declaration of rights.

Chairman George P. Mahoney of the racing commission has announced that these hearings, interrupted by the court proceedings, will be resumed shortly under other sections of rule 146.

COOPER TO LEAVE NAVY

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 26 (AP)—Catcher Walker Cooper will be discharged from the navy April 2 at Lambert Field, St. Louis, the field's public relations office announced today. The St. Louis Cardinals recently sold him to the New York Giants for $175,000.

Muhlenberg's Mules Accept Bid To Play In Garden Tourney

NEW YORK, Feb. 26 (AP) — Muhlenberg has accepted a bid to compete in the national invitation basketball tournament in Madison Square Garden next month, Chairman Asa Bushnell of the invitation committee said tonight.

The Pennsylvania Mules, who downed St. Francis of Brooklyn in the Garden last night, 70 to 50, have won 21 of their 23 games.

The Mules also were invited in 1944 and 1945. This will be their first tourney under Coach Lee Coker.

Bergere Predicts 50 Cars Will Run In Speed Classic

Indiana Speedway's Face Is Lifted; Fans Eager To Pay $3 to $12

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Indianapolis motor speedway, used only for a few test runs since 1941, is having its face lifted in a $250,000 renovation and improvement program.

President Wilbur Shaw and his staff haven't reported on ticket sales for the 500-mile Memorial Day race except to say their clerks are swamped with mail from fans eager to pay $3 to $12 for pasteboards.

The track proper was reconditioned last November for tire tests and won't need much attention except replacement of some "apron" material on turns, so the speedway crew can concentrate on preparations for the paying customers.

The number of reserved seats is being upped from 65,000 to 75,000 by addition of parquet seats. Paddock and "G" stands are being rebuilt of steel and concrete. The program includes a new restaurant and refurnished restrooms and concessions.

Only five cars have been entered formally for 1946 but speedway veteran Cliff Bergere, who plans a school for new drivers, predicts at least 50 cars will compete.

One of the novelties being groomed for the grind is a projected two-engine entry of L. J. (Lou) Fageol of Kent, O. A four-cylinder engine will drive the front set of wheels and another will power the rear set. The driver will sit between the motors.

Windmill Likes Wind And Wins at Hialeah

HIALEAH, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP) — It was very windy here today and a game black mare named Windmill, owned by Mrs. Tom Haskos, provided hunch players with a fine opportunity by winning the Rose Eternal Purse in a rousing duel with Hilton Dabson's Nance's Ace.

At the end of the six furlong feature for fillies and mares, Windmill held a nose margin over her rival, while Mrs. E. L. Hopkins' Carmel Town lost the place by a length and a half. Six started, with Nance's Ace a slight choice over the winner.

Windmill, accounting for her second straight purse and third in six starts at the meeting, paid $6.20 and finished in 1:11 4-5 under Apprentice Joe Licausi. Some 17,500 fans saw the exciting contest.

The Philadelphia Eagles will do all their traveling to out-of-town football games next fall by airpane.

Chicago Expands String of Farms

Cubs Add Fayetteville and Shelby; Increase Chain to 15 Clubs

CHICAGO, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs, quietly copying the chainstore pattern of the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees, today announced affiliation with two more minor league clubs to expand their farm system to fifteen teams.

Shelby, N. C., of the new Class B Tri-State League and Fayetteville, N. C., in the revived Coastal Plain (D) League were the new affiliates.

Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League is the Cub's top minor league farm, while the Double A entries are Nashville (Southern Association) and Tulsa (Texas League). Other clubs:

Class B—Portsmouth, Va., (Piedmont); Davenport, Ia., (Three-I); Hagerstown, Md., (Interstate); Tacoma (Western International) and Shelby.

Penn State Will Play Nine Football Games

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Feb. 26 (AP) —Pennsylvania State College announced a nine-game football schedule today for 1946 with Fordham university and the University of Miami (Fla) as new opponents for the Nittany Lions.

Two games with Miami and Syracuse will be played under the lights.

The schedule:

October 5, Bucknell; Oct. 12, Syracuse (night), away; Oct. 19, Michigan State; Oct. 26, Colgate, away; Nov. 2, Fordham; Nov. 9, Temple; Nov. 16, U. S. Naval Academy, away; Nov. 23, Pitt, away; Nov. 29, Miami (night), away.

Mack Would Pay High To Obtain Yank Infielder

A's Could Use Stirnweiss To Plug Weak Spot at Second Base

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—Connie Mack, a gentleman who doesn't usually go in for high finance, said today he's willing to "go pretty strong" for the New York Yankees' George Stirnweiss.

Connie Mack

But, added the 83-year-old manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, "not if they want a million dollars."

Since Joe Gordon returned to the Yankees, the rumor mart has been buzzing that Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yanks is planning to sell or trade Stirnweiss.

The former University of North Carolina football star would be just the man to fit into the Athletics' postwar infield plans, Mack said, adding, however, that the Yanks "shouldn't let a fellow like that go even if Gordon turns out to be just as good as he ever was."

Mack, who about this time of year talks optimistically about changes for his team, is on the pessimistic side. But in 1931, the last time the A's copped the American league flag, Mack reported in spring training that he didn't think the Athletics would do too well.

His major problem now is second base. Benny McCoy, the high-priced free agent back from the navy, hasn't impressed during the early spring workouts, and Irv Hall of last year's eighth place club is not regarded as a standout at the keystone sack.

The rest of the infield appears well stocked.

Pitching is the forte. There are Russ Christopher, Bobo Newsom, Jesse Flores, Dick (No Hit) Fowler, Phil Marchildon, Joe Berry and Porter Vaughn to mention a few.

The rumor boys say McCoy and Vaughn—plus cash—might be bait for a trade for Stirnweiss.

McCarthy Replies

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Feb. 26 (AP) — Manager Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees, queried concerning the possibility of trading holdout George (Snuffy) Stirnweiss to the Philadelphia Athletics, said today "you can bet all your dought that it sounds like something unlikely to happen."

More than 19,000 acres are now under lease by the Ohio division of conservation in its rapidly expanding program of farm ponds.

YMCA and Red Cross Will Sponsor Life Saving Course March 4 to 16

Kelley Will Be in Charge; March 1 Is Deadline for Registrations

The annual Y.M.C.A.-American Red Cross life saving course, sponsored jointly by the two organizations, will be conducted March 4 to 16, inclusive, in the Y.M.C.A. pool.

There will be a junior life saving course for boys and girls between 12 and 15 years of age, beginning at 4 p. m. each week day and a senior course for boys and girls, 15 years of age and over, beginning at 5:30 p. m. each week day.

All participants interested in this course may secure registration cards from Fort Hill high school, Allegany high school, LaSalle high school, Ridgeley high school and the Y.M.C.A. Registration cards must be at the "Y" no later than March 1 and signed by the parents of the applicant.

Classes will be conducted by James E. Kelley, Jr., aquatic supervisor of the "Y" and the Red Cross. These courses are free of charge but registration is required.

Mountaineers Need Win To Establish Record

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 26 —(AP)—West Virginia university's top-rated basketball team hits the highway again tomorrow, going to Washington, Pa., for a return clash with Washington and Jefferson which was walloped 77 to 34 here recently.

By trimming the Presidents again, the Mountaineers can set a new Mountaineer winning record. In defeating Maryland at College Park last Saturday they equalled the mark set by the 1942 national champion Mountaineers who won 16 games during the regular season and three more in the Madison Square Garden tournament.

WALKER ASKS MORE MONEY

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—Manager Eddie Dyer of the St. Louis Cardinals was disturbed today over the continued absence of Outfielder Harry Walker, who is asking for more money after two years in the army.

"I wish Harry had appeared last week with the other discharged service players," Dyer said. "The head start for former service men was arranged for their benefit and all them need it, including Walker."

Several Guest Appearances Are Booked by Radio

By JEAN MEEGAN

NEW YORK, February 26 (AP)—Eddie Cantor will make reciprocal appearances Wednesday. He will take part in Linkletter's "House Party" at 4 in afternoon on CBS and Linkletter will pay him back immediately by going on the Cantor show at 9 Wednesday night on NBC. Frank Sinatra will have Jimmy Durante as his guest on 9 at CBS and Jack Smith who has a fifteen-minute music program on that network at 7:15 will have two guests: Josh White, the noted guitarist, and his 5-year-old son who will sing "One Meat Ball".

Instead of ABC's regular Wednesday night 9 feature "Swinging on the Golden Gate" for this week only the network will present the Jersey City Philharmonic Symphony.

The most recent Crossley radio survey reports "The volume of afternoon radio listening has surpassed the record set during the V-E day period and morning listening has climbed to the highest point since then.

The publicity ballyhoo that fanned Danny Kaye back on the radio at the beginning of the season was pegged on the fact that Goodman Ace was going to receive $3,000 a week for writing the show. The partnership is now about to be dissolved. Kaye is going to Hollywood to fulfill his movie commitments but Ace won't accompany him because he says he can't write well in Hollywood.

Several Guest Appearances Are Booked by Radio

By JEAN MEEGAN

NEW YORK, February 26 (AP)—Eddie Cantor will make reciprocal appearances Wednesday. He will take part in Linkletter's "House Party" at 4 in afternoon on CBS and Linkletter will pay him back immediately by going on the Cantor show at 9 Wednesday night on NBC. Frank Sinatra will have Jimmy Durante as his guest on 9 at CBS and Jack Smith who has a fifteen-minute music program on that network at 7:15 will have two guests: Josh White, the noted guitarist, and his 5-year-old son who will sing "One Meat Ball".

Instead of ABC's regular Wednesday night 9 feature "Swinging on the Golden Gate" for this week only the network will present the Jersey City Philharmonic Symphony.

The most recent Crossley radio survey reports "The volume of afternoon radio listening has surpassed the record set during the V-E day period and morning listening has climbed to the highest point since then.

The publicity ballyhoo that fanned Danny Kaye back on the radio at the beginning of the season was pegged on the fact that Goodman Ace was going to receive $3,000 a week for writing the show. The partnership is now about to be dissolved. Kaye is going to Hollywood to fulfill his movie commitments but Ace won't accompany him because he says he can't write well in Hollywood.

Sgt. Eugene D. Webb Receives Discharge

Sgt. Eugene D. Webb, son of Mrs. William D. Webb, 2 Utah avenue, Cumberland, has been honorably discharged from the army at the Camp Beale, Calif., separation center. He entered the army in Sept. 1942, and was assigned to the army service forces.

A chief clerk and entertainer, Sgt. Webb has received the Good Conduct Medal, American Defense Ribbon, Victory Ribbon, and unit citation. During his forty-two months of service, Sgt. Webb has earned thirty-six discharge points.

Tubize Rayon Nets $1,318,468 in 1945

New York, Feb. 26—Earnings of Tubize Rayon Corporation for 1945 amounted to $1,318,468 compared with $1,056,429 in 1944, it is made known by John E. Bassill, former president of Tubize Rayon and now a vice-president and director of Celanese Corporation of America, into which Tubize was merged on February 8.

After providing for preferred dividends, the earnings were equal to $1.40 per share of common stock in 1945 as compared with $1.22 per share in 1944.

Today's Needlework

By Laura Wheeler

Everyone likes variety in embroidery—each one of these cheery sunbonnet girl and flower motifs is different! They have many uses.

Use colorful floss when you do this simple, varied stitchery. Pattern 790 has transfer of ten motifs 1 1-2 by 2 to 8 by 9 inches; stitches.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this pattern to The Cumberland News, 39 Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York 11, N. Y. Print plainly pattern number, your name, address and zone.

Fifteen cents more brings you our newest needlecraft catalog—the 1946 edition—112 illustrations of designs for crochet, knitting, quilts, embroidery, toys, handicraft—a free pattern for cuddle toys printed right in the catalog.

HOUSE OF JACOB HOLDING SERVICES HERE THIS WEEK

Judith B. Hargrove, Coshocton, O., is conducting an evangelistic service at the supreme council of the House of Jacob, 230 Frederick street, this week. The theme of the service is "Gathering the Lost Sheep."

Superior mother of the House of Jacob, the evangelist has been with the organization as a missionary throughout the United States, and is at present a member of the board of reconstruction.

The House of Jacob was founded by Father G. W. Israel in 1910 and was incorporated in 1918 in Washington, D. C.

The first of the evangelistic services was held Sunday evening and will continue each evening this week, including next Sunday. Services are held at 8 o'clock. Regular services at the church are held each Tuesday, Friday and Sundays. Mother M. Munson is pastor.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our beloved Husband and Father, Clarke Decatur Rinker, who died February 27, 1944.

GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN
He lives in the land of Glory
With the blue and the gold of the skies,
And we who have known and loved him,
Whose passing has brought sad tears,
Will cherish his memory always,
To brighten the passing years,
Keep him dear Lord till we reach the shore
Then let us have him to love once more.

Sadly missed by his

Stock Market Continues To Show Declines in Number of Issues

Mild support appeared at the opening in active dealings. The ticker tape was late twice. Forenoon losses running to about six points were later reduced in most cases and modest plus signs cropped up here and there at the close.

Transfers of 2,650,000 shares compared with 2,390,000 Monday and were the largest since January 29.

Eastman Kodak, off 6 at one time, cut this to 2. Final casualties of fractions to about 2 included United States Steel, Bethleham, General Motors, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, Great Northern, Union Pacific, Goodyear, Deere, Consolidated Edison, United Corporation and Commonwealth and Southern the latter two coming out in 1,000 to 10,000-share blocks; American Smelting, General Electric, du Pont, Dow Chemical, Allied Chemical, Philip Morris, Johns-Manville, United States Gypsum and Standard Oil (NJ).

Armour and Wilson and Company moved up at the finish. Ahead were Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, American Telephone, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Kennecott, Anaconda and American Water Works.

Among Curb gainers were Barium Steel, American Gas and Community Water Service. On the offside were Leonard Oil, Mesabi Iron, Raytheon and St. Regis Paper. Turnover was 1,020,000 shares versus 920,000 the day before.

United States Treasury obligations declined on the Stock exchange as much as ¼ of a point for the long-term obligations. In the dealers' market final quotations were off 1-32 to 7-32 of a point.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our beloved Husband and Father, Clarke Decatur Rinker, who died February 27, 1944.

GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN
Somewhere back of the sunset,
Where loveliness never dies,
He lives in the land of Glory
With the blue and the gold of the skies,
And we who have known and loved him,
Whose passing has brought sad tears,
Will cherish his memory always,
To brighten the passing years,
Keep him dear Lord till we reach the shore
Then let us have him to love once more.

Stock Market Continues To Show Declines in Number of Issues

Mild support appeared at the opening in active dealings. The ticker tape was late twice. Forenoon losses running to about six points were later reduced in most cases and modest plus signs cropped up here and there at the close.

Transfers of 2,650,000 shares compared with 2,390,000 Monday and were the largest since January 29.

Eastman Kodak, off 6 at one time, cut this to 2. Final casualties of fractions to about 2 included United States Steel, Bethleham, General Motors, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, Great Northern, Union Pacific, Goodyear, Deere, Consolidated Edison, United Corporation and Commonwealth and Southern the latter two coming out in 1,000 to 10,000-share blocks; American Smelting, General Electric, du Pont, Dow Chemical, Allied Chemical, Philip Morris, Johns-Manville, United States Gypsum and Standard Oil (NJ).

Armour and Wilson and Company moved up at the finish. Ahead were Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, American Telephone, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Kennecott, Anaconda and American Water Works.

Among Curb gainers were Barium Steel, American Gas and Community Water Service. On the offside were Leonard Oil, Mesabi Iron, Raytheon and St. Regis Paper. Turnover was 1,020,000 shares versus 920,000 the day before.

United States Treasury obligations declined on the Stock exchance as much as ¼ of a point for the long-term obligations. In the dealers' market final quotations were off 1-32 to 7-32 of a point.

Tri-State Broadcasting Company Applies to FCC To Operate Station Here

Authorized Capital Is $100,000; Permit for FM Station To Be Asked This Week

The Tri-State Broadcasting Company, composed largely of prominent Cumberland businessmen, yesterday filed application with the Federal Communications Commission in Washington for permission to operate a standard broadcasting station in Cumberland.

Officials of the company said their application will be followed later this week with another application requesting a construction permit for a frequency modulation (FM) station of the "metropolitan" class.

Incorporated with an authorized capital of $100,000, the company expects to spend nearly three-fourths of that amount on construction of studios, transmitters and other equipment immediately after FCC approval of the applications.

250 Watts Power

Considerable study has been given for the last several weeks to location of the studios and transmitter sites, company officials stated, but announcement in this connection will be deferred until later.

Beginning of construction depends on granting of the permit and the availability of equipment, according to officials, who said the studios will be ultra-modern in design and accoustical qualities.

President of the new company is John W. Downing, state banking commissioner, who is also president of the Peninsula Broadcasting Company, Salisbury, and the Capital Broadcasting Company, Annapolis.

The Peninsula company operates WBOC in Salisbury and has obtained a permit for a "metropolitan" FM station there. The Capital company has permit for an FM station in Annapolis and has an application pending for a standard station there.

McMullen Is Vice President

Vice president, John J. McMullen, president of the Times and Alleganian Company, Cumberland.

Treasurer, Charles A. Piper, president of the Liberty Trust Company, Cumberland.

Secretary, W. Donald Smith, owner of the Cut-Rate Shoe stores in Cumberland, Frostburg and other cities.

Edmund S. Burke, president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, Cumberland.

Frank E. Smith, president of the Community Baking Company, Cumberland.

Irving Rosenbaum, treasurer of Rosenbaum Brothers, Incorporated, Cumberland.

William C. Walsh, Cumberland, former attorney general of Maryland and now a member of the law firm of Miles, Walsh, O'Brien and Morris, Baltimore.

I. L. Benjamin and W. Lee Allen, prominent businessmen of Salisbury, who also are associated with WBOC and the Capital Broadcasting Company.

Businessmen Connected with Firm

Other Cumberland businessmen identified with the Tri-State Broadcasting Company are Henry C. Swearingen, vice president and sales manager of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company; Daniel F. McMullen and Thomas B. Finan, Cumberland attorneys; Robert L. Stallings, president of the Georges Creek Coal Company, Incorporated; Morris Rosenbaum, president of Rosenbaum Brothers, Incorporated; Delbert R. Kitzmiller, owner of the D. R. Kitzmiller Memorials firm; George F. Hazelwood, president of the George F. Hazelwood Company; Charles R. McFerran, operator of the West Side garage; Ralph Lashley, former treasurer and general manager of the L. and A. Bus lines; James Black, assistant treasurer of the Times and Alleganian Company; C. William Gilchrist, Cumberland attorney, and W. Bladen Lowndes, Baltimore banker and former resident of Cumberland.

GETS PROMOTION — Randolph K. Wheat, once manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone company district including the Cumberland area, has been appointed general information manager of the four C. and P. companies operating in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia. He will be located in Washington.

Red Cross Drive Women's Section Will Meet Today

Four Hundred Solicitors To Get Instructions on Fund Campaign

Members of the Women's section of the Red Cross campaign organization, will meet at the city hall auditorium, at 2 p. m. today to receive instructions and supplies for their part in the drive to raise $30,500, for Red Cross work, Mrs. James McQuown, chairman of the section said last night.

Over 400 women solicitors and volunteers are listed in the section and they have the task of contacting every householder and resident in the city and its suburbs, during the week of the campaign.

Col. Randolph Millholland, county drive chairman will address the meeting this afternoon, will outline the campaign, and give a brief summary of the work of the Red Cross during the war, and the need for its continued activity now.

Mrs. McQuown will preside at the meeting and Mrs. Lee W. Witherup, executive secretary of Allegany county chapter, will be present to answer questions about campaign procedure.

Chairman Wiliam L. Lewis, of the county section has announced quotas for the towns in his division. They are as follows: Barton, $350; Eckhart, $350; Frostburg, $2,500; Midland, $350; National, $50; Mt. Savage, $600; Lonaconing, $750; Westernport, $1,500; Vale Summit, $100; Ridgeley, W. Va., which is also a part of this county's chapter, $350.

Advanced Gifts committee members met yesterday afternoon, and worked on plans for an initial report from this section. The group has the task of raising more than a third of the total county goal.

Volunteer clerical and stenographic workers have been assisting in office work in conjunction with the drive. A large number of volunteers have been giving their time individually, and members of Beta Sigma Phi, business women's sorority, donated several hours work Monday evening.

The drive opens March 4, with a campaign dinner at Central YMCA.

Local News in Brief

Wade H. Kepner, Wheeling, W. Va., grand exalted ruler of Elks, who will pay an official visit to Cumberland Lodge No. 63, B.P.O. Elks, Thursday, will be the speaker at the Kiwanis meeting at noon Thursday in Central YMCA.

The monthly meeting of the municipal airport commission will be held tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in the office of Mayor Thomas S. Post.

James C. Wilt, commander of J. Louis Wolford Post No. 1, Amvets, and chairman of the community housing committee, has called a meeting of the committee for tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. in his office at city hall.

LaVale Volunteer Firemen To Mark Thirteenth Anniversary Tomorrow

LaVale Volunteer Fire Department will observe its thirteenth anniversary tomorrow night with a banquet and program in the fire hall, beginning at 6:30 o'clock.

Guest speaker at the dinner will be John Fey, local attorney. The toastmaster will be Somerville Nicholson, county supervisor of assessments. Plans for the affair were made by Alvin Youngblood and E. C. Lancaster. Members of the women's auxiliary will prepare and serve the dinner.

William C. Ecton, Hagerstown, president of the Maryland State Volunteer Firemen's Association has accepted an invitation to be a guest.

Cromwell Zembower, secretary of the organization, said last night that the department was organized in February 1933, and has made steady progress since that time. The department has seventy members, about half of whom take an active part in affairs of the organization. Thirty were present at last night's meeting. Only residents of LaVale for a year or more are eligible for membership.

Since its inception, the LaVale firemen have purchased a modern fire engine, a quantity of other equipment and have built and paid for a modern fire house and social hall. At the anniversary dinner last year, the mortgage on the building was returned, having been paid in full. Theo rganization has taken a progressive interest in the affairs of the suburban community, and has a good record of accomplishment, Zembower said.

C. & P. Telephone Company Promotes Randolph Wheat

Randolph K. Wheat, general sales and servicing manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone company in Baltimore, has been appointed general information manager of the four C and P. companies operating in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia, it was announced here today.

Wheat is well known in Cumberland. At one time he was district manager of the company at Hagerstown and the district included the Cumberland area. He also was division superintendent in Baltimore.

Native of Virginia

In his new position, Wheat will report to the vice president in charge of public relations and will be located in Washington.

A native of Dumfries, Va., Wheat entered the telephone business as a messenger in Washington in 1912. He has had wide experience with the company, having advanced through successive positions in Washington, Virginia and Maryland until he was appointed to his present position in 1938.

Another announcement made yesterday by the telephone company was that H. Randolph Maddox, assstant general manager and general commercial manger of the company from August 1938 to April 1941, has been elected vice president in charge of public relations for the four C. and P. companies operating in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Announcement also was made of the re-election of officers of the Maryland company. They are Mark R. Sullivan, president; John A. Remon and Robert C. McCann, vice presidents; Charles A. Robinson, vice president, secretary and treasurer; Ralph A. Van Orsdel, vice president and general counsel; Franklin H. Kenworthy, vice president and comptroller; A. B. Haneke, vice president and general manager; E. R. Koogle, auditor; M. C. Rose, assistant general manager; H. S. Boyle, Jr., general commercial manager; J. W. Latham, chief engineer; N. E. Showalter, general traffic manager, and R. B. Miller, general plant manager.

Patterson Outlines Scope of Welfare Work in State

Average Per Capita Cost in Maryland Is $3.43, Rotarians Are Told

Information and statistics depicting the vast scope of the work covered by the state Welfare department and its increasing obligations were presented local Rotarians yesterday at their weekly club luncheon at Central YMÇA by J. Milton Patterson, executive director of the department.

Highlights in the description were an informative showing of the relatively low cost of the Maryland state welfare work and the plans contemplated under the Maryland Youth Commission, recently appointed by Gov. O'Conor with Patterson as its chairman.

As related to the national picture, Patterson noted that the average number of persons receiving general public assistance in the states is 280 in each 1,000 with Colorado topping the list with 540 and Maryland fourth from the bottom with an average of ninety odd. The average per capita state cost is $7.34, with Colorado the highest at $21.99 and Maryland only $3.43. "This showing," Patterson said, "should answer those who believe the state government is wasting money for this work."

511 Dependent Children Aided

Only 11,000 are now receiving old age assistance in the state, against a peak load of 19,000, Patterson said. Of 5,500 over 65 in Allegany

Cumberland Seeks Direct Air Route To Eastern Shore

Cumberland joined with Hagerstown, Salisbury and Ocean City yesterday in petitioning the state public service commission to grant Columbia Airlines, Inc., a franchise to fly from here and Hagerstown, directly to Eastern Shores cities without stopping in Baltimore.

Frederick Crawford, Columbia's president, and Harry Hayter, operations manager, flew here from Baltimore yesterday afternoon to present the petition to Mayor Post, who signed it at the conference.

Mayors of Hagerstown, Salisbury and Ocean City have already signed the petition, Mayor Post said.

Columbia recently sought a PSC franchise to fly from Baltimore to the Eastern Shore, but the right was granted to Chesapeake Airways, Inc. The latter holds a franchise to haul passengers from Baltimore to Salisbury, Easton and Ocean City.

The officials also asked Mayor Post whether any action had been taken locally to persuade the Civil Aeronautics Board to consider the Cumberland Municipal airport, which is located in Wiley Ford, W. Va., as a part of Maryland, since at the present time Columbia has only an intrastate franchise.

Mayor Post and Smith said that no word has been received from the CAB as yet regarding the matter, which was referred to the board some time ago.

Classes for Vets Will Begin Here This Evening

More Than Fifty Former Servicemen Are Enrolled for New Program

Former servicemen enrolled in the veterans' school that officially opens tonight at 7:30 o'clock at Fort Hill high school now number over fifty, Dr. Harold J. McNally, director of the program, announced yesterlay.

Leo Delaney, mathematics and science teacher at Central high school, Lonaconing, a former lieutenant colonel in the army, will have charge of tonight's opening class in the capacity of supervisor.

Dr. McNally said yesterday that in all probability it will be necessary to split this class into two groups since he believes that personalized instruction and supervision will be most important if the school is to be successful.

Students enrolled for the work are urged to be present tonight to receive their instructions and materials necessary to start work in their respective courses.

Dr. McNally said that the classes are still open for any and all veterans who wish to enroll in any of the courses being offered. Veterans who are interested in taking work should contact Dr. McNally in his office on the second floor of the Board of Education building, Washington street.

Two OPA Agents Will Study Rent Prices in City

Leo H. McCormick Announces He Will Send Officials Here on Monday

In response to requests for a study of alleged inequities in dwelling unit ceiling prices here, Leo H. McCormick, state OPA director announced yesterday that he is sending two OPA officials here Monday from Baltimore, to study the situation.

At the local OPA office, it was stated that James F. Morrow, chief enforcement attorney for rent control, and E. D. Condron, area rent control director, will be here from 1 to 6 p. m., Monday to review the local situation.

During the afternoon Morrow will confer with James C. Wilt at the local rent office in the city hall, and will be there to check into several cases of apparent inequities Wilt expects to call to his attention.

At an OPA meeting here Monday night, addressed by McCormick, Wilt charged that price ceilings on rents here are unfair in some in-

Baltimore Accountant Refuses City's Check

A check for $1,500 issued by the city in payment for auditing work has been refused by Charles O. Hall, Baltimore, certified public accountant, who has returned it to city hall.

Charles Z. Heskett, city attorney, said he had written Hall explaining that the council feels $1,500 is sufficient and that the city is not empowered to pay any more than that for the auditing service.

Heskett said Hall could take the matter up further with the council or could sue, although no such threat has been made. The case has been pending since November.

Wastepaper Drive Nets Sixteen Tons

Sixteen tons of wastepaper have been collected in the first two days of the monthly campaign, W. Donald Smith, salvage committee chairman, said last night.

Twelve tons were collected yesterday on West Side and four tons were collected Monday in outlying sections.

Today the collection will cover all streets and avenues north of Baltimore street and avenue and east of Wills creek.

INITIATION OF 64 NEW MEMBERS FEATURES EAGLES ANNIVERSARY

Cumberland Aerie No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, observed the forty-eighth anniversary of the founding of the national organization last night with an initiation of sixty-four new members and a social program, at the Eagles' home, North Mechanic street.

The local aerie is the largest fraternal organization in the county, members say, and is one of the largest in this section of the country.

Julius E. Schindler, local attorney and Harry G. Rice, worthy president of the Cumberland aerie, were principal speakers. Arrangements for the buffet supper and social hour after the initiation were arranged by Francis H. Schultz, John H. Hager, William T. Rollins, trustees and members of the social committee. Over 600 members participated.

In his address, Schindler called attention to contributions of the organization toward the nation's growth and progress. "Our steady growth is a tribute to the soundness of the programs we have supported", he said. "Our successful struggles in behalf of the common man richly earned us the name, 'Fighting Fraternity'. State old age pensions, the national Social Security law, mothers' pensions and workmen's compensation are causes we sponsored which now benefit our fellow citizens. We advocated Mother's day which now serves to remind us every year of the sanctity of home and family. We built a dormitory at Boys' Town to give underprivileged children a real chance in ilife. Truly, America is the better for our existence", he concluded.

Rice asserted that the Eagles are now more than a million strong and still growing. He said that the anniversary celebration marks the establishment of the Memorial Foundation, which will provide scholarships for sons and daughters of Eagles who lost their lives in the war. "The foundation", he explained," will aid other worthy causes, and should prove a means of reflecting the noble spirit of the organization with each succeeding anniversary. The speaker said over 4,000 Eagles were killed in the service of their country and over 150,000 were members of the armed forces.

Hagerstown Fair Election Will Be Held Saturday

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Feb. 26 (AP) —Opposing attorneys for two groups of stockholders in the Hagerstown Fair Association agreed by stipulation in circuit court today to conduct an election of officers and directors Saturday with ninety-two votes to be cast in a secret ballot.

Last month three stockholders of the association, which operates the Hagerstown race track, filed suit charging that three other stockholders were attempting to manipulate shares in an order to gain control.

In today's agreement, it was stipulated that the ninety-two votes in question would be cast separately, and sealed in an envelope.

Two separate tickets for officers and directors are on the ballot, and if eight of the nominees receive a plurality without the contested votes, it was agreed the court proceedings would be dropped.

Andrew K. Coffman, now serving sa president, will not be up for re-election. However, the name of D. Eldred Rinehart is on both tickets for the new president without opposition.

Two slates were nominated for vice president, treasurer, recording and corresponding secretaries, and for ten directors.

Chief Judge William A. Huster set the election for March 2 after postponing a stockholders' meeting set for January 5.

At that time, Elmer A. Corderman, S. Braden King and Jacob M. Middlekauf filed a bill of compiaint contending that three other stockholders had transferred about 115 shares of stock to twenty-one "straw men" in an effort to extend control over the association.

The bill named Mrs. Jeanette Bester, Lester P. Widmeyer and R. C. Snavely as bona fida holders of 130 shares of stock, but asserted that they "unlawfully and designedly" transferred the 115 shares. Under the corporation charter, no stockholder may cast more than five votes, it was declared.

County Will Pay City Part of Cost Of Paving Street

Commissioners Vote To Pay $9,919.30 for Holland Street Work

The board of county commissioners yesterday voted unanimously to pay $9,919.30 to the City of Cumberland for the county's share in the paving of Holland street after Horace P. Whitworth, board attorney, said the county is obligated to pay its share of the paving costs since part of the land fronting Holland street is owned by Allegany county.

The bill for $9,919.30 was presented last week but action was delayed pending a check of the city and county records to determine if and when an agreement was made for the city to lease the land used as a city playground and owned by the county.

City Commissioner Hunter B. Helfrich said last week that he had arranged last year with the county board for payments of the county's share of the paving before work was started. A check of the board minutes failed to show that any written agreement was made but members of the board said yesterday that they recalled conferring last year with Helfrich and agreeing to pay the county's share of the work.

Cost $6.12 a Foot

The county farm property has a frontage of 1,620.8 lineal feet on Holland street, and the cost was fixed at $6.12 per foot. Besides the section used as a city playground, the county land extends from the

Ex-Marines Plan To Form Corps League in City

Plans are being formulated here for the organization of a local Marine Corps league, according to Herman M. Heller, 716 Elm street, former member of the marine corps for about ten years.

Heller explained last night that there are about 400 marines in Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties, and it should be possible to form a post here with at least 100 active members. Considerable interest has been shown by a number of ex-marines, he explained, and local recruiter, S-Sgt. Murrel W. Brainerd, of the marine corps recruiting office has pledged his cooperation.

The Marine Corps league, Heller explained is an old national organization, similar to a Legion post or any other servicemen's organization, except that membership is limited to ex-marines. Any man, he said, who has served honorably in the corps, either in war or peace-time is eligible. There are a number of Marine Corps leagues throughout the country he explained, and in some cities and sections, they are quite active.

The league is not too well known in this section Heller stated, and if it can be established here, it will be the only one in Maryland.

To obtain a charter, ten members must be registered, Sgt. Brainerd explained, and a petition from interested discharged marines in this area must accompany the application. Brainerd told Heller he has secured the necessary information and petitions, and any ex-marine who wants to participate in the idea or assist in the formation of the league here should go to the marine recruiting station in the post office building and sign the petition.

Two Local Men, Hurt in Fight, To Get Hearings

Two local men, both of whom were injured, police reported, in a fight in the Friendly tavern, Front street, last evening about 7 o'clock will receive hearings in police court this morning on charges of disorderly conduct.

The men, booked as Henry Purcell, 528 North Centre street, and Dewey Mort, 227 West Offutt street, were arrested by Officer Joseph Stitcher and taken to Allegany hospital dispensary for treatment of cuts suffered in the disturbance.

Police said Mort was treated for a very deep cut above the left eye, suffered when he was struck by a beer bottle Purcell threw at him. Six stitches were needed to close the cut which police said severed an artery.

Officer Stitcher said Purcell cut off the end of his right index finger on the broken bottle which inflicted two other cuts on his hight hand.

Two persons posted $10 bond each last evening for hearings in police court this morning on charges of disorderly conduct. They were booked as Wilda Uhl, 100 block Bellevue street, and Lula Wilfong, 100 block, Frederick street.

Lt. Charles Stump Begins Terminal Leave from Navy

Cumberlander Took Part in Several Invasions in Pacific

Lt. Charles M. Stump, Washington-Lee apartments, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Stump, arrived home from the navy yesterday on terminal leave.

Stump saw service aboard the U.S.S. Capricornus, an attack cargo ship known officially as AKA-57. He was gunnery officer on the ship and participated in several invasions and landings in the Pacific. During his tour of active duty, Stump sailed over 60,000 miles of Pacific and Yellow Sea waters.

Prior to entering the service, Stump was associated with his father here in the insurance business and was active in civic, social and fraternal circles. He entered the navy in January 1943 and after processing, was sent to Dartmouth college, Hanover, N. H., Princeton university, Princeton, N. J., and Ohio State university, Columbus, Ohio, for specialized training and instruction.

Stump then went to Bainbridge, Md., where he was an instructor in the recruit training department for several months. He was moved to California and assigned to the Capricornus early in 1944, to begin his tour of sea duty.

Stump participated in the invasion of the Philippine Islands, helping land troops and supplies at Leyte and also at Lingayen Gulf, Luzon. He was also a participant in the invasion of Okinawa and after the atom bomb was dropped at Nagasakai, Japan, his ship helped land the Second Marine division in that city as occupation troops.

He completed his tour of duty by helping transport Chinese troops from Hong Kong to Tsingtao, China, on the Yellow sea, then went to Manila, from where his ship transported a number of American troops back to the states.

Stump landed in Seattle, Washington, late in December and was processed for discharge in California in January.

TWO SALVATION ARMY DELEGATES TO ATTEND ATLANTA CONVENTION

Two members of the Salvation Army's "Enthusiasts," the Young Peoples Evangelistic Brigade, will leave Cumberland Thursday for Atlanta, Ga., where they will serve as delegates to the Young Peoples convention, Adjt. Robert S. Ball, local commander, said last night.

The delegates will be Miss Josephine Davis and Miss Edna Lytton. They will go first to Clarksburg, W. Va., where they will meet a party of young people for the trip by station wagon to Atlanta.

Tonight the Young People's Evangelistic Brigade will have charge of service at Grace Baptist church. McDonald will preach. The services will get underway at 7:30 p. m.

Reports Theft

J. P. Anderson, 906 Gay street, reported to police yesterday that someone entered his home Sunday and escaped with from $35 to $40 in cash. The intruder, he believed, used a key to gain entrance, police were told.

Legion May Back Coast-to-Coast Check on VA

13,400 Legion Posts Will Submit Reports on Activities

A report from the national executive committee of the American Legion was submitted to members of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13 last night when it was learned that the Legion proposes to establish a coast-to-coast service machinery with 13,400 Legion posts submitting monthly progress reports on the activities of the Veterans Administration "so that the people of America may be kept informed whether this agency is meeting its responsibility in carrying out the wishes of the people for a square deal for war veterans."

The executive committee's statement also announced that the national commander, John Stelle, acted solely upon recommendations of the National Legislative Committee of the Legion and was supplied with facts that showed convincingly "that there was such a substantial failure in the administration of veterans affairs that the national commander in the discharge of his official responsibility, had no other alternative than to bring them to the attention of the Congress and the public, and we commend and approve his having taken that action."

Deplore Personalities Issue

At the same time, the executive committee announced that the American Legion has not demanded and does not now demand the resignation or removal of Gen. Bradley as administrator of veterans affairs and declared that "we deplore the fact that personalities have been injected which have beclouded the true issue, which is insuring to veterans and their dependents the full benefits provided by law."

The committee's statement which was read by Post Commander Samuel A. Graham also stated, "We are pleased to note that since these deficiences have been invited to the attention of the administrator of veterans affairs, that he has taken certain actions to correct failures and to improve the service, and express the hope that he will accomplish further improvements."

The statement also declared that "the American Legion is ever ready, as it always has been, to strengthen his (Bradley's) hands and to cooperate, aid, and assist him in the performance of his responsibilities. We make it clear that fear of criticism never has, does not now, and will not prevent the American Legion from presenting the facts in connection with the administration of the laws which affect the welfare of the veterans and their dependents, and charge the national commander to adhere to that policy."

Submit Veterans' Experiences

In announcing the setup for the monthly progress reports, the resolution forwarded to Commander Graham by the national executive committee stated that the members of the 13,400 Legion post should submit to their post service officers the experiences of veterans within their knowledge, whether they be Legionnaires or not.

Post service officers are to forward summarized reports to their department service officers after which the service officers of the fifty-eight departments will turn over consolidated department reports to the field representative at national headquarters. The national officials will then summarize the department reports and compile a statement which will serve as the basis of the official monthly progress report to be issued to the national commander.

The resolution also stated that "fairness will be the yardstick" of the American Legion's monthly report and that the Legion will "start from the admitted deficits and shortcomings of the Veterans Administration and that full credit shall be given for any improvement." On the other hand, the resolution states that "if delinquencies, delays and inefficiency continue in the Veterans Administration that these be ruthlessly exposed."

Following the reading of the statement and resolution of the national executive committee, the members heard a report on two local cases involving war veterans where considerable delay was manifested on the part of the Veterans Administration.

Appoints Committee

Other members are M. J. Brady, John R. Kelly, Jr., George Busky, Ray Ansbach, William McGady, Harry D. Bogler, David Sloan, Humphrey Johnston and Phil Fleming.

Vincent P. Ingram, Wesley Abrams and Patrick J. Carroll were named a committee of three to attend a meeting pertaining to the proposed completion of the Savage River dam. The meeting will Friday at 3 o'clock in City Hall auditorium.

D.D.T. Is Effective in Killing Codling Moth, Orchardists Say

In response to inquiries received from orchardists in this locality, County Agent R. F. McHenry said yesterday that orchard men in West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania who have experimented with the new insecticide, D.D.T., have found that it is effective in killing the codling moth and keeping it under control.

Orchardists who experimented with D.D.T. spray last year were unanimous in stating that the new insecticide "has plenty of punch".

The University of Maryland expresses the opinion that if the codling moth was well-controlled in 1945 by the use of D.D.T., it is not necessary to repeat the use of the spray in the succeeding year.

Where there has been a heavy kill in one year, ordinary arsenical sprays should be sufficient for co ling moth control the next ye It has also been noted that D.D is not effective against Europe red mite and that by substituti D.D.T. for the usual codling m sprays, the red mite seems to crease and spread.

Red mite is widespread in A gany county orchards. The conc sion is that in order to control b codling moth and red mite in same orchard, D.D.T. had proba better not be used two years succession.

Early tests by entomologists sho that D.D.T. will damage honey b Bees are necessary to pollinate a blossoms so that fruit will set. chardists who tried D.D.T. summer, however, report that D.D is less harmful to bees than usual arsenical sprays.

Tri-State Broadcasting Company Applies to FCC To Operate Station Here

Authorized Capital Is $100,000; Permit for FM Station To Be Asked This Week

The Tri-State Broadcasting Company, composed largely of prominent Cumberland businessmen, yesterday filed application with the Federal Communications Commission in Washington for permission to operate a standard broadcasting station in Cumberland.

Officials of the company said their application will be followed later this week with another application requesting a construction permit for a frequency modulation (FM) station of the "metropolitan" class.

Incorporated with an authorized capital of $100,000, the company expects to spend nearly three-fourths of that amount on construction of studios, transmitters and other equipment immediately after FCC approval of the applications.

250 Watts Power

The standard station would operate with 250 watts power and would have unlimited time on 1340 kilocycles.

Considerable study has been given for the last several weeks to location of the studios and transmitter sites, company officials stated, but announcement in this connection will be deferred until later.

Beginning of construction depends on granting of the permit and the availability of equipment, according to officials, who said the studios will be ultra-modern in design and accoustical qualities.

President of the new company is John W. Downing, state banking commissioner, who is also president of the Peninsula Broadcasting Company, Salisbury, and the Capital Broadcasting Company, Annapolis.

The Peninsula company operates WBOC in Salisbury and has obtained a permit for a "metropolitan" FM station there. The Capital company has permit for an FM station in Annapolis and has an application pending for a standard station there.

McMullen Is Vice President

Vice president, John J. McMullen, president of the Times and Alleganian Company, Cumberland.

Treasurer, Charles A. Piper, president of the Liberty Trust Company, Cumberland.

Secretary, W. Donald Smith, owner of the Cut-Rate Shoe stores in Cumberland, Frostburg and other cities.

Edmund S. Burke, president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, Cumberland.

Frank E. Smith, president of the Community Baking Company, Cumberland.

Irving Rosenbaum, treasurer of Rosenbaum Brothers, Incorporated, Cumberland.

William C. Walsh, Cumberland, former attorney general of Maryland and now a member of the law firm of Miles, Walsh, O'Brien and Morris, Baltimore.

I. L. Benjamin and W. Lee Allen, prominent businessmen of Salisbury, who also are associated with WBOC and the Capital Broadcasting Company.

Businessmen Connected with Firm

Other Cumberland businessmen identified with the Tri-State Broadcasting Company are Henry C. Swearingen, vice president and sales manager of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company; Daniel F. McMullen and Thomas B. Finan, Cumberland attorneys; Robert L. Stallings, president of the Georges Creek Coal Company, Incorporated; Morris Rosenbaum, president of Rosenbaum Brothers, Incorporated; Delbert R. Kitzmiller, owner of the D. R. Kitzmiller Memorials firm; George F. Hazelwood, president of the George F. Hazelwood Company; Charles R. McFerran, operator of the West Side garage; Ralph Lashley, former treasurer and general manager of the L. and A. Bus lines; James Black, assistant treasurer of the Times and Alleganian Company; C. William Gilchrist, Cumberland attorney, and W. Bladen Lowndes, Baltimore banker and former resident of Cumberland.

GETS PROMOTION — Randolph K. Wheat, once manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone company district including the Cumberland area, has been appointed general information manager of the four C. and P. companies operating in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia. He will be located in Washington.

Red Cross Drive Women's Section Will Meet Today

Four Hundred Solicitors To Get Instructions on Fund Campaign

Members of the Women's section of the Red Cross campaign organization, will meet at the city hall auditorium, at 2 p. m. today to receive instructions and supplies for their part in the drive to raise $30,500, for Red Cross work, Mrs. James McQuown, chairman of the section said last night.

Over 400 women solicitors and volunteers are listed in the section and they have the task of contacting every householder and resident in the city and its suburbs, during the week of the campaign.

Col. Randolph Millholland, county drive chairman will address the meeting this afternoon, will outline the campaign, and give a brief summary of the work of the Red Cross during the war, and the need for its continued activity now.

Mrs. McQuown will preside at the meeting and Mrs. Lee W. Witherup, executive secretary of Allegany county chapter, will be present to answer questions about campaign procedure.

Chairman Wiliam L. Lewis, of the county section has announced quotas for the towns in his division. They are as follows: Barton, $350; Eckhart, $350; Frostburg, $2,500; Midland, $350; National, $50; Mt. Savage, $600; Lonaconing, $750; Westernport, $1,500; Vale Summit, $100; Ridgeley, W. Va., which is also a part of this county's chapter, $350.

Advanced Gifts committee members met yesterday afternoon, and worked on plans for an initial report from this section. The group has the task of raising more than a third of the total county goal.

Volunteer clerical and stenographic workers have been assisting in office work in conjunction with the drive. A large number of volunteers have been giving their time individually, and members of Beta Sigma Phi, business women's sorority, donated several hours work Monday evening.

The drive opens March 4, with a campaign dinner at Central YMCA.

Local News in Brief

Wade H. Kepner, Wheeling, W. Va., grand exalted ruler of Elks, who will pay an official visit to Cumberland Lodge No. 63, B.P.O. Elks, Thursday, will be the speaker at the Kiwanis meeting at noon Thursday in Central YMCA.

The monthly meeting of the municipal airport commission will be held tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in the office of Mayor Thomas S. Post.

James C. Wilt, commander of J. Louis Wolford Post No. 1, Amvets, and chairman of the community housing committee, has called a meeting of the committee for tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. in his office at city hall.

LaVale Volunteer Firemen To Mark Thirteenth Anniversary Tomorrow

LaVale Volunteer Fire Department will observe its thirteenth anniversary tomorrow night with a banquet and program in the fire hall, beginning at 6:30 o'clock.

Guest speaker at the dinner will be John Fey, local attorney. The toastmaster will be Somerville Nicholson, county supervisor of assessments. Plans for the affair were made by Alvin Youngblood and E. C. Lancaster. Members of the women's auxiliary will prepare and serve the dinner.

William C. Ecton, Hagerstown, president of the Maryland State Volunteer Firemen's Association has accepted an invitation to be a guest.

Cromwell Zembower, secretary of the organization, said last night that the department was organized in February 1933, and has made steady progress since that time. The department has seventy members, about half of whom take an active part in affairs of the organization. Thirty were present at last night's meeting. Only residents of LaVale for a year or more are eligible for membership.

Since its inception, the LaVale firemen have purchased a modern fire engine, a quantity of other equipment and have built and paid for a modern fire house and social hall. At the anniversary dinner last year, the mortgage on the building was returned, having been paid in full. Theo rganization has taken a progressive interest in the affairs of the suburban community, and has a good record of accomplishment, Zembower said.

C. & P. Telephone Company Promotes Randolph Wheat

Randolph K. Wheat, general sales and servicing manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone company in Baltimore, has been appointed general information manager of the four C and P. companies operating in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia, it was announced here today.

Wheat is well known in Cumberland. At one time he was district manager of the company at Hagerstown and the district included the Cumberland area. He also was division superintendent in Baltimore.

Native of Virginia

In his new position, Wheat will report to the vice president in charge of public relations and will be located in Washington.

A native of Dumfries, Va., Wheat entered the telephone business as a messenger in Washington in 1912. He has had wide experience with the company, having advanced through successive positions in Washington, Virginia and Maryland until he was appointed to his present position in 1938.

Another announcement made yesterday by the telephone company was that H. Randolph Maddox, assstant general manager and general commercial manger of the company from August 1938 to April 1941, has been elected vice president in charge of public relations for the four C and P. companies operating in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Announcement also was made of the re-election of officers of the Maryland company. They are Mark R. Sullivan, president; John A. Remon and Robert C. McCann, vice presidents; Charles A. Robinson, vice president, secretary and treasurer; Ralph A. Van Orsdel, vice president and general counsel; Franklin H. Kenworthy, vice president and comptroller; A. B. Showalter, general traffic manager, and R. B. Miller, general plant manager.

Patterson Outlines Scope of Welfare Work in State

Average Per Capita Cost in Maryland Is $3.43, Rotarians Are Told

Information and statistics depicting the vast scope of the work covered by the state Welfare department and its increasing obligations were presented local Rotarians yesterday at their weekly club luncheon at Central YMÇA by J. Milton Patterson, executive director of the department.

Highlights in the description were an informative showing of the relativeiy low cost of the Maryland state welfare work and the plans contemplated under the Maryland Youth Commission, recently appointed by Gov. O'Conor with Patterson as its chairman.

As related to the national picture, Patterson noted that the average number of persons receiving general public assistance in the states is 280 in each 1,000 with Colorado topping the list with 540 and Maryland fourth from the bottom with an average of ninety odd. The average per capita state cost is $7.34, with Colorado the highest at $21.99 and Maryland only $3.43. "This showing," Patterson said, "should answer those who believe the state government is wasting money for this work."

511 Dependent Children Aided

Patterson described the old age assistance insurance, aid of dependent children, the blind and the medically indigent.

Only 11,000 are now receiving old age assistance in the state, against a peak load of 19,000, Patterson said. Of 5,500 over 65 in Allegany

Cumberland Seeks Direct Air Route To Eastern Shore

Cumberland joined with Hagerstown, Salisbury and Ocean City yesterday in petitioning the state public service commission to grant Columbia Airlines, Inc., a franchise to fly from here and Hagerstown, directly to Eastern Shores cities without stopping in Baltimore.

The action was taken when Mayor Thomas S. Post and Harold W. Smith, secretary of the local chamber of commerce, conferred with officials of the airline yesterday afternoon in Mayor Post's office.

Frederick Crawford, Columbia's president, and Harry Hayter, operations manager, flew here from Baltimore yesterday afternoon to present the petition to Mayor Post, who signed it at the conference.

Mayors of Hagerstown, Salisbury and Ocean City have already signed the petition, Mayor Post said.

Columbia recently sought a PSC franchise to fly from Baltimore to the Eastern Shore, but the right was granted to Chesapeake Airways, Inc. The latter holds a franchise to haul passengers from Baltimore to Salisbury, Easton and Ocean City.

The officials also asked Mayor Post whether any action had been taken locally to persuade the Civil Aeronautics Board to consider the Cumberland Municipal airport, which is located in Wiley Ford, W. Va., as a part of Maryland, since at the present time Columbia has only an intrastate franchise.

Mayor Post and Smith said that no word has been received from the CAB as yet regarding the matter, which was referred to the board some time ago.

More Than Fifty Former Servicemen Are Enrolled for New Program

Former servicemen enrolled in the veterans' school that officially opens tonight at 7:30 o'clock at Fort Hill high school now number over fifty, Dr. Harold J. McNally, director of the program, announced yesterlay.

Leo Delaney, mathematics and science teacher at Central high school, Lonaconing, a former lieutenant colonel in the army, will have charge of tonight's opening class in the capacity of supervisor.

Dr. McNally said yesterday that in all probability it will be necessary to split this class into two groups since he believes that personalized instruction and supervision will be most important if the school is to be successful.

Students enrolled for the work are urged to be present tonight to receive their instructions and materials necessary to start work in their respective courses.

Dr. McNally said that the classes are still open for any and all veterans who wish to enroll in any of the courses being offered. Veterans who are interested in taking work should contact Dr. McNally in his office on the second floor of the Board of Education building, Washington street.

Two OPA Agents Will Study Rent Prices in City

Leo H. McCormick Announces He Will Send Officials Here on Monday

In response to requests for a study of alleged inequities in dwelling unit ceiling prices here, Leo H. McCormick, state OPA director announced yesterday that he is sending two OPA officials here Monday from Baltimore, to study the situation.

At the local OPA office, it was stated that James F. Morrow, chief enforcement attorney for rent control, and E. D. Condron, area rent control director, will be here from 1 to 6 p. m., Monday to review the local situation.

During the afternoon Morrow will confer with James C. Wilt at the local rent office in the city hall, and will be there to check into several cases of apparent inequities Wilt expects to call to his attention.

Baltimore Accountant Refuses City's Check

A check for $1,500 issued by the city in payment for auditing work has been refused by Charles O. Hall, Baltimore, certified public accountant, who has returned it to city hall.

Charles Z. Heskett, city attorney, said he had written Hall explaining that the council feels $1,500 is sufficient and that the city is not empowered to pay any more than that for the auditing service.

Heskett said Hall could take the matter up further with the council or could sue, although no such threat has been made. The case has been pending since November.

Wastepaper Drive Nets Sixteen Tons

Sixteen tons of wastepaper have been collected in the first two days of the monthly campaign, W. Donald Smith, salvage committee chairman, said last night.

Twelve tons were collected yesterday on West Side and four tons were collected Monday in outlying sections.

Today the collection will cover all streets and avenues north of Baltimore street and avenue and east of Wills creek.

INITIATION OF 64 NEW MEMBERS FEATURES EAGLES ANNIVERSARY

Cumberland Aerie No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, observed the forty-eighth anniversary of the founding of the national organization last night with an initiation of sixty-four new members and a social program, at the Eagles' home, North Mechanic street.

The local aerie is the largest fraternal organization in the county, members say, and is one of the largest in this section of the country.

Julius E. Schindler, local attorney and Harry G. Rice, worthy president of the Cumberland aerie, were principal speakers. Arrangements for the buffet supper and social hour after the initiation were arranged by Francis H. Schultz, John H. Hager, William T. Rollins, trustees and members of the social committee. Over 600 members participated.

In his address, Schindler called attention to contributions of the organization toward the nation's growth and progress. "Our steady growth is a tribute to the soundness of the programs we have supported", he said. "Our successful struggles in behalf of the common man richly earned us the name, 'Fighting Fraternity'. State old age pensions, the national Social Security law, mothers' pensions and workmen's compensation are causes we sponsored which now benefit our fellow citizens. We advocated Mother's day which now serves to remind us every year of the sanctity of home and family. We built a dormitory at Boys' Town to give underprivileged children a real chance in ilife. Truly, America is the better for our existence", he concluded.

Rice asserted that the Eagles are now more than a million strong and still growing. He said that the anniversary celebration marks the establishment of the Memorial Foundation, which will provide scholarships for sons and daughters of Eagles who lost their lives in the war. "The foundation", he explained," will aid other worthy causes, and should prove a means of reflecting the noble spirit of the organization with each succeeding anniversary. The speaker said over 4,000 Eagles were killed in the service of their country and over 150,000 were members of the armed forces.

Hagerstown Fair Election Will Be Held Saturday

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Feb. 26 (AP) —Opposing attorneys for two groups of stockholders in the Hagerstown Fair Association agreed by stipulation in circuit court today to conduct an election of officers and directors Saturday with ninety-two votes to be cast in a secret ballot.

Last month three stockholders of the association, which operates the Hagerstown race track, filed suit charging that three other stockholders were attempting to manipulate shares in an order to gain control.

In today's agreement, it was stipulated that the ninety-two votes in question would be cast separately, and sealed in an envelope.

Two separate tickets for officers and directors are on the ballot, and if eight of the nominees receive a plurality without the contested votes, it was agreed the court proceedings would be dropped.

In event no plurality is reached without the contested votes, present officers will continue to serve until final court settlement.

Andrew K. Coffman, now serving sa president, will not be up for re-election. However, the name of D. Eldred Rinehart is on both tickets for the new president without opposition.

Two slates were nominated for vice president, treasurer, recording and corresponding secretaries, and for ten directors.

Chief Judge William A. Huster set the election for March 2 after postponing a stockholders' meeting set for January 5.

At that time, Elmer A. Corderman, S. Braden King and Jacob M. Middlekauf filed a bill of complaint contending that three other stockholders had transferred about 115 shares of stock to twenty-one "straw men" in an effort to extend control over the association.

The bill named Mrs. Jeanette Bester, Lester P. Widmeyer and R. C. Snavely as bona fida holders of 130 shares of stock, but asserted that they "unlawfully and designedly" transferred the 115 shares. Under the corporation charter, no stockholder may cast more than five votes, it was declared.

County Will Pay City Part of Cost Of Paving Street

Commissioners Vote To Pay $9,919.30 for Holland Street Work

The board of county commissioners yesterday voted unanimously to pay $9,919.30 to the City of Cumberland for the county's share in the paving of Holland street after Horace P. Whitworth, board attorney, said the county is obligated to pay its share of the paving costs since part of the land fronting Holland street is owned by Allegany county.

The bill for $9,919.30 was presented last week but action was delayed pending a check of the city and county records to determine if and when an agreement was made for the city to lease the land used as a city playground and owned by the county.

City Commissioner Hunter B. Helfrich said last week that he had arranged last year with the county board for payments of the county's share of the paving before work was started. A check of the board minutes failed to show that any written agreement was made but members of the board said yesterday that they recalled conferring last year with Helfrich and agreeing to pay the county's share of the work.

Cost $6.12 a Foot

The county farm property has a frontage of 1,620.8 lineal feet on Holland street, and the cost was fixed at $6.12 per foot. Besides the section used as a city playground, the county land extends from the

Ex-Marines Plan To Form Corps League in City

Plans are being formulated here for the organization of a local Marine Corps league, according to Herman M. Heller, 716 Elm street, former member of the marine corps for about ten years.

Heller explained last night that there are about 400 marines in Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties, and it should be possible to form a post here with at least 100 active members. Considerable interest has been shown by a number of ex-marines, he explained, and local recruiter, S-Sgt. Murrel W. Brainerd, of the marine corps recruiting office has pledged his cooperation.

The Marine Corps league, Heller explained is an old national organization, similar to a Legion post or any other servicemen's organization, except that membership is limited to ex-marines. Any man, he said, who has served honorably in the corps, either in war or peace-time is eligible. There are a number of Marine Corps leagues throughout the country he explained, and in some cities and sections, they are quite active.

The league is not too well known in this section Heller stated, and if it can be established here, it will be the only one in Maryland.

To obtain a charter, ten members must be registered, Sgt. Brainerd explained, and a petition from interested discharged marines in this area must accompany the application. Brainerd told Heller he has secured the necessary information and petitions, and any ex-marine who wants to participate in the idea or assist in the formation of the league here should go to the marine recruiting station in the post office building and sign the petition.

Two Local Men, Hurt in Fight, To Get Hearings

Two local men, both of whom were injured, police reported, in a fight in the Friendly tavern, Front street, last evening about 7 o'clock will receive hearings in police court this morning on charges of disorderly conduct.

The men, booked as Henry Purcell, 528 North Centre street, and Dewey Mort, 227 West Offutt street, were arrested by Officer Joseph Stitcher and taken to Allegany hospital dispensary for treatment of cuts suffered in the disturbance.

Police said Mort was treated for a very deep cut above the left eye, suffered when he was struck by a beer bottle Purcell threw at him. Six stitches were needed to close the cut which police said severed an artery.

Both of the men are being held in the city jail for the hearing.

Two persons posted $10 bond each last evening for hearings in police court this morning on charges of disorderly conduct. They were booked as Wilda Uhl, 100 block Bellevue street, and Lula Wilfong, 100 block, Frederick street.

Lt. Charles Stump Begins Terminal Leave from Navy

Cumberlander Took Part in Several Invasions in Pacific

Lt. Charles M. Stump, Washington-Lee apartments, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Stump, arrived home from the navy yesterday on terminal leave.

Stump saw service aboard the U.S.S. Capricornus, an attack cargo ship known officially as AKA-57. He was gunnery officer on the ship and participated in several invasions and landings in the Pacific. During his tour of active duty, Stump sailed over 60,000 miles of Pacific and Yellow Sea waters.

Prior to entering the service, Stump was associated with his father here in the insurance business and was active in civic, social and fraternal circles. He entered the navy in January 1943 and after processing, was sent to Dartmouth college, Hanover, N. H., Princeton university, Princeton, N. J., and Ohio State university, Columbus, Ohio, for specialized training and instruction.

Stump then went to Bainbridge, Md., where he was an instructor in the recruit training department for several months. He was moved to California and assigned to the Capricornus early in 1944, to begin his tour of sea duty.

Stump participated in the invasion of the Philippine Islands, helping land troops and supplies at Leyte and also at Lingayen Gulf, Luzon. He was also a participant in the invasion of Okinawa and after the atom bomb was dropped at Nagasakai, Japan, his ship helped land the Second Marine division in that city as occupation troops.

He completed his tour of duty by helping transport Chinese troops from Hong Kong to Tsingtao, China, on the Yellow sea, then went to Manila, from where his ship transported a number of American troops back to the states.

TWO SALVATION ARMY DELEGATES TO ATTEND ATLANTA CONVENTION

Two members of the Salvation Army's "Enthusiasts," the Young Peoples Evangelistic Brigade, will leave Cumberland Thursday for Atlanta, Ga., where they will serve as delegates to the Young Peoples convention, Adjt. Robert S. Ball, local commander, said last night.

The delegates will be Miss Josephine Davis and Miss Edna Lytton. They will go first to Clarksburg, W. Va., where they will meet a party of young people for the trip by station wagon to Atlanta.

The finals of the youth's territorial oratorical contest will be held at the convention with James Osborne, Washington, D. C., representing the division embracing the Cumberland area.

Tonight the Young People's Evangelistic Brigade will have charge of service at Grace Baptist church. McDonald will preach. The services will get underway at 7:30 p. m.

Reports Theft

J. P. Anderson, 906 Gay street, reported to police yesterday that someone entered his home Sunday and escaped with from $35 to $40 in cash. The intruder, he believed, used a key to gain entrance, police were told.

Legion May Back Coast-to-Coast Check on VA

13,400 Legion Posts Will Submit Reports on Activities

A report from the national executive committee of the American Legion was submitted to members of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13 last night when it was learned that the Legion proposes to establish a coast-to-coast service machinery with 13,400 Legion posts submitting monthly progress reports on the activities of the Veterans Administration "so that the people of America may be kept informed whether this agency is meeting its responsibility in carrying out the wishes of the people for a square deal for war veterans."

The executive committee's statement also announced that the national commander, John Stelle, acted solely upon recommendations of the National Legislative Committee of the Legion and was supplied with facts that showed convincingly "that there was such a substantial failure in the administration of veterans affairs that the national commander in the discharge of his official responsibility, had no other alternative than to bring them to the attention of the Congress and the public, and we commend and approve his having taken that action."

Deplore Personalities Issue

At the same time, the executive committee announced that the American Legion has not demanded and does not now demand the resignation or removal of Gen. Bradley as administrator of veterans affairs and declared that "we deplore the fact that personalities have been injected which have beclouded the true issue, which is insuring to veterans and their dependents the full benefits provided by law."

The committee's statement which was read by Post Commander Samuel A. Graham also stated, "We are pleased to note that since these deficiences have been invited to the attention of the administrator of veterans affairs, that he has taken certain actions to correct failures and to improve the service, and express the hope that he will accomplish further improvements."

The statement also declared that "the American Legion is ever ready, as it always has been, to strengthen his (Bradley's) hands and to cooperate, aid, and assist him in the performance of his responsibilities. We make it clear that fear of criticism never has, does not now, and will not prevent the American Legion from presenting the facts in connection with the administration of the laws which affect the welfare of the veterans and their dependents, and charge the national commander to adhere to that policy."

Submit Veterans' Experiences

In announcing the setup for the monthly progress reports, the resolution forwarded to Commander Graham by the national executive committee stated that the members of the 13,400 Legion post should submit to their post service officers the experiences of veterans within their knowledge, whether they be Legionnaires or not.

Post service officers are to forward summarized reports to their department service officers after which the service officers of the fifty-eight departments will turn over consolidated department reports to the field representative at national headquarters. The national officials will then summarize the department reports and compile a statement which will serve as the basis of the official monthly progress report to be issued to the national commander.

The resolution also stated that "fairness will be the yardstick" of the American Legion's monthly report and that the Legion will "start from the admitted deficits and shortcomings of the Veterans Administration and that full credit shall be given for any improvement." On the other hand, the resolution states that "if delinquencies, delays and inefficiency continue in the Veterans Administration that these be ruthlessly exposed."

Following the reading of the statement and resolution of the national executive committee, the members heard a report on two local cases involving war veterans where considerable delay was manifested on the part of the Veterans Administration.

Appoints Committee

Other members are M. J. Brady, John R. Kelly, Jr., George Busky, Ray Ansbach, William McGady, Harry D. Bogler, David Sloan, Humphrey Johnston and Phil Fleming.

Vincent P. Ingram, Wesley Abrams and Patrick J. Carroll were named a committee of three to attend a meeting pertaining to the proposed completion of the Savage River dam. The meeting will Friday at 3 o'clock in City Hall auditorium.

D.D.T. Is Effective in Killing Codling Moth, Orchardists Say

In response to inquiries received from orchardists in this locality, County Agent R. F. McHenry said yesterday that orchard men in West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania who have experimented with the new insecticide, D.D.T., have found that it is effective in killing the codling moth and keeping it under control.

Orchardists who experimented with D.D.T. spray last year were unanimous in stating that the new insecticide "has plenty of punch".

The University of Maryland expresses the opinion that if the codling moth was well-controlled in 1945 by the use of D.D.T., it is not necessary to repeat the use of the spray in the succeeding year.

Where there has been a heavy kill in one year, ordinary arsenical sprays should be sufficient for co ling moth control the next ye It has also been noted that D.D is not effective against Europe red mite and that by substituti D.D.T. for the usual codling m sprays, the red mite seems to crease and spread.

Red mite is widespread in A gany county orchards. The cond sion is that in order to control b codling moth and red mite in same orchard, D.D.T. had proba better not be used two years succession.

Early tests by entomologists sho that D.D.T. will damage honey b Bees are necessary to pollinate a blossoms so that fruit will set. chardists who tried D.D.T. summer, however, report that D. is less harmful to bees than usual arsenical sprays.
